HURL GERMANS ACROSS DON

MISGIVINGS END, WAAC BECOMES ARMY REALITY

Iowa Camp Set for First Contingent.

Fort Des Moines, Ia., July 17 [Special].—America's first women's army auxiliary corps is no joke. It is an immense military project. This lovely old post, with its roomy red brick barracks and officers' row, its 20 acre sweep of velvety parade ground, gay beds of flowers and magnificent elm trees, normally accommodates a cavalry regiment of 1,500. By December it will be training 7,000 women. The first contingent—800 strong—is due here Monday.

One hundred and eleven new buildings are shooting up. Three hotels and two buildings at Drake university in nearby Des Moines are about to be taken over as training schools. Thirteen new buildings are being added to the hospital equipment alone to give it a capacity of 350 beds. Merely to start the initial training, 179 army officers and 582 enlisted men will be required.

Public None too Cordial.

Establishment of the women's army corps by act of congress received none too cordial a reception by the public. There were misgivings as to the actual need for so drastic a procedure in American military life, and the misgivings were voiced publicly.

Capt. Gordon C. Jones of Columbus, Kas., director of curriculum at this first army camp for women, today set those doubts at rest.

"By June 15," he said, "we had specific requests from corps area commanders for more than 80,000 WAAC's. So you see how desperate they are. We should have started two years ago."

It's Not a Jamboree.

Col. Don C. Faith, commandant, a spare, twinkling man from Washington, Ind., amended the captain's remark with a declaration of his own.

"There is one and only one justification for the WAAC's," he said flatly, "and that is to fulfill military requirements. This isn't a jamboree. It isn't a crusade. It isn't a feminist movement. It's a military project."

"The fundamental idea underlying all this is that right now we have many, many soldiers doing necessary work which should be performed by disciplined, organized, uniformed personnel. It is work that women can do.

"We need those men in tactical units. We are going to need more and more of them. We need women to relieve them. This is not a piece of funny business at all, and I want every one to know it.

"As a matter of fact," he added with a smile, "I hope we can train some woman to relieve me."

Train Exactly Like Army.

Col. Faith made a number of moot points clear. He plans to train the WAAC's exactly like the army. They will salute male officers, and enlisted men in turn will salute women officers. How to address Third Officer Mary Ellen Jones has not been settled by law, but Col. Faith will call her, and all others, "Miss." To insure against groping for names, all WAAC's will wear name plates while here.

Until they master the art for themselves, the WAAC's will eat food cooked by men, the only change in army routine being that they will have dinner at night rather than in the middle of the day. They also will obey the 26 orders sounded by an army bugler until a lady bugler is found. However they will have their own band. A few girl musicians now are being recruited from the 9th corps area with this in mind.

If they desire, they can swim in the post's small pool, play tennis, or drive their own cars. They can attend the camp movie theater, but it is assumed that the screen diet will be changed. Two delights billed today being Margie Hart in "Lure of the Islands" and "Sweater Girl."

440 Officer Candidates.

Of the 800 women ordered to report Monday morning, 440 are candidates for officers, and 360 are basic auxiliaries or privates. Eleven barrack units, each with a capacity of 110, await them.

The barracks are a world apart in American military tradition. As a little supply sergeant [male] said wistfully, as he scuffed his heavy shoes on a gleaming hardwood floor, "I've been in the army four years, and I never seen anything like this before. I've lived in wood barracks

Rich Jeweler Kills Girl to Avert Scandal

(Pictures on pages 6 and 7.)

San Leandro, Cal., July 17 (AP).—Pretty 20 year old Dorena Hammer was found shot to death in an elaborate motor court cabin today, and a wealthy Glendale jeweler who directed police to her body confessed he killed her as she slept because he feared scandal.

Leslie Gireth.

"I was afraid that our interest in each other might lead to scandal that would ruin her life," L. E. Dayton, Alameda county deputy district attorney, quoted Leslie B. Gireth, 42, who earlier today telephoned Oakland police from Fresno, 200 miles south, that "I murdered a girl in San Leandro." He was seized at Fresno.

Miss Hammer, until recently a student at San José State college, had been studying meteorology to obtain an air line job. She had worked occasionally in Gireth's jewelry store.

Register as Married.

Gireth was quoted by Dayton at Fresno as saying he made arrangements to meet Miss Hammer, and they took a cabin together as L. B. Gireth and wife. Police found her body and a suitcase containing a number of love letters signed with Gireth's name.

[Texts of several of the love letters will be found on page 7.]

"We were infatuated with each other," Dayton quoted him. "Wednesday night was the anniversary of our love. So as I stayed beside her as she slept, I decided to kill her because I had become convinced our relationship was ruining her life.

"Early Thursday I got out of bed, took the .25 caliber pistol—she was still asleep—and I shot her three times."

Decides to Tell Police.

Gireth remained at the cabin until mid-afternoon, he said, and then drove south. At Fresno, he said he decided to tell police.

Beside the bed upon which police found the girl's body, was a vase of red carnations, placed there, it was believed, after she was killed. On the table was a framed photograph of Gireth. Penned on the back were the words "Dorena, my darling—humble words could never express how I love you, how I adore you. Always remember that—your Les."

A record of Debussy's romantic "Claire de Lune" was on the phonograph.

Victim Dead 2 Days.

Miss Hammer had been shot twice thru the temple and once in the breast. She had been dead two days. She wore only her pajama jacket.

Recently Gireth's wife, Anna, brought suit for divorce accusing him of cruel and inhuman treatment. They married in 1929, and have two young sons.

Drafting of 18 Year Olds Unlikely Now, Says F.D.R.

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Altho administration officials have been speaking repeatedly of the fact that this country always has called youths of 18 and 19 years to the colors in wartime, President Roosevelt told a press conference today that such a step was unlikely now. He said nothing need be expected on this matter at any time soon.

U. S. to Make Capital Safe for Gossip

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Because Washington people talk too freely, upward of 100 German and Italian waiters may lose their jobs in hotels, restaurants, and clubs here.

Technically, they are enemy aliens. Since they have an opportunity to overhear things that shouldn't be said in public, the justice department has ruled they must be discharged or shifted to jobs where they will have no direct contact with the public.

The order applies to nationals of all countries with which the United States is at war, but most of those affected are Germans and Italians. Some of them have worked in the better known hotels, restaurants, and clubs for years.

Situation Is "Peculiar."

Similar action is not planned in other cities. The situation here was described as "peculiar," because of the large number of persons in a position to have worthwhile information of a military nature.

In addition to waiters, the order applies to bus boys, barbers, housemen, and maids—all employés who have direct contact with guests.

The exact number affected could not be determined. Most estimates, however, placed it at something over 100.

Hotels to Comply.

Arthur J. Harnett, executive secretary of the Hotel Association of Washington, said the hotels were taking steps to comply with the order.

"They have a full realization," he said, "that it will entail considerable hardship not only upon the employés, but also upon the hotels in their effort to furnish efficient service. There is now a shortage of efficient help due to the congested conditions of Washington."

Washington generally interpreted the order as more of a reflection on its loose talk than upon the enemy aliens.

Cuban Army Seeks Scrap Rubber to Donate to U. S.

HAVANA, Cuba, July 17 (AP).—Announcing it would gather rubber and give it to the United States, the Cuban army today called on Cubans to donate scrap rubber "as a contribution to the democratic cause."

HURL BACK TWO COUNTER-BLOWS BY AXIS TANKS

Push Ahead Several Miles in South.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMORED FORCES IN EGYPT, July 17.—British tank and infantry forces battling the axis all up and down the El Alamein front in a series of jabs, feints, and counters, scored new gains today, destroyed a number of tanks, and captured many prisoners. They drove back two axis counterattacks at widely separated points with heavy losses for the enemy.

Their greatest advance was in the extreme south, where they pushed forward several miles, but the fighting along the whole scorching front was in such a stage that its outcome still was in doubt.

Australians who twice captured Tel el Eisa [Hill of Jesus] 10 miles west of El Alamein in a week had to withdraw again under heavy artillery fire, but the enemy was unable to hold the ridge either, so it has become a no man's land. Other Australian forces made definite gains southward to a ridge paralleling the railroad and coast about four miles inland.

Axis Armies Move Back.

In the north and center Field Marshal Erwin Rommel seems to be pulling back most of his axis forces to newly prepared defensive positions, as if forced to leave the initiative with the British, at least for the present.

[Reuters news agency in London quoted a Rome dispatch as saying British forces attacking in the central sector of the El Alamein battlefield penetrated "a vast space separating our defenses and spreading out in the rear of our defenses."]

I arrived up here last night in time to see the beginning of the first of the two enemy tank attacks which the British armored forces drove off after destroying many enemy tanks.

With three other correspondents I arrived on the crest of a knoll overlooking the desert plain just as the enemy tanks opened fire from the crest of a ridge two miles ahead. The British forces were on two low ridges running east and west, with hollows on each side and in the middle, while the Germans attacked from a third ridge in the west running north and south.

Tanks Hammer Enemy.

In front of the advancing German tanks were British field guns firing at short range, while British tanks, partly shielded by a low rise in the ground, stood off and hammered the enemy forces. It was a little before sunset and all we could see of the enemy were the vague shapes of vehicles and the red flashes of the firing German guns.

Looking thru field glasses there appeared to be trucks and men between the enemy tanks and our guns. We were puzzled, but learned afterward that the enemy had sent truck-borne infantry ahead, covered by fire from the tanks to dig in for the battle.

Just at sunset there was a heavy German dive bomber attack on some of the forward British positions, then as the last evening light faded the German tanks rolled up thru their own infantry positions and opened a real attack.

Despite bad visibility, British tanks and guns gave them such a hammering that they gave up the attack after about an hour and withdrew. British officers praised the new American General Lee tanks, which, they said, knocked out many of the advancing Nazi tanks.

British Down Four Planes.

VALETTA, Malta, July 17 (AP).—British fighters shot down four German Messerschmitt fighters and damaged others in a brief enemy attack today, an RAF communique said.

Claim Six Ships Sunk.

BERLIN, July 17 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—A special communique from Adolf Hitler's headquarters said today that German submarines attacked a strongly escorted British convoy off the west coast of Africa and sank six merchant ships aggregating 39,500 tons.

HERE IS NAVY'S STORY OF WAR IN ALASKAN AREA

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Japanese forces have set up temporary living facilities on "three undefended islands" at the tip of the Aleutian chain, the navy announced today, but since early this month have failed to enlarge their holding and have been subjected to intermittent heavy attacks by American airmen.

The installations are on Attu, Kiska and Agattu in the Alaskan war theater. On Kiska, where 20 tents and other structures were observed by aerial reconnaissance June 12, army aircraft recently dropped 56 bombs in one of a series of attacks by United States planes and submarines which to date have cost the Japanese five ships sunk, one believed sunk and nine damaged.

44 Navy, Army Men Killed.

American losses in the campaign to date were disclosed to include 44 army and navy men killed in Japanese bombing attacks on Dutch Harbor and nearby Fort Mears, on Unalaska, and on an army post at Fort Glenn, about 70 miles west of Dutch Harbor on the Island of Umnak.

The old station ship Northwestern was lost in the attack on Dutch Harbor early last month when it was hit by bombs and burned and some damage, altho of a minor nature, was done to American shore installations.

In addition to the 44 army and navy dead, there were 49 army and navy personnel injured and one civilian killed so far, the announcement said.

The navy's review of the situation in the Aleutians said that "there has been no material change in the general situation" since July 11.

Squadron Attacks Islands.

Several new bits of information were added to what previously had been announced. These included:

That the force which attacked the Aleutians on June 3, the day before the Japanese attack on Midway in the Hawaiian group, consisted of two small carriers, two seaplane tenders, several cruisers and destroyers, and from four to six transports.

At the time of the Dutch Harbor attack three United States destroyers, an army transport, a mine sweeper, and a coast guard cutter were in the harbor in addition to the Northwestern, which had been beached and was used as barracks for contractors' personnel.

The day after the first Dutch Harbor attack army bombers and navy patrol planes attacked the enemy carriers, launching bombs and torpedoes, but results "could not be observed."

Assault Army Post.

On June 4, the same day the American planes counterattacked, the enemy's carrier-based bombers and 16 fighters attacked Dutch Harbor and Fort Mears for the second time and simultaneously assaulted the army post, Fort Glenn, where nine enemy fighters strafed shore installations. Two of the fighters were shot down and the other seven withdrew "without inflicting damage."

On June 12 enemy ships were observed at both Attu and Kiska, islands at the tip of the Aleutian chain, and temporary structures were observed on the shore at Kiska.

Meanwhile, numerous air attacks had been made on enemy shipping and these were continued in subsequent days. Then on July 6 the army planes dropped 56 bombs on the enemy's Kiska installations but the navy did not relate what results were obtained, if they were observed at all.

Summarize Jap Losses.

The review summarized the enemy's losses as three destroyers and one transport sunk and four cruisers, three destroyers, one gunboat, and one transport damaged. This summary did not include a report made informally several weeks ago by Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold of the

TEMPERATURE SOARS TO 100° FOR RECORD; TORRID TODAY, TOO

A Chicago weather record was smashed yesterday when the temperature climbed to 100 degrees at 4 o'clock. This was the hottest July 17 in weather bureau history. The previous high of 99.6 degrees was recorded in 1887. The record for any July day was set in 1934, when it got to 105 degrees on July 24.

Yesterday's extreme heat was the second in succession for this area, and Forecaster G. E. Dunn said the highest temperature today would be near the 100 degree mark.

RUSSIANS DRIVE TO WEST BANK NEAR VORONEZH

'Million Men' Pound Soviets in South.

MOSCOW, July 18 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian troops counterattacking south of Voronezh today were reported to have hurled the Germans back across the Don river. However, the Nazis still were making progress toward Stalingrad, rich port on the Volga, at the southern end of the long Don front where the invaders are using 1,000,000 men in their drive thru the wheatland approaches of the Caucasus.

A stab into the German salient, which had crossed to the east bank of the upper Don to menace Voronezh 10 miles beyond, "annihilated the 222d Nazi regiment," an announcement said.

The Russians then crossed the river and fighting now is taking place on the western bank, front line dispatches said in the most heartening news heard here in weeks.

Report Disorderly Retreat.

Two populated places were seized in the area as the Germans retreated "in disorder," and the Russians seized the initiative at the river.

[A Berlin radio summary of the fighting acknowledged severe Russian counterattacks on "German bridgeheads on the Don," but asserted the soviets were repulsed.]

This news came after the regular midnight communique had told of continuing battles in the Voronezh sector.

South of Millerovo, on the Moscow-Rostov railway, at the other end of the front the Russians admittedly were not doing so well. Their armies still were withdrawing slowly while rear guards fought to check a steady German advance toward railway points leading east to Stalingrad.

Peril to Stalingrad Grows.

Stalingrad, within 175 miles of the fighting, was in greater danger with each hour. Rostov and the armies based on the west Caucasus corner were in grave peril of envelopment by the German forces southeast of Millerovo.

[German controled reports via Ankara and Stockholm said Josef Stalin had gone from Moscow to Stalingrad to personally direct the defense of that Volga gateway to the Caucasus.]

The steppes southeast of Millerovo, cloaked in a sea of waving wheat and cut by shallow rivers, presented a scene of great danger.

Russians Lash Back.

The Russians, even in general retreat, were lashing back at the huge tanks and infantry masses which are pushing them southeastward.

Dispatches told how they left the wheatfields choked with German bodies and the wreckage of tanks, guns, and planes.

But these wheatlands were to have played a large part in feeding the nation in the coming winter.

At one river crossing south of Millerovo the Russians turned on their attackers, destroying 14 tanks and killing 600 men. In this same sector a German flanking operation was defeated, the attackers losing 1,800 dead and 14 tanks, dispatches said. In another sector the Red army tanks killed 1,200 Germans.

Heedless of Losses.

The Germans were heedless of the losses. They constantly threw in more men and machines and they still were strongly supported from the air, with dive bombers slashing at the Red army lines before tanks and infantrymen rushed them.

There was no news of the fighting southeast of Boguchar, 70 miles north of Millerovo, where the Russians reported a withdrawal several days ago. This German push from Boguchar down the upper curve of the Don is another threat to Stalingrad.

Dispatches from fronts considerably removed from the southern battlefields suggested, meanwhile, that fresh German activity could be expected momentarily in two sectors.

In the Bryansk area 200 miles southwest of Moscow the Germans were massing reserves of infantry and tanks.

Southwest of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, the Germans were reported determined to take an important junction to link two big Nazi formations for offensive purposes.

Soviet planes attacking a concentration of German ships in the Gulf of Finland sank three gunboats, one armed transport and one patrol ship and damaged 16 other vessels in a three day action, the Moscow radio announced.

"VOROSHILOVGRAD FALLS"

BERLIN, July 17 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—Voroshilovgrad, "the biggest and most important town of the industrial Donetz region," has been stormed and captured by German infantry after days of heavy fighting west of the Donetz, while to the east of the river mobile columns have swept forward and cut Stalingrad's westward railway link, the German high command announced today.

Voronezh, on the north flank of the German drive into the Don valley [where Moscow has reported progress in counterattacks], has been "behind our front" for many days and "endless German columns are passing this town on the march to the east," said military quarters.

It was declared that the Russians had "evacuated the town."

Reports City on Fire.

The capture of Voroshilovgrad [birthplace of soviet Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, former defense commissar and former commander on the northwest front] was announced in a special communique.

"Large parts of the town are ablaze," it said.

[Formerly named Lugansk, Voroshilovgrad has a population of about 213,000, and is known for its coal and coke industries. It is in the extreme eastern tip of the Ukraine. About 90 per cent of Russia's coal has come from the Donetz basin.]

In the sweep of mobile troops southeastward toward the lower Don, the high command said in its regular communique, the railway connecting Stalingrad on the big Volga bend has been cut east of the Donetz.

Many soviet divisions attempting to extricate themselves, were reported pressed between these rushing columns at the rear and side and infantry advancing from the front.

'MILLION TO ONE' NAZI SHOT COSTS LIFE OF RAF ACE

Single Bullet Gets Youth Who Bagged 33 Planes.

LONDON, July 17 (AP).—Bidding his comrades farewell with a calm "This is it, chaps," "Paddy" Finucane, royal air force ace who had 33 German planes to his credit, plunged to his death in the English channel Tuesday in the wreckage of his Spitfire, the air ministry announced tonight.

Brendan Finucane.

A veteran of more than 50 cross channel raids and youngest wing commander in the RAF, Finucane, 21 years old, was leading his squadron during the largest mass air assault upon occupied France when a "million to one chance" shot from a German machine gun post hit the radiator of his plane.

Unable to gain height, Finucane attempted to set his wounded Spitfire down in the sea but it sank immediately, dragging him down. Before the crash he called out his farewell over his interplane radio.

No. 2 Man Avenges Death.

Pilot Officer F. A. Aikman, 23 year old No. 2 leader of the wing and a native of Toronto, Ont., avenged the Irish ace by smashing the German machine gun post.

Finucane — his given name was Brendan but every one called him Paddy—was shot up badly only once in his spectacular career before the Germans got him.

Last October he spent his 21st birthday in the hospital—but the Nazis didn't send him there. Paddy broke a bone in his foot one night while celebrating destruction of two German fighters the day before.

It was four months later that he was wounded in a fight over the channel, but he managed to come home to a perfect landing.

Ace Decorated Four Times.

A native of neutral Ireland, Finucane came from a family wrapped up in the British war effort. His father helps build Spitfires. A brother is a sergeant in the bomber command.

Finucane wore the distinguished flying service order and had thrice received the distinguished flying cross—DFC with double bar. He was promoted to wing commander—comparable to a lieutenant colonelcy in the United States army—last June 30.

He achieved fame first as a section leader in an RAF squadron. When legless Douglas Bader bailed out of a wrecked plane and became a Nazi prisoner, Finucane became Britain's most noted ace. Bader's score was at least 15 Nazi planes.

AWARD GRANTED HINSDALE DOCTOR KILLED IN BATTLE

Charles A. Stafford, whose last address was 220 North Park avenue, Hinsdale, has been posthumously awarded the army silver star for gallantry in action, according to announcement early today from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia. Nine other officers also were awarded the decoration. Capt. Stafford, a young physician, was cited with two other officers, all members of the army medical corps, for "devotion to duty and coolness under fire" while caring for wounded from the United States cruisers Marblehead and Houston. The citation further stated that Capt. Stafford and the others performed duties "over and beyond caring for their own army personnel and exemplified the spirit of unit existing between all parts of our national effort."

The action referred to occurred during the battle for Java in February in which the Houston was later sunk. Capt. Stafford was killed in battle.

Durban, South Africa, Put Under 90 Minute Alarm

DURBAN, Union of South Africa, July 17 (AP).—This city on Africa's southeast coast was under a 90 minute alarm tonight but there was no immediate indication of the reason. Officials said there would be a statement Monday. (Axis submarines have been operating off the southeast coast of Africa and there have been previous alarms in Durban.]

8 ILLINOISANS GET NAVY AWARDS FOR HEROISM IN WAR

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Eight residents of Illinois have been honored by the navy for heroism since the United States entered the war. A compilation by the navy showed for the nation as a whole 231 men in the fighting service of the sea had been decorated for acts beyond the call of duty. All the awards have been announced previously, but this is the first recapitulation by the navy. The Illinoisans decorated were:

Navy cross—Robert L. Brock, machinist's mate, Duquoin; Lieut. Robert B. Buchan, naval reserve, Chicago; Ensign Harald J. Christopher, naval reserve, Evanston [deceased]; Ensign Robert E. Thomas Jr., navy, Rockford [wounded]; Lieut. Comm. William S. Veeder, navy, Chicago; Lieut. Comm. Richard G. Vogue, navy, Chicago; Paul S. Wilson, machinist's mate, navy, Granite City.

British Bombers Again Raid Kalewa and Akyab, Burma

NEW DELHI, India, July 17 (AP).—British bombers again attacked Kalewa in northwest Burma, dropping bombs in the center of the town, and scored hits on waterfront sheds at Akyab, the royal air force announced today. Airdrome buildings at Akyab and huts on nearby Oyser Island also were machine gunned, and Kalemyo and Kyigon on the Myittha river were bombed.

TRAIN AIR BORNE SPEARHEAD FOR RAIDS ON ENEMY

Arnold Boasts Power Beats Anything Known

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Air borne commandos—the American version of England's famed raiding units—are being trained to "strike at the enemy where he least is prepared," Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, air forces commander, disclosed today.

Troop transport planes and gliders will carry the fighting men—American air commandos is their unofficial army designation—to their objectives. Their mobility and firing power, the army predicted, will make them the spearhead of lightning offensive actions.

"The importance of the swiftly moving combat teams cannot be overestimated," Arnold said. "This will be a self-contained force whose soldiers, equipment, and supplies are all transported by air."

Power Exceeds Anything Known.

Numerous details must be kept secret, but he added:

"It can be revealed that in size, equipment, and fire power, the air borne army will exceed anything of the kind the world has seen."

Training courses for the commandos and their pilots—the men who will fly the glider planes—already are under way, the air forces commander said. In these courses, among other things, the air borne attack forces and glider pilots are being trained to withdraw after accomplishing their missions.

The means of withdrawal was not disclosed, but it was pointed out that army planes while in flight have picked up a tow of gliders from the ground.

Headquarters in Indiana.

Headquarters for the new troop carrier command, transport unit for the air commandos, have been established at Stout field, Indianapolis, Ind., with Col. Fred S. Borum in command. Arnold said "several tactical stations" under command of the new troop carrier organizations are being established.

Parachute troops will play a part in the commando raids, the army said. They will be transported in the large planes which tow the commando laden gliders. Arnold called for volunteers as commando glider pilots.

ARMY, NAVY BLOWS CUT U-BOAT RAIDS IN CARIBBEAN—ANDREWS

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CARIBBEAN DEFENSE COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, July 17.—United States army and navy forces stationed here and at surrounding outpost bases in recent weeks have been dealing effectively with the menace of axis undersea raiders, Lieut. Gen. Frank Maxwell Andrews, commanding officer, said today.

Lieut. Gen. F. M. Andrews.

"Measures taken jointly by the army and navy against submarines in the western Caribbean are apparently proving very effective because the number of attacks in this section of the sea has greatly decreased recently," Andrews said in his first press interview since returning from a 12 day trip to the United States.

"We don't plan to stop with these measures, but will increase them even more as time goes on."

Andrews said that the Panama canal is much safer now than when war broke out Dec. 7.

"Defenses of the canal are greatly improved," he said. "We have more men and equipment, and in addition the equipment we have is much more perfect technically than what we had then. Aircraft warning equipment, for example, is tremendously improved."

AMERICAN-JAP EXCHANGE SET FOR WEDNESDAY

LOURENCO MARQUES, Portuguese East Africa, July 17 (AP).—Three liners bringing some 1,500 United States and other allied nationals from the orient and a similar contingent of Japanese from the Americas for exchange now are scheduled to arrive here Wednesday.

Gripsholm, the Italian Conte Verde, and the Japanese Asama Maru.

Britons to Be Exchanged.

LONDON, July 17 (AP).—Some 1,800 British and allied civilians being exchanged for Japanese and Siamese from the British empire are scheduled to arrive at Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, Aug. 27 and Sept. 7 on the Japanese ships Makakura Maru and Tatulal Maru, the British announced today. The British exchange is similar to that between Japan and the United States.

Lisbon Planes Fail to Find Survivors of British Ship

LISBON, Portugal, July 17 (AP).—Five Portuguese long range bombers returned tonight after a fruitless hunt over the Atlantic off the Azores for survivors of the torpedoed British passenger ship Avila Star. The Avila Star, 14,443 tons, was sunk 200 miles off the Azores.

[The Berlin radio quoted dispatches from Portugal as saying the Avila Star was sunk by three German torpedoes July 5 and that 90 persons are missing. One hundred and ten survivors were rescued by a Portuguese warship, the Berlin report said.]

SEIZE BELGIANS TO BALK FUTURE ANTI-NAZI ACTS

VICHY, France, July 17 (AP).—Gen. Baron Alexander von Falkenhausen, German military commander for Belgium and northern France, has announced the seizure of a large number of Belgian hostages who will be executed should sabotage continue in Belgium, a Brussels dispatch said today. Nazi occupation authorities recently seized a large group in the Netherlands for the same reason.

The trial of 38 French citizens, including eight women, charged with communist attacks opened today before a German military court at Nancy, France. In another incident at Mars la Tour two gendarmes were killed when they attempted to stop three persons from stealing bicycles.

Report 17 Poles Executed.

LONDON, July 17 (AP).—The execution of 17 Poles convicted of sabotaging German transport trains bound for the Russian front was announced in the Krakauer Zeitung, a German newspaper in Poland, the Polish telegrap agency said today. Raids on trains and derailments were reported near Radom, Warsaw, and Plaszow.

A Czech government spokesman said today 11 patriots were executed in Nazi ruled Bohemia and Moravia last week on charges of ranging from possession of firearms to illegal slaughter of cattle and concealment of crops.

HOW CANADIAN UNITS WERE CUT UP AT HONGKONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 17.—Canada's 2,000 soldiers who died or were captured in the defense of Hongkong never had a chance to fight as complete units, Lieut. B. A. Proulx, of the Hongkong royal naval volunteer reserve, who crawled six days over mountains to escape, said here today. The Japanese cut all of the island roads, forcing the defenders to fight in small groups, he said.

Hongkong could not have been held, without aircraft, with twice as many troops as the defenders possessed, Proulx said.

He said that the way to beat the Japanese "is to bomb Tokio." He reported he saw immense quantities of United States material arriving in India—there were flying fortresses everywhere, he said, and Japan "is in for a good bombing almost any time now."

U. S. SUB SINKS 5 SHIPS IN PACIFIC ON FIRST PATROL

Ramona, Cal., July 17 (AP).—A United States submarine on its first war patrol attacked and destroyed five ships totaling 25,627 tons, including one submarine, and damaged one ship of 10,100 tons, said a letter of commendation received by a crew member of the undersea craft.

Arthur W. Clark Jr., 23 years old, electrician mate, first class, sent the letter to his mother, Mrs. Nell Kuehnle of Ramona. The letter originated with the commanding admiral of the submarine fleet. It added of the action in the Pacific:

"This was an outstanding first patrol on which each attack was aggressively and ably conducted and successfully completed. The submarine was subjected to severe anti-submarine counter measures and engaged in a gun battle with an enemy vessel."

2 DIE IN BLAST AT PARACHUTE FLARE FACTORY

Galesburg, Ill., July 17 [Special].—Two men were injured fatally last night in an explosion in the Midwest Manufacturing plant here. They were William Hickman, 26 years old, and Harold Kemper, 25, who were at work in a room in which powder is packed into parachute flares.

Police and officials from the Springfield officer of the federal bureau of investigation began an inquiry into the explosion. Authorities said they believed the explosion was accidental and perhaps was caused by friction in packing powder into flare shells.

The blast blew out the wall of the room, demolished large sections of glass windows, and tore a hole in the roof of the one story building.

LEND-LEASE AID FOR JUNE PLACED AT 708 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—President Roosevelt disclosed today that lend-lease assistance to the united nations and other countries eligible for aid reached 708 million dollars in June, the highest monthly total yet.

This compared with 662 million in May and brought the total since lend-lease assistance was inaugurated March 11, 1941, to 5 billion 205 million dollars.

The President told a press conference that of this latter sum 59 per cent was accounted for by goods actually transferred—exported or at points of embarkation in this country. Articles in process of manufacture accounted for 24 per cent and services here and abroad represented 17 per cent.

FINNS HARD HIT BY CLOSING OF U. S. CONSULATE

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 17 (AP).—The United States' decision to close the American consulate here and to request the closing of Finnish consulates there was officially described today as "a surprise" to the government. The news hit the public hard. An official statement said the government "had no reason to suppose" that its policy could lead to such an action. Political circles described the action as diplomatic pressure calculated to hold back military operations endangering allied war material deliveries to Russia.

Count Zedlitz-Truetzschler, Kaiser's Chamberlain, Dies

BERNE, Switzerland, July 17.—The death of Count Robert Zedlitz-Truetzschler, 79 years old, in Breslau, Germany, was reported today. For 12 years he was chamberlain at the kaiser's court, and in 1923 published a volume of spicy memoirs in which he discussed the idiosyncracies of William II. He was ostracized by his monarchist friends but the memoirs were freely exploited by the postwar democratic régimes.

AIR RAID SIRENS HAVE NO LURE FOR YANKEE SOLDIERS

They Don't Even Go Out in London Alert.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 17.—Many American soldiers stationed here heard an air raid siren for the first time when an alert was sounded in the London area early this evening. It was greater London's first alert since March 16.

No planes were visible, no gunfire was heard in central London, and, judging from The Tribune correspondent's checkup at the Washington club, run by the American Red Cross for American soldiers, the doughboys were not impressed.

Yanks Don't Even Look.

Two visitors at the club at the time were Prvts. Andrew McCormick, of 359 St. Charles street, Elgin, Ill., and Robert F. Ohm, of Gibsonburg, O. Both stayed in the club lounge, reading magazines. They did not even bother to go outside to see what was happening.

McCormick, a clerk on the headquarters staff, said he already had experienced a night raid when German planes dropped fire bombs on the suburbs a few weeks back. He said:

"I was walking thru Hyde Park when the attack opened, but I did not take any notice."

One Raider Attacks City.

Ohm, a mechanic in the army air force, said merely: "Air raids don't bother me any more."

When the sirens sounded, people in the streets gazed skyward and a few broke into a run, seemingly spurred by the wail to catch their buses for home. But there were no other signs of excitement.

A communique later said bombs were dropped in the greater London area by a lone raider, but that only slight damage and no casualties were caused. Enemy planes also dropped bombs earlier on a southwest coast town.

Single British bombers again attacked objectives in the Ruhr arsenal and northwest Germany in daylight today, their second such venture in as many days. The air ministry said they sustained no losses.

[Berlin yesterday said a British armaments factory was bombed and several fires started in a raid on Thursday, while two planes were downed as British bombers made "interference attacks against the north German coastal area."]

German Bomber Attacks Allied Trawler Off Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 17 (AP).—A German bomber attacked an allied trawler in northern Iceland waters but no damage or casualties resulted, an official United States army announcement said today. The plane dropped three bombs, only one of which exploded, and then machine gunned the ship.

'BUNDLES FOR BRITAIN' BANNED, BUT FLOW OF CASH GIFTS CONTINUES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 17.—American gifts to Britain will continue despite the agreement of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill to ban "bundles for Britain" to save shipping space, Gilbert H. Carr, director general of American ambulances, said today. American aid will now become financial, he said.

Carr disclosed that a further 50,000 pounds [about $200,000] had been earmarked for the operation of 300 American ambulances here. The fleet, a conspicuous gray with red lines and crossed American and British flags painted on the sides, costs around 2,000 pounds [about $8,000] weekly to staff and maintain, and is now guaranteed another six months' operation at American expense.

The ambulances already have traveled approximately 5,000,000 miles on air raid and civilian duties.

70 PCT. OF SOVIET WOUNDED RETURN TO WAR, U. S. TOLD

Denver, Colo., July 17 [Special].—Seventy per cent of all Red army wounded have been returned to the front and the mortality among wounded has been reduced more than one-half as compared with figures of the first World war, Nicholai N. Burdenko, chief surgeon of the Russian armies, radioed the seventh national assembly of the International College of Surgeons today. Essential elements in the success of Russian field surgery have been "immediate stanching of blood flow, immobilization of injured limbs, use of prophylactic serums and irreproachable medical documentation," Burdenko said.

LAVISH SPENDING OLD RIVIERA SET MOVES TO GAY N.Y.

Metropolis Incongruous Wartime City.

(Marcia Winn, Tribune reporter who recently made a survey of the war effort in the small towns and hamlets of the central west from Kentucky to Iowa, is now making a study of New York's attitude toward the war. The last of her series of four articles follows.)

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 17.—New York in wartime is a city of miracles.

It is a city where a man can be in Bellevue hospital as an alcoholic one week and in uniform as a member of naval intelligence the next.

It is a city where a wealthy playboy, suddenly transformed into an army officer, can return nightly to the cafés of his civilian days and in inebriated moments reveal an act of enemy sabotage which, if true, should be as shrouded in silence as the dead.

It is a city where two refugees, for whose Nazi occupied homeland America now sacrifices and fights, can come daily to a restaurant upholstered in crimson velvet to spend $25 for a luncheon of caviar and champagne.

Perfect Garden Overnight.

It is a city where America's most horticulturally perfect victory garden can spring like dragon's teeth into overnight completion in the heart of the city.

The victory garden is in the court of Rockefeller center. One day the court was full of geraniums and begonias. The next it contained tasseled corn, firm green cabbages, flourishing onions, beans ripe on their vines, heavy clusters of broccoli, and patches of chives, parsley, and curly lettuce.

To the average New Yorker, who recognizes a vegetable only when he sees it at market or on the dinner table, the victory garden is a magic garden of discovery, for every item bears a neatly printed label. Thus, crowds gather around it at all times, and if the labels to a plot of Chinese cabbage and a row of onions have been transposed, as they have been, New Yorkers merely comment with the awe that any one acquires in the shadows of Rockefeller center that these Rockefeller onions certainly do have a marvelous foliage and just look, honey, at these cabbages that look like onions.

Nothing Baffles New Yorkers.

Strangers to New York may be baffled by many wartime manifestations here, but not a New Yorker. The fact that Prince Serge Obolensky may be seen day or night in the lobby of the exclusive St. Regis hotel in the khaki of the New York home guard, a row of medals across his chest as he greets guests, is perfectly natural to them. They are delighted that the prince drills once a week in the armory. And what would the St. Regis do without him?

And they grieve with another titled nobleman, an American citizen by accident of birth, who whiled away his years in Paris, left it shortly before its fall, and now moans that the draft, about to engulf him, will interrupt the career that he has just reestablished here.

Many expatriates have come home to New York. Many noble scions are here. Many refugees are here, most of them with their dogs. They live at the most expensive hotels, dine in the most exclusive spots, and go to a celebrated refugee dressmaker, an American by birth, who says he prefers refugees as customers as they alone are willing to pay the $300 minimum he charges for a garment. "They understand me," he says proudly.

High Prices Bring Business.

French is the language of the house in the preferred refugee restaurants, the Colony, Pavillon, and Voisin. One, Pavillon, even has Harry of Harry's bar, Paris' preferred bartender in the pre-Vichy days, mixing drinks behind its discreetly elegant bar. The three are touch and go in price, their prices equaled by no other New York restaurant or night club.

Consequently, using the old New York standard of comparative expense to determine desirability, they do a rushing business. One New York woman stated it well when she twittered innocently of luncheon at the Colony: "My dear, there's no greater satisfaction than putting on your best hat from Johns-Frederic, your best dress from Bergdorf-Goodman, and going in there and just looking at people."

Women in dark glasses, men with monacles, fill these places. A babble of foreign tongues, principally French, emerges above the discreet clatter of china and silver. Each diner eyes carefully each newcomer. Sometimes a shriek of delight goes up as two old friends are united.

"It's the old Riviera set," a former Parisian explained. "They are all here. Here are the faces one used to meet everywhere in Paris and Nice.

"Sometimes it is hard to take. Those two women," indicating two exquisitely dressed women finishing their caviar and champagne on an adjoining red velvet love seat, "are Parisians, I am sure. I know their faces. Their appetite, I would say, is in the poorest possible taste."

Many of the more wealthy refugees—and their names and titles and activities here are chronicled in the daily society columns—have taken summer places at Montauk Point, Sands Point, and the Hamptons, fashionable colonies on Long Island. Among those sojourning in these colonies are the French house of Rothchild and Princess Martha of Norway with her children. Here, too, the vagaries of political circumstance and the tide of war have brought the Russian embassy as a treasured neighbor.

Wreck Historic Marker.

The embassy's arrival brought only one untoward incident. The embassy help removed a large pile of rocks encumbering their private beach. For the past 10 days the help has been busily restoring the rocks to position. They had destroyed an historic monument erected in the dim, neglected past by the American Indians.

Times have changed the popularity of crowned heads. One repatriate dowager, who once thought kings and queens were assets, burst into indignant mutters the other day when Park avenue was closed to traffic for the arrival of Queen Wilhelmina.

"Imagine tying up everything for two hours," she said sourly, "just for a little old queen!"

However, when young Peter II. of Jugo-Slavia was here last week the 500 guests invited to meet him included only New York's ancient and honorable old guard and a sprinkling of such newcomers as Mrs. Wendell Willkie. Many of the dowagers curtsied to the floor, and one who came on crutches apologized that they, and they alone, prevented her from doing likewise.

More than 1,000 persons purchased $1,734,425 of war bonds and stamps at the Chicago Heroes' breakfast yesterday in the Stevens hotel, Norman B. Collins, director of the Illinois War Savings staff of the treasury department, announced.

Collins said it was the largest amount yet raised for the war effort at a single event in Chicago. Of the total, approximately $250,000 worth of bonds were purchased by those at the speakers' table.

The breakfast was part of a nation wide campaign by retailers to sell a billion dollars of war securities in July. A number of wartime heroes of the battlefield, factory, and home attended as guests of honor. Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly were among the speakers.

34 FIRE FIGHTERS ARE OVERCOME BY SMOKE, FUMES

Nine in Hospital After Four Hour Battle.

Nine firemen were sent to hospitals and 25 others were treated by inhalator squads last night after they were overcome by dense smoke fighting a 3-11 fire in the basement and first floor of a five story brick building at 220-222 West Huron street.

The fire, of undetermined origin, was brought under control after more than four hours. A stock of 1,000 reconditioned refrigerators owned by the Macklam Refrigerator Sales and Service corporation was believed destroyed in the blaze. Damage was estimated at $25,000 by Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan.

Five Inhalator Squads.

The firemen were overcome when they attempted to enter the building thru the acrid smoke which apparently resulted from burning of the gas used in the refrigerators. Five inhalator squads were called to aid them and take the nine most seriously ill men to the Henrotin and Wesley Memorial hospitals.

Using a pneumatic drill, the firemen finally cut a hole in the brick wall of the building and began pouring water inside. The smoke hid the flames.

Boys Start Ferry Service.

Traffic in Huron and Franklin streets was halted as more than 1,000 spectators gathered. Boys from the neighborhood maintained a ferry service to carry water from their homes for the firemen to drink.

Four workers in the upper floors left by the fire escape. Ten thousand gallons of altar wine stored in the basement of a building at 224 Huron were endangered by water seepage.

WALLACE SAVES FLORIDA CANAL, BREAKS TIE VOTE

Senate Passes 44 Million Barge Project, 31-30.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—For the second successive day Vice President Henry Wallace broke a tie vote in the senate this afternoon, saving the New Deal the embarrassment of having the 44 million dollar Florida barge canal eliminated from the pending legislation to alleviate the east coast oil shortage.

The vote, which came after two days of wrangling, was on an amendment to knock the barge canal project from the bill which carries in addition a total of 49 million dollars in authorizations for construction of pipelines and enlargement of intercoastal waterways.

Vandenberg, Brooks Fight It.

The fight against the canal was led by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], who charged that its inclusion in the measure was merely an opening wedge for securing congressional approval of the administration's 300 million dollar Florida ship canal project.

It appeared from the first calling of the roll that they had won their fight by a vote of 30 to 29. However, just as Wallace prepared to announce the result, Sen. D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho] hurried into the chamber and cast his ballot against the amendment which brought a 30 to 30 tie.

The Vice President paused uncomfortably for a moment under the steady gaze of the members, then hurriedly announced:

"The chair votes nay."

Passed on Voice Vote.

The chamber's refusal to eliminate the canal left only the passage of the 93 million dollar measure. This took place a moment later on a voice vote and the bill was sent back to the house for concurrence on minor amendments.

A few of the senatorial wags declared in cloakroom conversations that the Vice President is piling up quite a voting record, threatening even the records of the most unswerving New Dealers in the chamber, in his support of pet administration schemes.

A week ago he broke a tie and saved the Civilian Conservation Corps from total wartime liquidation, and yesterday he cast his vote against a proviso which would have required James M. Landis, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, to secure the approval of the senate for all employés drawing more than $4,500 per year.

600 Mile Saving Claimed.

The canal would be 12 feet deep and 125 feet wide, extending across Florida over the same route proposed for the deeper ship canal, several times rejected by congress. Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], who championed the proposal, asserted it will increase the carrying capacity of oil tankers by 14 per cent thru traveling distance saved.

It was estimated that this saving will be 600 miles when oil is transported across Florida instead of around the tip. Construction of the barge route will end forever any necessity for the ship canal, he said.

Besides the barge canal, the bill provides for construction of a pipeline across northern Florida, a pipeline from Georgia and Mississippi, and enlargement of intercoastal waterways on the Gulf of Mexico to the Mexican border.

Sen. Brooks declared that the projects cannot be completed until too late to aid in the war effort. He assailed the proposals as a waste of money and strategic materials at a time when both can ill be spared in the immediate prosecution of the war.

"There are many of us who believed that we should not challenge the whole world while we were so poorly prepared," he asserted. "There were others who said that we could defeat Japan in the space of a few weeks. Every one underestimated our potential enemies, both from a material standpoint and their strategic ability.

"The result was that we were suddenly challenged and attacked, and Japan dealt us the worst naval defeat we have ever suffered in the history of our country at Pearl Harbor, and, subsequently, dealt us the worst military defeat this country has ever sustained, for, for the first time in history, the American nation surrendered an army in the Philippines."

Asks Protection

JOAN MARSH.

Hollywood, Cal., July 17 [Special].—Simultaneously with a suit for divorce filed on the ground of cruelty against Charles Spencer Belden, 38 years old, film writer, Joan Marsh, 27, screen actress, today obtained a protective order in Superior court after she had presented affidavits depicting herself as in fear for her life.

Miss Marsh brought the action with the plea that the court award her $250 a month alimony, $200 for court costs and $1,500 fees for her attorney. In her affidavit Miss Marsh complained that Belden recently had harassed her, threatened her with bodily harm and displayed a gun.

Miss Marsh sued under her legal name, Dorothy Lacy Belden. She and Belden were married in Beverly Hills Dec. 2, 1938, and the separation occurred only last Thursday, according to the suit.

Churches to Help Inform Negroes of Rental Rules

Earl Dean Howard, Chicago area rent director, completed arrangements yesterday to disseminate information on rent control to 275,000 Negroes in the city thru the Chicago Inter-Denominational Council of Negro churches. He said he had appointed Bishop James A. Bray, president of the council, as chief coördinator of rent information for the 12 denominations and 300 churches in the council. Howard is making similar arrangements with other church groups.

CHICAGO TO GET NO NEW BUSES OR STREET CARS

ODT Calls for Better Use of Old Equipment.

The necessity for conserving automobiles and available transit cars and buses was brought home to Chicagoans yesterday with the announcement that no more buses and street cars will be delivered to the Chicago area in the near future and probably not for the duration of the war.

Charles E. De Leuw, local co-administrator for the Office of Defense Transportation, told 35 ODT workers at a meeting called to start a "share your car" campaign that production of street cars and buses is being halted by the War Production board.

Repair of Old Equipment.

Merrill Knox, ODT consultant, said ODT officials in Washington, D. C., have ruled that none of the transit vehicles turned out before production stops will be allocated to Chicago. These officials are of the opinion, Knox said, that Chicago is not making the fullest possible use of its present equipment and that many additional riders can be carried by repairing old equipment, carrying heavier loads, and staggering hours.

The ODT ban on Chicago deliveries affects 75 buses ordered by the Chicago Motor Coach company in February but not yet received, and 200 street cars and 200 buses which the Illinois Commerce commission last April directed the Chicago Surface lines to buy, Knox explained.

Knox said production of motor buses will be halted today under the WPB order, except for coaches for which materials are already in the hands of manufacturers.

Share Cars to Spare Tires.

Philip Harrington, ODT administrator for the Chicago area, told the meeting that "sharing our cars to spare our tires" is the first objective of the drive to conserve vital war transportation.

Folders are being mailed to 1½ million residents of Chicago and suburbs urging those who own automobiles to join share-the-ride clubs.

Employers of more than a million workers in Chicago and vicinity also are being asked to fill out cards telling the present riding habits and working hours of the employés. This will help the ODT to promote ride-sharing and to lay plans for staggering working hours, Harrington said.

NEGROES INVITED TO OPPOSE BREAK IN RENT CONTROL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—A resolution, calling upon all Negro organizations to send delegates to Chicago to draft plans to block a move to break rent control, was adopted at a mass meeting sponsored by the National Negro council here tonight.

The resolution declared that any break in federal control, now in force in 300 cities, will send rents spiraling and work great hardship on defense workers. It asserted that Negroes will suffer particularly if rent ceilings are relaxed.

Edgar Brown, director of the council, who addressed the meeting here, left for Chicago to plan a protest session which will be held Wednesday, the same day as a nation-wide rally there against rent restrictions.

REQUEST BIDDLE TO PROBE NEGRO BEATING CHARGE

Los Angeles, Cal., July 17 [Special].—Protests against the asserted beating by police of Roland Hayes, Negro tenor, at Rome, Ga., were sounded today at the 33d annual session of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People.

The session delegates dispatched a telegram to Attorney General Francis Biddle urging a complete investigation of the incident, which took place last Saturday.

"Delegates to this conference, shocked and angered by the beating of Roland Hayes, call on your office to act vigorously and promptly thru every means available," the wire to Biddle said.

Earlier delegates contended that anti-Democratic treatment of Negro soldiers and sailors is seriously affecting national morale and threatening to impede the war effort.

NEW ZEALANDERS OFFER PLAN FOR ATTACK ON JAPS

Build Base for Offensive Operations.

Down Two Jap Planes

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, July 18—[Saturday]—(AP).—Two of three Japanese planes which attacked allied reconnaissance planes over the Solomon Island group northeast of Australia were destroyed, a communique said today. Allied bombers also attacked dock installations and shipping in Japanese held Rabaul harbor, New Britain, and a Japanese Zero plane was shot down by allied reconnaissance units over Timor to the northwest.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, July 17.—Completion of a major portion of New Zealand's war construction program is regarded here as fraught with special significance at this time because it transforms this country into an offensive base. New Zealanders contend that the strength of the base will help to defeat Japan.

Japan's south Pacific advance, it is pointed out, has been one of creating a system of integrated bases by gradually widening the Japanese drives. The New Zealanders believe the Japanese war plan still covers adoption of these tactics. They suspect the enemy intends to move down the east coast of Australia—a movement designed to immobilize or seize Darwin, thus hurling the American navy back upon a line from Sydney, Australia, to Auckland, New Zealand. However, it is believed this plan was given a setback by the American victory in the Coral sea battle.

Believe Japs Covet Samoa.

Japanese infiltration of the Louisiades [an archipelago southeast of New Guinea and northeast of Australia] was designed as a preparatory move for this southward thrust. Japanese occupation of Makin and Abaiang in the British Gilbert Islands is considered to be an effort to push the threat closer to Samoa. The Japanese, if established in Samoa, could harry the American supply line to the Antipodes including the Pacific air ferry.

In this wide ocean war, naval anchorages linked with a good airfield system are needed. A Singapore or Pearl Harbor would be useful for the allies in this area, but since none is available for reconditioning damaged ships, losses must be faced in order to carry the war to the enemy, New Zealanders maintain. Proper use of the tremendous American air power now being developed can cut these losses to a minimum, they argue.

Need Aviation Strength.

Hence the warfare envisaged as not far ahead consists of allied sea formations speeding in special task forces against the outermost fringe of Japanese-held bases in an attempt to force the Japanese to make their first retirement. Thereafter the regained bases could be used for pushing further attacks against the Japanese.

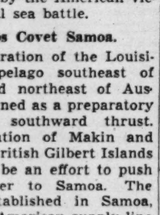
In this form of warfare it is believed that operations can be carried out by limited forces of ships if airplane strength is available.

Every advance, it is argued, will make the Japanese tenure of conquest more difficult and will also enable the United States navy to approach the edge of the enemy stronghold under an air umbrella and endanger any task force which the Japanese may dispatch to counter the threat.

This line of thought indicates New Britain, New Guinea, and the Gilbert Islands as high on the list for allied counterattacks, with possible later stabs at the Japanese mandated islands from which the whole Nipponese southwest Pacific naval setup might be bombed.

SENTENCE YANK SOLDIER TO DIE FOR 3 KILLINGS

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 17 (AP).—Pvt. Edward J. Leonski, former New York City grocery clerk and self-styled Jekyll and Hyde, was condemned to the gallows by a United States military court today for the strangulation murders of three Melbourne women.



Pvt. E. J. Leonski.

The 23 year old defendant, who was quoted as saying he throttled his first victim "because she had a lovely voice and I wanted that voice," smirked after hearing the verdict. It took the 10 man tribunal a scant 50 minutes to reach its verdict. The sentence is subject to review by the commanding general of United States armed forces in Australia.

Witnesses described Leonski as a "psychopathic personality" and heavy drinker who on occasion drank a concoction of beer, ketchup, ice cream, and pepper. Leonski was arrested in mid-May after the body of Gladys Hosking, 40 year old university chemistry school secretary, was found near an army camp. The other victims were Mrs. Ivy McLeod, 40, killed on May 3, and Mrs. Pauline Thompson, 31, killed May 9.

NAVY IS ACCUSED OF DISTORTING ROLE IN BATTLES

Blundering Is Laid to 'Desk Admirals.'

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Col. Hugh J. Knerr, former chief of staff of the headquarters air force, today charged that "desk admirals" in Washington are giving the nation exaggerated reports of naval activity in order to cover up their grave blundering in drafting a naval program calling for battleships, which have been shown to be obsolete.

Col. Hugh J. Knerr.

Meanwhile, the colonel declared, the blundering is still going on because the "desk admirals" are building aircraft carriers, which will be as useless as battleships by the time they are completed. He said the money, materials and energy going into carriers should go for the acquisition of land based, long range aircraft.

A Battle for Control.

The colonel made his charges in an article, published in the current issue of American Mercury. Two months ago he stirred interest in allied circles by charging that a dangerous division of authority exists between the army and navy in strategic war theaters.

"The men in the navy are fighting heroically for victory," Col. Knerr writes. "But the 'desk admirals' in Washington are fighting a desperate rear guard action for prestige and control—a battle which at best is shortsighted and at worst may be delaying our triumph.

"The navy command, flanked by platoons of alleged public relations experts, is constantly conveying a false and exaggerated impression of naval activity. The picture of crucial events is being distorted and touched up to save face over the discrediting of the battleship; to sell a navy's-eye view of the lessons of the war; and to divert money, materials, and energy to aircraft carriers which logically should go into long range, land based aviation.

Build Useless Carriers.

"The crowning result of this naval 'paper war' for the headlines has been the decision of a well meaning but misinformed and bewildered congress to build 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers, which, by the time they are completed, will be as useless to us as the battleships are today.

"Far more serious than the waste of resources and labor involved is the implied acceptance of the fallacious idea that the carrier has supplanted the battleship as the 'backbone' of the navy. The notion can only perpetuate outmoded strategy and bring another crop of disasters.

Public in Rôle of Sucker.

"Compare the first news releases on important engagements with the air power facts that leak out piecemeal in the following days or weeks and you get some inkling of the dangerous game being played, with the American public in the rôle of sucker. The original news sources are responsible, not the press."

Col. Knerr analyzed official communiques of Coral sea, Midway Island, and the Aleutian engagements. He said that during the five days of the Coral sea battle the public was given to understand thru navy communiques that a great naval battle was raging when not a single navy surface ship fired one of its guns usefully except its anti-aircraft guns.

WAR PRISONERS BUILD TUNNELS, FAIL TO ESCAPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, July 17.—Nazi and Italian prisoners of war have dug six tunnels, totaling about 400 feet in length, in futile attempts to break out of the Victorian internment camp, military authorities disclosed today.

The largest tunnel, which was timbered and electrically lighted, was 240 feet long, 3 feet wide, and 6 feet high. It led from one section of the compound to another without any apparent attempt to reach the barbed wire perimeter. None of the tunnels reached the edge of the camp, authorities said.

Three Nazis and an Italian escaped from the camp 10 days ago and six others, Germans, escaped in May, but none gained freedom via tunnels. The camp commader said they escaped from working parties outside the wire enclosure.

Road 2,800 Miles Long

CHUNGKING, China, July 17 (AP).—Supplies for China now are flowing from Russia to Chungking over a 2,800 mile highway, most of which has been constructed since the war with Japan began five years ago, an official announcement disclosed today. The announcement revealed that Wong Wen-Hao, Chinese economic minister, has just completed an inspection of the road, during which he saw materials moving toward Chungking in trucks, carts, and by camel.

The western terminus of the highway, which winds thru mountains and across deserts, is Tacheng, situated at the foot of the Alti [Gold] mountains on the border between China and Russian Turkestan. There the road joins a Russian highway leading to the railhead at Alma Ata.

The road runs thru the precipitous mountains of northern Szechwan and Shensi provinces, then follows the old imperial highway to Kansu, skirts the great wall, and retraces Marco Polo's silk trail across the Black Gobi desert to Baboon pass on the Kansu-Sinkiang border. There it joins the Sinkiang provincial road system to reach Tacheng, whence a soviet road leads to Alma Ata.

ALLIES MAKE 4TH RAID ON BIG JAP BASE AT HANKOW

CHUNGKING, China, July 17 (AP).—A fourth and "very satisfactory" allied air raid yesterday on Hankow, big Japanese base on the Yangtze river, was announced today by Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's United States army air force headquarters.

Afield, Chinese dispatches said Chinese forces striking eastward in Kiangsi province had recaptured Sankiangkow, 25 miles south of Nanchang, and laid siege to the walled city of Linchwan, 55 miles southeast of Nanchang.

The Chinese army reported it inflicted "considerable casualties" on the Japanese near Wenchow, Japanese occupied port in Chekiang province; repelled a Japanese sorties southwest of Kwangfeng, in Kiangsi province; beat back with heavy losses a Japanese push south of Paotow, in Suiyuan province, and made a successful surprise raid on the Japanese at Paikungao, in Kwangtung province.

Japs Claim New Landing.

TOKIO, July 17 [from Japanese broadcasts] —(AP). — Crack Japanese naval units early today effected a landing at Hwanghwatsun, on the estuary of the Wu river in southeastern Chekiang province, and started a drive westward toward Japanese-held Wenchow, a Domei news agency dispatch form Shanghai reported.

ARMY DEPLORES FAKE REPORTS OF ENEMY 'CHUTES

New York, July 17.—(AP).—The army's eastern defense command said tonight the old Yankee weakness for exaggeration was causing needless labor for military and civilian personnel in the northeast who were kept busy all day searching for nonexistent parachutists.

Lieut. Col. E. J. Glavin, public relations officer for the command, said more than 20 false rumors of parachute landings were received today while the army investigated a report that six parachutes were seen descending last night a few miles from President Roosevelt's Hyde Park estate.

Col. Galvin said that in the wake of last night's report "there have been many false reports circulating which tend to cause alarm and fear in the localities where they originated."

He cited the example of a man who tried to impress a 14 year old boy by saying he had seen a parachutist "dropping from a dark plane." The boy informed the nearest aircraft warning post, and only after a check of the source was the hoax revealed.

CITY CONSIDERED FOR MAIN OFFICE BY ARMY WIVES

Mrs. Carter Collins, organizing chairman for the Association of Army Wives, disclosed last night that the organization was considering adopting Chicago as its national headquarters in its work of aiding wives of men called into the service.

Chicago seemed best, Mrs. Collins said, because of its central location, and because of congestion in Washington.

The association, which now numbers 15,000 to 20,000 members, was formed last December by the Infantry School Woman's club of Fort Benning, Ga., and the Woman's Defense league of Macon, Ga. Its membership now is concentrated in the eight southern states of the 4th army corps area, Mrs. Collins asserted, but the association is endeavoring to recruit members thruout the nation.

She said the organization, thru visits, telephone calls, and letters, gives advice to women whose homes have been disrupted by the entry of husbands into the army. There are no dues, but members may subscribe for a $1 a year to the group's magazine. Mrs. Collins came here recently with her husband, Col. Carter Collins, who was transferred from the 4th corps area for duty with the 11th corps division.

WELLES SNUBS VICHY ENVOY AS LAVAL REBUFF

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—The Vichy government of collaborationist Pierre Laval received a diplomatic rebuff today when its ambassador, Gaston Henry-Haye, called at the state department.

The ambassador had been scheduled to see Undersecretary Sumner Welles, but the appointment suddenly was canceled and the ambassador was asked to transact his business with James C. Dunn, the department's political adviser on European affairs.

Henry-Haye was understood to have been instructed to discuss two matters—his government's protest against assignment of United States military and naval representatives to Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Fighting French committee in London, and Laval's published warning to the United States against encouraging the British to seize or destroy interned French warships at Alexandria.

"I am still trying to use what influence I have to maintain friendly relations between our two countries," Henry-Haye said.

GERMANY SENDS RAIL EQUIPMENT TO TURKS—LATE

ANKARA, Turkey, July 16 [delayed] —(AP).—Germany today delivered to Turkey four out of seven locomotives and 80 out of 500 freight cars which were contracted for several months ago.

German failure to deliver important heavy goods pledged to Turkey under their nine-months-old trade treaty, particularly railroad equipment and war material, had prompted Turks to demand that the Germans send them or admit they could not.

Two explanations may account for what appears to be a token German delivery: [1] Turkey has specified that none of her goods for Germany would be released until equivalent deliveries were made to her, and [2] Britain has fulfilled her delivery schedules and the Nazis may regard their prestige as being at stake.

TWO SHIPS SUNK UNDER THEM, BUT 39 OF 51 SURVIVE

Vessel Saving Two Crews Sent to Bottom by Sub.

AN EAST COAST PORT, July 17.—Thirty-nine of 51 men who set out to sea together last month had two ships torpedoed from beneath them, but live to sail again. Five crewmen, including the skipper, died when their big American merchantman sank in the Caribbean sea June 14 six minutes after two torpedoes struck amidships. Seven others perished the next night in the sinking of a rescue ship.

The attacks, with the sinking of two other vessels announced today, brought to 380 the number of vessels sunk in American or adjacent waters since Pearl Harbor, according to an unofficial tabulation by the Associated Press. Since then 326 have been sunk near the shores of the United States, with 2,019 known dead, 1,838 missing, and 10,846 rescued.

Die in Effort to Get Aid.

The large merchantman was attacked without warning about 7:00 p. m. Capt. Gustav Clafson and the radioman went down with the ship as they attempted to flash a call for help. Two men on watch in the engine room were killed by the explosions, and the fourth mate is missing and presumed lost.

Three hours after the 46 survivors pulled clear in two lifeboats, they heard the explosion as another vessel fell victim to a submarine attack.

The next morning they were joined by a lifeboat sailed by about 15 of the survivors from the other ship!

The little flotilla was sighted a few hours later by a merchantman, which stopped and took the crew aboard. Early that night, the 110 men on the mercy ship saw a nearby vessel attacked, and stood by for the expected torpedoing. It came about 9:20 p. m.

Rescued Men Dive Overboard.

The seamen who had been picked up jumped overboard and took their chances on reaching rafts or the lifeboats in tow rather than crowd the regular crew out of their places on the one lifeboat which was not damaged by the torpedo. Eighteen men, in all, were lost. The navy announced the sinking of the rescue vessel July 5.

Edgar Kansen of Island Park, Long Island, an oiler, told the story of the two sinkings as he and several companions paused here after a plane trip from the Caribbean island where they were landed.

"We didn't see the submarine which got our ship," se said. "When the rescue ship was attacked, I went over the side and swam for two and a half hours before I could find a raft. I saw that submarine. It was so big that I thought it was a surface vessel looking for survivors, and I swam up to it. But I saw the conning tower when I came close, and believe me I moved away from there."

Kansen also was aboard a ship torpedoed off Cape Hatteras several months ago.

Two More Ships Sunk.

Washington, D. C., July 17.—The torpedo sinking of two more merchant vessels, one of them in the Caribbean sea, was announced today.

The vessel sunk in the Caribbean was a small Dutch freighter, which was torpedoed May 24. Twenty-nine members of her crew were rescued and two are missing.

Survivors said the submarine came to the surface after the ship had sunk and its commander asked them the name of the freighter and her cargo. Survivors were landed at an east coast port.

Three Crewmen Killed.

The second ship, a British freighter, was sunk June 25 in the South Atlantic ocean. Two members of a crew of 40 were killed and one died later in a lifeboat. Survivors said the submarine fired one torpedo and more than 60 shells from a deck gun.

The submarine crew talked with the survivors in English and two of the men on the U-boat said they had spent five years in schools in England. They offered cigarets and matches to the victims and told them they had little chance of being rescued.

The survivors, in two lifeboats and three rafts, were adrift nine days. They were landed July 5 at a South Atlantic port and reached an east coast United States port last Monday.

Transcribed Vows

Miss Helen Prestidge and Clayton Howard, who will be married in Ecuador.

An unusual wedding ceremony in which two Chicago suburbanites will be married while appearing on a radio program in Quito, Ecuador, was disclosed yesterday by the fiancée, Miss Helen Prestidge, 22 years old.

Miss Prestidge, the daughter of the Rev. Franklin L. Prestidge, pastor of the Western Springs Baptist church, will be married to Clayton Howard, 23, a former Wheaton resident who is now a technician for radio station HCJB in Quito.

When Miss Prestidge leaves for Quito next week she will take with her a transcription of the wedding vows, prepared at Wheaton college by the Rev. Mr. Prestidge and the Rev. Evan Welsh, pastor of the Church of Christ, which the bridegroom attended in Wheaton.

In the recording there is a pause after each of the questions asked. This will enable Howard and his bride to repeat their vows together while the transcription is being played on the Quito radio program.

Miss Prestidge will leave by train for Miami, Fla., next Friday, from where she will fly to Ecuador. The wedding has been set tentatively for July 29.

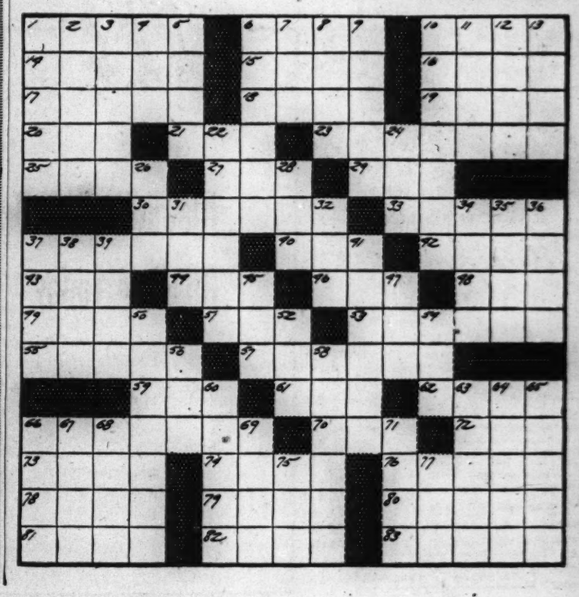
PUZZLE OF FRIDAY, JULY 17, SOLVED



DEMAND CLEANUP OF CRIME RIDDEN PAINTERS' UNION

Police Seek Action After Fatal Shooting.

A cleanup of the painters' union in Chicago will be demanded of international officers today as one result of the revolver battle between two powerful local leaders in which the wife of one was killed early yesterday. The shooting spree added another violent chapter to the bloody history of the painters' district council, which has 31 locals with 21,000 members.

"It's up to the international to come in here and clean up the mess," said Sergt. George Barnes, head of the police labor detail.

On one side in the battle were Arthur W. Wallace, 51 years old, secretary-treasurer of District Council 14, and two men who are being sought. Wallace was shot in the abdomen and was in a critical condition last night despite three blood transfusions.

Woman Slain in Home.

On the other side in the fight were Charles Youngblood, 53, business agent and boss of Local 147—"the downtown local"—and his wife, Loretta, 41, who was shot fatally in the breast. Youngblood was shot twice in his right arm during the exchange of bullets in his home at 2227 Monroe street.

Youngblood shattered the tradition of his union by naming Wallace as the slayer. He did this when he was told that his dying wife had whispered, "Artie Wallace shot me."

In 1939 both Youngblood and his wife were shot but they refused to help authorities solve the crime.

Time and time again during the more than 20 years that Wallace and Youngblood have been prominent in union affairs they have been picked up by police with weapons or the materials to whip businessmen into line—window breaking devices. They always avoided conviction, except for the times when Youngblood was a common, garden variety of holdup man.

Sent to Prison for Robbery.

In 1920 Youngblood was sentenced to Joliet penitentiary for armed robbery. Wallace was instrumental in getting him out of prison, and sponsored his parole in 1925. Returned for violation of parole when he was mixed up with bootlegging hoodlums, Youngblood again was paroled in 1930.

Wallace was the leading defendant in the federal indictment in 1928 of painters union officials and business agents, charging racketeering in restraint of trade. It was reported that a defense fund of $110,000 was exacted from union members. The jury failed to agree, altho in later civil proceedings an injunction was issued to halt the offensive practices.

Previously Wallace was acquitted in the state courts on a charge of malicious mischief. During his troubles of that period Wallace was elected president of the Chicago Building Trades council.

Elected to District Council.

Eight years ago Youngblood, the ex-convict, was elected to the district council. His brushes with the law, and disclosure by the state's attorney's office two years ago that he was on the pay roll of the Miscellaneous Employés union in an unknown capacity, failed to shake his position in the painters' union.

"Everybody knows that most painters are mild, peaceable fellows, but they are humanly inclined not to oppose the man with a gun," Sergt. Barnes said. "That's how the 'muscle men' get elected—and usually by legal methods."

Youngblood said he doesn't know why Wallace went gunning for him. He said that after a routine union meeting Thursday night he met Wallace, who was drunk and muttering, "I always thought you were my friend." Youngblood and his wife went with Wallace for two hours of drinking and talking, then left him to return home.

Invade Youngblood Home.

An hour and a half later Wallace and two companions appeared at the Youngblood home and the shooting started.

"My guess is that some one had been telling Wallace that Youngblood was plotting to get his job," Sergt. Barnes said.

Youngblood failed to get his freedom on bond yesterday in a hearing before Chief Justic Robert Jerome Dunne in Criminal court. There will be another hearing on the petition for a writ of habeas corpus Monday morning.

Police said that Wallace will be charged with murder even tho they fear that Youngblood may refuse to testify against him. They said Mrs. Youngblood's deathbed statement is sufficient to support the charge.

Stormy History of Union.

The painters' union has had a stormy career almost from its inception as an affiliate of the Knights of Labor in the pioneering stage of labor organization in 1880.

In the last decade at least seven murders have been traced to the union's affairs, not including that of Mrs. Youngblood. None of them has been solved.

In 1931 Frank Carr, financial secretary of the union, was shot to death. During the summer of 1934 Michael [Bubs] Quinlan, prohibition gangster suspected of seeking union control, and Roy Thompson, a union official, were killed. Two years later assassins missed George Henneman, secretary treasurer of local 191, but killed his wife, Elsie. In 1937 Robert A. Shields, financial secretary of local 184, was added to the list. James Dungan, business agent of local 191, was killed in 1938 after an earlier attempt upon his life had failed.

UNION EXECUTIVE MUST GET ALONG WITHOUT GUARD

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday authorized the removal of a police guard from Frank Wodylak, international vice president of the roofers' union, who has been investigating affairs of Chicago local 11 since April 8.

Sergt. George Barnes of the police labor squad told Commissioner Allman that Wodylak had promised to clear up the union affairs by July 1, but he did not do so and has continued to have the protection of two of Barnes' men 16 hours a day. And Barnes has many other labor troubles that need attention.

Also, Sergt. Barnes complained that Wodylak was not coöperating with the state's attorney's office in the investigation of union affairs as he had promised to do. Wodylak had an attorney, Joseph M. Jacobs, oppose the state's petition for a subpena to bring in the union's records before Judge Harold G. Ward in Criminal court yesterday. That hearing was continued until Monday.

The case in Criminal court is connected with the prosecution of Harold Erlandson, who is charged with the slugging of Lawrence Belles, a rebelling union member who asked for intervention by the international organization—the United Slate, Tile, and Composition Roofers, Damp, and Waterproof Workers' association [AFL].

Logansport, Ind., July 17 [Special].—Commander P. T. Stonemetz of the Bunker Hill air base today announced the acquisition by the navy of three auxiliary air fields, two in Cass county and one in Howard county. Approval of the civil aeronautics authority is awaited on two other Cass county auxiliary fields selected by the navy.

ARRAIGN THREE CHICAGOANS HERE FOR AIDING SPIES

One Man, Two Women Held in $50,000 Bonds.

Three Chicagoans—two of them tearful—were arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on charges of aiding one of eight Nazi spies and saboteurs now on trial for their lives before a military commission in Washington, D. C.

In New York yesterday, three men and a woman were arraigned on the same charges filed here against the Chicago trio. Accused of assisting Edward John Kerling, Nazi who landed in Florida, were Miss Hedwig Engemann, Helmut Leiner, and Anthony Cramer. They were held in $50,000 bonds each for hearing July 31. Herman Christian Faje, accused of giving aid to two other saboteurs, was arraigned separately in Brooklyn, and held in bonds of $25,000 for the same hearing as the other three.

The Chicagoans, two women and a man, pleaded not guilty and were held to the federal grand jury in bonds of $50,000 each. They are Otto Richard Wergin and his wife, Kate Martha, of 5416 South Wood street, and Mrs. Lucille Froehling, 3643 North Whipple street.

It was understood that when their cases are presented to the grand jury, United States Attorney J. Albert Woll may ask that treason charges be placed against them.

Expect Additional Defendants.

Mrs. Froehling is the wife of Walter Froehling, an uncle of Herbert Hans Haupt, 22 years old, of Chicago, who went to Germany in 1941, was trained as a saboteur and was landed on the Florida coast from a submarine last month with seven other Nazi agents.

It was reported Froehling will be arraigned here whenever available after the Washington hearing, and with him, Mrs. Erna Haupt, 2234 Fremont street, mother of the young saboteur, and his father, Hans Max. The elder Haupt, it was said at the United States courthouse, has suffered a mental collapse and is under guard in a sanitarium in the Chicago vicinity.

FBI Guards Prisoners.

The three prisoners, shackled to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, were led in from the marshal's office where they had been lodged temporarily after having been taken from undisclosed places of confinement. The prisoners stood as Walker three times read the charges against them, beginning with Wergin.

"From June 17 up to June 27," he read, "Otto Richard Wergin did unlawfully receive, relieve, comfort, aid and assist the said Herbert Hans Haupt, knowing at all times he was an enemy of the United States and was acting for and on behalf of the German reich and that said Herbert Hans Haupt had unlawfully entered and come into the United States for the purpose of committing acts of sabotage, espionage, and other hostile acts against the peace and dignity of the United States."

Wergin Is Maudlin.

Wergin, who was tearful as he was led in, began to weep as Walker read. Asked for his plea, he could only shake his head. A not guilty plea was entered. Mrs. Wergin was next. Wearing a brown and white print dress, she kept her face hidden with a tan purse. She listened calmly to the charge and when asked for her plea, faced Commissioner Walker and replied firmly: "Not guilty."

Wergin seized his wife's hand in both of his, kissing it and sobbing aloud until two bailiffs ordered him to pull himself together. Mrs. Froehling, who wore dark glasses with white rims, wept quietly into a white handkerchief, until she was asked to plead. Then she wiped her eyes and answered in a clear voice: "No, sir, I am not guilty."

After the pleas had been entered, Woll demanded that in keeping with the offenses charged, a high bond be set. Walker proposed $50,000 each and the government expressed agreement.

Two Held Are Aliens.

If fines and prison terms are imposed upon the saboteurs on trial in Washington, one-half their punishment will be imposed upon the Chicagoans in the event they are found guilty, according to federal law. If the saboteurs are sentenced to death the maximum for the Chicagoans will be 10 years and a $10,000 fine each.

In addition to the six charged with aiding Haupt and his gang, the FBI is holding Harry Jaques and his wife, Emma, 229 West North avenue, as enemy aliens.

Agents found $3,600 in $50 bills hidden in a coffee jar in the Jaques apartment. It had been given them by Hermann Neubauer, another spy.

Trials of all three couples were set for Aug. 5, beginning at 2 p. m. in the federal court.

BROTHER OF RAF PILOT SENTENCED AS DRAFT EVADER

Robert Watson Barker, 29 years old, Cornell university graduate and son of a wealthy Highland Park manufacturer and Canadian war veteran, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to three years in prison on a charge of draft evasion.

Robert W. Barker.

Barker made a lengthy speech to the court. He said he believes in passive resistance and asked if he might be paroled to India in the event of a Japanese invasion there, so he could assist Gandhi in passively resisting the Japs. When he concluded Judge Sullivan said: "Your reasoning is mistaken, twisted, and disordered."

On the plea of his father, William H. Barker, and Attorney George Mason, Judge Sullivan ordered a stay of sentence until July 23. The younger Barker has a brother in the Canadian air force.

In other draft evasion cases Elijah Rose, 34 years old; John Hazziez, 39, and Henry Randall, 37, all Negroes, were sentenced to three year prison terms.

U. S. RESTS CASE AGAINST FOUR IN SABOTEUR TRIAL

Florida Evidence Remains to Be Presented.

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Cases against four of the eight Nazi spies and saboteurs on trial for their lives before a military commission were completed today, the ninth of the trial.

Still to be presented is the evidence against four remaining defendants, and such defense as the eight may offer.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, president of the commission, announced the prosecution had rested its case against the four defendants who landed on Long Island, N. Y., from a submarine. The others, also brought to the coast on a U-boat, landed in Florida.

Seven Agents Heard.

Slowness of the proceeding apparently resulted from the time-consuming reading of many lengthy documents. Gen. McCoy said the reading of one long document, started yesterday, was completed this morning. Seven Federal Bureau of Investigation witnesses were examined and cross-examined during the afternoon. In addition photographs of articles which were found on the Florida beach were presented to the commission.

The four against whom the prosecution has completed its case are George John Dasch, Ernest Peter Burger, Heinrich Harm Heinck, and Richard Quirin. The other defendants are Edward John Kerling, Herbert Haupt, Hermann Neubauer, and Werner Thiel.

Specific Charges Listed.

They are accused of being enemies of the United States, acting on behalf of Germany, and of unlawfully entering this country for the purpose of committing sabotage, espionage, and other hostile acts in violation of the laws and articles of war.

Fourteen persons described as being their "immediate contacts" in this country have been apprehended, with official indications that additional arrests might be expected.

WHICHARD HELD ON $25,000 BOND; CASE SET JULY 22

Taylor M. Whichard, described by federal officials as the "Texas Dillinger," was held on $25,000 bond by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday on a charge of violating the federal firearms act which prohibits possession of firearms by a person convicted of a felony. The case was continued to July 22.

Agents of the federal bureau of investigation and city police arrested Whichard, who is 33 years old, last Saturday while he sat in a north side restaurant with his wife and their 6 year old son.

Last December, Whichard and Jene Paul Norris, 21, now held at Sulphur, Okla., robbed an Evansville, Ind., couple of $7,400 in cash plus jewelry in the Stevens hotel. Whichard escaped from the Texas state penitentiary April 21, 1941.

FBI HOLDS RADIO ANNOUNCER ON ALIEN CHARGES

Baltimore, Md., July 17 (AP).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today the arrest of Heinzdieter Baron von Schoenermarck, a native of Germany who, the FBI said, had been a radio announcer and news commentator at Frederick, Md., since September, 1941.

A complaint was filed yesterday, the FBI said, with United States Commissioner D. A. Wolfinger of Hagerstown charging Schoenermarck with fraudulently representing himself as a citizen of the United States and with violating the alien registration regulations by falsely assuming the name of Brandon Roberts, under which name, the FBI continued, he was known and employed at Frederick.

The FBI said he was a native of Heidelberg, Germany, and that he arrived in this country in May, 1929.

Schoenermarck denied falsely representing his citizenship.

GERMAN ALIENS' HOMES RAIDED IN NEW JERSEY

Newark, N. J., July 17 (AP).—The homes of 65 German aliens were raided today and last night as the federal bureau of investigation renewed its drive on the German-American bund.

E. C. Conroy, special agent in charge of the Newark and New York offices of the FBI, said a quantity of wartime contraband was seized, and an undisclosed number of persons taken into custody for transfer to Ellis Island.

He said the raids were directed at the homes of every German alien in the state, not in custody already, who belonged to the bund or who was known to have made regular visits to the bund's Camp Nordland at Andover.

Handbook Squads Seize 7 in Three Downtown Raids

Policemen of the commissioner's office raided three alleged handbooks late yesterday and arrested seven men. From the basement at 411 South Wabash avenue they chased 15 customers and arrested James Fullano, 32 years old, and Aristes Santos, 49. Eight customers were ordered out of a pool room at 31 North Wacker drive, and Harry Greenberg, 30, and Albert Hornstein, 28, were arrested. In the rear of a barber shop at 725 South State street, the policemen arrested Victor Arvina, 26; Tony Gennett, 46, and George Murray, 37.

HERE IS NAVY'S STORY OF WAR IN ALASKAN AREA

Reviews Air Blows on Japs in Three Islands.

army air forces that an aircraft carrier had been damaged and a cruiser sunk.

Counting both the navy and army reports, the toll of Japanese ships in the area now stands at nine damaged, one believed sunk, and five sunk.

In addition, the navy communique disclosed, "at least seven enemy aircraft have been destroyed and our pilots' reports indicate damage and possible destruction of several others."

"A number of our aircraft have been lost," said the communique which added that "operations against the enemy in this area continue."

Hit Oil Tanks.

Details of damage at Dutch Harbor and Fort Mears were given for the first time and showed that in addition to the burning of the Northwestern, a warehouse and a few oil tanks were hit and set afire and one empty aircraft hangar was hit.

The navy linked the attack on the Aleutians, particularly the initial Dutch Harbor raid, directly to the action at Midway, describing the whole maneuver as "a two pronged thrust at our westernmost possessions."

It was added that the size of the forces involved in the Midway action, where the Japanese attacked with about 80 ships, "shows the attack on Midway to have been the primary objective."

In all the Aleutian actions, the official account stressed, shore defenses were ready for action and in the case of the initial Dutch Harbor-Fort Mears raid ship and shore anti-aircraft batteries "opened fire five minutes before the first bomb was dropped."

No U. S. Ships Struck.

No United States ship was hit during this raid and two of the attacking planes were shot down. Damage inflicted by the enemy's bombs that first day consisted of firing a few barracks and warehouses at both the army and navy posts and of strafing a navy patrol plane.

The second raid on Dutch Harbor and Fort Mears and the simultaneous attack on Fort Glenn was made at 5 p. m. the next day, and it was at that time that the oil tanks were hit.

The navy said that "since June 4 there have been no further attacks on Dutch Harbor, Fort Mears, Fort Glenn, or any other United States military installations in Alaska or the Aleutian Islands."

Areas occupied by the enemy to date consist of Kiska, 585 nautical miles west of Dutch Harbor; Attu, 769 miles west of Dutch Harbor, and Agattu, lying roughly between Kiska and Attu and quite close to the latter.

ZILLER REFUSES TO ENTER PLEA TO 5 INDICTMENTS

Bloomington, Ill., July 17 [Special].—George W. Ziller, the portly job dispenser, and two co-defendants stood mute here today when Circuit Judge William C. Radliff asked them if they wanted to enter a plea on charges of shakedown activities in the selling of jobs at the Kankakee and Elwood ordnance plants.

Ziller was named in five indictments charging conspiracy and confidence game returned yesterday by the McLean county grand jury. Named with him in the conspiracy charges were Russell Brandt, John Meints, officials of Ziller's Weston Democratic club, and Zepha Gullion, a former state employé and now a worker at the Elwood plant.

Brandt and Meints apeared in court with Ziller while a bondsman posted bonds of $2,000 each for Brandt and Meints and $19,000 for Ziller. Joseph A. Londrigan, attorney for Ziller, would not comment on a report that Ziller may seek a change of venue from McLean county. Judge Radliff said the trial will be in September.

WHEN MERCURY GOES UP COUNTY AIDS BOG DOWN

Efforts to reach the County building press room were fruitless at 4 p. m. yesterday. The operator would give one quick ring. If no answer, no more effort. Finally she was asked to ring until somebody did answer.

"Well," said the operator, "perhaps the newspaper boys went home early like most of those in the building, working for the county, did today. Most of the offices closed at 2 o'clock.

"Why? Is it some kind of a holiday?"

"O, no! On account of the heat!"

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

E. H. P. writes: "I have been sending about a package a month to my husband now overseas. The last letter I had from him, written June 15, said he had not received a single package. Is there any way of knowing that the packages are being sent or an attempt made to deliver them? He cables about every two weeks and we answer each one, altho our cables to him have apparently not been delivered. What in the world is wrong? I thought it was important the boys get mail!"

ANSWER: Almost every mail brings letters like this from relatives of men in service who feel they have lost touch with the men. Little do they realize the great effort made to get mail thru to the troops. In the continental United States, letters are sent out onto the field for delivery to the men on task duty and maneuvers away from their posts. Packages and newspapers are held at the post until the men return. Overseas delivery, however, is not such a simple matter. Even in peacetimes it normally takes a letter or package about 27 to 32 days to reach Australia and some other points in the Pacific. Similarly it takes from 7 to 11 days for a letter or package to reach points in Europe.

In wartime the problems of transport are multiplied a thousand fold. The movement of mail overseas, especially into combat areas, is necessarily articulated to the movement of military supplies and reënforcements. The time a ship or plane shall depart with mail cannot be decided by postal needs, but must be considered as only a part of the problem of the armed forces' need for tanks, guns, and other equipment. The problem is complicated by the fact packages to service men must be stored to await shipment. While candies and the like might boost the morale of the soldier, perishables may spoil and should not be sent. Razor blades, cigarets, and things of that type are more practical for the soldier and will not spoil. Semiperishables destined for overseas shipment should be hermetically sealed and well cushioned.

The "V" mail stationary, now available in many stores, serves to expedite foreign mail because it is photographed on 16 mm. film and enlarged again at destination, saving an enormous amount of lost space, and can be sent by plane. Cables are usually accepted on a "possible delivery basis." The mailing of packages overseas is limited to one a week. The package must not weigh more than 11 pounds, or be more than 18 inches in length, or 42 inches in length and girth combined.

L. C. asks: "Could you tell me if there is a place in the army or navy now for a refrigerating engineer?"

ANSWER: All branches of the service are anxious to get qualified men in any of the engineering fields. If you are a graduate engineer and have a degree, plus actual experience in your field you should apply at the office of Naval Officer Procurement, Board of Trade building, Chicago, or the office of Personnel Placement, 219 South Clark street, Chicago. Army recruiting is at 515 South Franklin street.

D. W. B. writes: "I would like to enlist in the merchant marine as an engineering cadet, but I have been unable to find out anything."

ANSWER: You should write to the Supervisor, Merchant Marine Cadet Training, Coast Guard Headquarters, Washington, D. C. The age limits are 18 to 23. The vision requirement is 20/20, and the applicant must pass the same physical examination as for officers in the navy. Candidates must have at least 12 high school credits.

DEMAND AUSSIES' PREMIER BLOCK COAL 'ANARCHY'

Paper Says Idle Workers Play Enemy's Game.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, July 17.—A demand that Prime Minister John Curtin take steps to end what was termed anarchy in the coal fields was sounded today by newspaper thruout Australia.

A number of federal officials added their voices to the newspaper protests at the work stoppages in coal and other industries, which, they asserted, are making it difficult to maintain a 100 per cent war effort. Twelve coal mines with an output of 10,000 tons a day lie idle in New South Wales.

The term anarchy was applied by the miners themselves to describe a situation brought about by a small minority of coal workers who disregard the orders of their leaders. Miners of the southern delegate board described the activities of workers who had laid down their tools as "anarchy and disloyalty."

Coal Stocks at Danger Level.

The Sydney Daily Telegraph declared that coal stocks have fallen to the danger level in South Australia, where the state premier has warned householders that the rationing of gas and electricity is imminent.

Commonwealth Commissioner Norman Mighell said: "The coal position never has been worse. Unless there is a speedy and permanent improvement in production, the greatest difficulty will be found in maintaining the flow of arms and other supplies."

The mines could easily supply all the coal needed "if the employés would work anything like full time," Mighell added. He charged that work stoppages occur for trivial reasons.

Under the heading, "Coal Scandal Must Be Ended," the influential Sydney Morning Herald editorialized: "An honest statement of the facts is overdue."

Half Million Tons Lost.

The Herald pointed out that the prime minister himself had said that mine stoppages in the first six months of 1942 alone had cost Australia a half million tons of coal. Recalling that the miners have had their pay raised, their hours shortened, and a pension plan applied since the start of the war, the Herald asserted that crippling the industry is "playing the enemy's game."

"Fearless action" must be taken by the government, its editorial declared.

Mighell's statement on the state of the coal industry followed the refusal of the war cabinet to approve a request by the miners' union that its members be released from the army to work in the coal fields.

Meanwhile, the authorities were concerned over the possibility that 1,900 workers at a Sydney aircraft plant would walk out because of the failure of the management to reinstate a dismissed shop steward.

Sale of Service Pins Reaches 66,875 Total

The sale of service pins reached 66,875 yesterday, when 300 pins were sold across the counters of The Tribune public service offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in the Tribune tower. An additional 154 pins were sold thru the mail. The pins indicate the relationship of the wearer to a service man. Profits will go to the United Service Organizations.

DETROIT CAR, BUS STRIKERS VOTE TO RESUME WORK

Mayor, Union Heads Want to Fire Them.

Detroit, Mich., July 17 [Special].—Participants in a wildcat strike that disrupted this war rushed city's transportation system thruout the day voted at a five hour meeting tonight to return to work. There was some doubt, however, as to whether their action would result in a complete restoration of service immediately.

Officials of the municipally owned system said they were prepared to carry out Mayor Edward J. Jeffries' order to suspend the strikers and to refuse to let them return to work, a stand concurred in by union leaders who had repudiated the walkout.

"I am glad this strike is over but I am still mad and bitterly disappointed that it ever happened," the mayor said. "I have made no change in my attitude that the leaders must be punished. We are serving 2,000,000 people with this transportation system and it must be maintained at all costs."

Delays Much War Work.

Army officers said the strike, which stalled about one-fourth of the city's street cars and buses, had affected adversely war work in virtually all major plants in the Detroit area. Large numbers of industrial workers were stranded at downtown street corners and prevented from reaching their jobs in war plants.

The strikers, on foot and in automobiles, pursued buses, stoned them, and forced them to the curb. They ejected nonstriking operators and forced passengers into the street. They stopped street cars by standing on tracks, pulling trolleys, and throwing switches.

The aid of federal troops to quell the disorder was offered by Col. A. B. Quinton Jr. of the local army ordnance district, but Mayor Jeffries declined "for the time being." He said, however, he would put troops on cars and buses if such action became necessary.

Halt One-Fourth of Runs.

Company officials estimated that the strikers numbered only from 200 to 350 of the union's 4,000 workers employed by the department of street railways. They reported, however, that the picketing and harassing of this relatively small group had halted the operation of 50 out of 280 scheduled street car runs and 126 out of 448 scheduled bus runs.

The strike was voted Tuesday night by a minority of union members who overruled the advice of their officers. They had complained about what they said was undue delay on wage arbitration proceedings which have been in progress several months on the union's demand for an increase from 87 cents an hour to $1.20 for street car men's pay, and from 92 cents to $1.25 for bus drivers.

The strike immediately was repudiated by Edward Morrow, acting international president of the union, who termed the move "dangerous, illegal, and irresponsible." Other union officials agreed.

'DEAREST ANGEL' NOTES TO SLAIN GIRL REVEALED

'I Can't Resist You,' She Is Told by Jeweler.

San Leandro, Cal., July 17 [Special].—Following are some of the love letters found by police today beside the body of 20 year old Dorena Hammer, whose slaying has been admitted by Leslie B. Gireth, a wealthy Glendale, Cal., jeweler:

June 7, 1942: "My dearest angel: I had a heavenly time last week. I do hope there will be many, many more of them."

Nov. 12, 1941: "My dearest Dorena: I just love you and adore you more and more with each hour and minute that passes by . . . your darling face, your sparkling eyes, your precious smile never leave me for a second. They are enshrined deep in my heart in the warmth of that little flame that burns unceasingly. All you have to do is smile, open those big eyes wide and I just can't resist you. I would not want to if I could."

"My Darling Calcium."

April 14, 1942: "Hello, my darling calcium phosphate: I won't write much now, honey love, except that I am looking forward to Saturday, and I do hope it will be here soon because I want to hug you, squeeze you, pinch you, and kiss you. . . . So, darling, let me know soon what your plans are for the week-end—that is, when and where shall I pick you up? And now, good night, my angel. I'm thinking of you every minute and until Saturday I'm sending you billions of kisses and all of my love, Les."

May 26, 1942: "I am just dying to see you and I hope you will be able to make the morning bus but if not I will settle on the 1 p. m., too. In any event let me know which one you will take Thursday by wire and I'll see you on Friday in SM." [Probably San Mateo.]

"I have a lot of things to tell you and I can hardly wait to hold you in my arms. Your loving and adoring Les."

Million Kisses and Hug.

Feb. 25, 1942: "I am thinking about you a lot, honey love, and I'm missing you very much. Also I have to tell you a little secret. I love you and adore you more than ever.

"Good night, angel, a million kisses and a great big hug."

Feb. 7, 1942: "I just love you and adore you and want to be with you. I want to see you, look at you, kiss you and hug you, baby you and tease you. I want to hear you sing and I want to watch you eating a double dessert. I want to adore those darling little feet and I want to muss up your hair. I just want to be with you, my darling. O, so very much."

Oct. 19, 1941: "My dearest Angel: Your love means a life full of happiness to me instead of a mere existence. My precious love, they [your letters] were wonderful, every line, every word tells me you love me and I wonder if I can ever deserve the great happiness that your love means to me.

"Dorena, my precious, you gave me your love and faith, my greatest treasures. I will guard them unceasingly and no one will ever take them away from me."

Some of the girl's letters to "Les" hinted at parting. One, dated July 1, 1942, said:

"Honey, remember I am going away for four or five months, so, darling, don't get that little piece of land until I get back. Rember, angel, we talked that over in the car."

Marvelous Times Together.

"June 29, 1942: Les love, it was wonderful seeing you again, darling. Every time I get away from you too long—but then when I am with you and you look at me with those beautiful eyes I just know that I love and always will. We do have such a marvelous time together, don't we angel? Everything seems like so much fun and the world seems so beautiful when I am with you. My angel, I love you and will wait impatiently until I can see you again.

"Always yours, Dorena."

May 11, 1942: "I wish I could hold you in my arms and tell you how much I love you."

May 19, 1942: "I love you. I love you. I adore you and would just love to be going out with you tonight, Dorena."

Squash Blossoms Brilliant

July 17, 1942.

WITH all the floral competition on the Wheaton farm at this time of the year no one would think of going into the vegetable garden to find the largest and most brilliant flower of the week. The farmyards have their roses and hollyhocks and snapdragons, and there are about 30 wildflowers in bloom in the woodlots and along the roads, but the lowly squash plants in the farm vegetable garden have an orange colored blossom this week which makes the cultivated flowers and wildflowers seem pale in comparison.

The squash flowers, almost hidden under the giant green leaves of the coarse plants, are about six inches in diameter. Their size can be measured, but their color is not so easily defined. One of the farm visitors remarked that the squash flowers were the color of ripe pumpkins gleaming in autumn sunshine. The gardener describes their brilliant color as that shade which results from a blending of the red and yellow of a summer sunset. At any rate the lowly squash is having its day of glory by virtue of its beautiful blossom.

Spring Weather Good.

In general this spring and early summer has provided excellent weather for the field crops which send deep roots into the ground for moisture, but the gardener was saying last week that the dry spell which predominated during early July left some of the vegetables in need of moisture. Early this week the drouth broke and an all-night rain, accompanied by a driving wind, put the garden back into A1 shape.

The wind which accompanied the rainfall did some damage to the second planting of sweet corn, knocking over about half of the young stalks. Most of these were not permanently damaged, however, since the gardener was able to hoe black dirt up around the bases of the stalks and get them started growing in a vertical instead of a semi-horizontal direction.

Wheat Ripening Fast.

The farm manager said that the rain did no damage to the wheat crop, which fast is approaching the harvest stage. A hard rain coming when the wheat is ripe often will lodge and tangle the stalks so badly that the job of combining the grain becomes a major project, but luckily this did not occur as a result of the recent rainstorm on the Wheaton place.

The wheat harvest probably will start next week unless there is more rain, since the job is contingent on the field drying enough so that the combine can do its job without mirring. A few more days of sunshine will bring the grain to full maturity.

$35,213 DONATION PUTS USO DRIVE NEAR 75% MARK

The United Service Organizations war fund campaign almost reached the three quarter mark toward its goal of $1,749,432 yesterday. Contributions totaling $35,213, reported by workers in the business division of the drive, brought the total to date to $1,309,481.

The largest donation of the day was $14,171 from the city employés. The gift, collected under the leadership of John P. Wilson, deputy commissioner of public works who was appointed by Mayor Kelly to conduct the city drive, was cleared thru the public departments group headed by Percy F. Brautigam.

Speakers at the Palmer House luncheon meeting included Holman D. Pettibone, general campaign chairman, who called for concerted action in the next 10 days to reach the goal by July 31.

GROWING STORM FLAILS PETRILLO 'RULE OF THE AIR'

Amateur Broadcast Ban Stirs U. S. Leaders.

Washington, D. C., July 17 [Special].—Mounting protests from authoritative sources today focused national attention on the asserted injustice of the recent action by James C. Petrillo, czar of the American Federation of Musicians, in barring from the air the broadcasts of students of the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich.

The music dictator forced off the NBC network the camp's well known symphony orchestra which annually for 12 years has broadcast the camp's music festival. Petrillo said his union's contract with the network forbids performances by amateurs.

Appeal to President.

A direct appeal to President Roosevelt was made by a camp student committee which asked for "some action which will allow us to continue." A telegraphed message to the President said, "Our broadcasts always have been one of the highlights of our study here. They have been an inspiration to music students all over the United States as well as to ourselves."

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], told the senate he was demanding an investigation. He said he had written Chairman James L. Fly of the communications commission asking an inquiry and adding that he wanted to know how the fundamental right of these "amateurs" to perform was denied them.

Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] charged in connection with the matter that while the rights of aliens are being protected by the highest government authority, the rights of American citizens are being imperiled.

"Racketeers Rule the Air."

"The old phrase, 'free as the air,' has been destroyed," Hoffman declared. "The racketeers have, by one Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, extended their rule to include dominion over the air.

"For 12 years or more school children have held each year a music festival at Interlochen, which, because of its excellence, has been broadcast over the air. Now comes Petrillo and says that no longer should they be heard over the air.

"Just who is this Petrillo? America's musical Hitler? By what right does he issue these decrees? Who is protecting his rule? Why not a little of the four freedoms here at home?

"Overlong, American workers have been forced to buy permits to work, even on defense jobs. The President just the other day said there should be no discrimination of employment as against aliens in factories engaged in industries working on defense jobs. But on land and sea the President's political supporters, the labor politicians and unions and the racketeers for many months—yes, even since Pearl Harbor—have denied to native Americans the right which the President insists shall now be extended to aliens."

Werrenrath Backs Students.

At the camp, Reinald Werrenrath, the baritone and a leading member of Petrillo's union, ranked himself on the side of the students, asserting he was "at a loss to understand" the union president's action. He said he would make a report of the case to Fred W. Birnbach of New York, union secretary.

"I am sure a man of his [Petrillo's] education and insight into musical matters undoubtedly will change his opinion," Werrenrath said, "because musical education of the kind conducted at the camp is something America cannot and should not do without."

Werrenrath said he did not understand why Petrillo "changed his mind after the broadcasts had been given for 12 years without objection."

Believes It "Hasty" Action.

"I am sure," he added, "that it will turn out to be something that was done in haste and without sufficient investigation and that fuller investigation will induce him to support organizations such as this which are devoted to the spread of musical knowledge and music appreciation."

In New York a dozen young people who said they were members of the "United Youth for Victory" organization paraded before the Waldorf-Astoria hotel where Petrillo has an apartment. They passed out handbills urging appeals for a federal investigation of the Interlochen action, to "curb Petrillo's power," and asserting that "the people, not Jimmy Petrillo own the air waves, down with Dictator Petrillo."

SYNOPSIS.

When Juliet Johnson, New York dancer, goes to Mexico to visit her London showgirl friend, Elaine, who has married Sir James Lynn, British oil magnate, she finds her hostess invited her there to cloak an illicit romance with Harold, earl of Festone. Six weeks later Lord Festone is murdered, and among the murder suspects are: Sir James, who threatened to kill both Harold and Elaine; Mrs. Sharon Lathrop, much married divorcée, whose first marriage Harold broke up; Philip Rankin, old friend of Sharon's and former classmate of Harold's; Maria, Elaine's maid, who has posed for some of Harold's paintings; Elaine, and even Juliet. Festone died of a bullet wound, but no gun has been found. Juliet has fallen in love with Philip, but she is afraid he is in love with Sharon, even tho he tells Juliet he loves her. Juliet sees Sir James burning letters and manages to recover enough of the charred fragments to discover they are notes of warning about Elaine's and Harold's affair, and that they were written on her own typewriter. She copies them trying to fill in the missing lines, tears the copy up and throws it in her wastebasket. The next morning the copy is gone and Juliet hides the original notes in the toes of her red evening slippers. Police find the copy in Sir James' bureau drawer. Juliet, frightened, at first denies she wrote the copy but later, when confronted by Morelos, head of the investigating police, who tells her only her fingerprints are on the copy, she admits everything. But her story doesn't hold up as police fail to find the original notes in the toes of her red evening slippers. Sir James denies he ever burned or received any such letters. In the meantime, two guns and a cigaret case of Sir James' which Juliet has seen on the living room mantle after the murder, disappear. The cigaret case turns up later in Festone's home, wrapped in a handkerchief initialed "S. L." Juliet discovers it when she, Philip, and Sharon sneak into the house to recover some jade elephants Sharon says belong to her. Juliet takes the handkerchief but leaves the case. As they depart, she sees Maria in the court yard. Police question Elaine about money they think she gave Festone, but she denies ever having given him any. Juliet goes to Maria's room to search for the missing letters. She fails to find them but she does find $2,000 in currency and a bank book in the name of Mary Anderson. The next day Juliet follows Maria to an orphanage and learns from a cab driver that Maria visits her small son there each week. That night Philip asks Juliet to marry him and just after he leaves her some one shoots at Juliet. Sir James enters right after the shot is fired and they try a number of times to reach Philip at his club but he is not there, tho he told Juliet that he was going straight to his club and go to bed.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

MARIA'S SON.

Juliet left word with Miguel, the night boy, that if Mr. Rankin called she could be found in Lady Lynn's room. She was to be awakened, she directed, no matter when he called.

But the moon crossed the sky and the sun rose—and there had been no call from Philip.

By morning Juliet, who had slept but fitfully, was sick with fear over what might have happened to Philip. Perhaps the mysterious assailant who had fired at her had shot at him, too. Perhaps his body, even now, was being discovered in an arroyo by some peon. Perhaps he had been in an accident and was now lying in a hospital calling to her in words his attendants could not understand.

O! There was an endless number of things which might have befallen him. She pictured the horrible fates that were his—visioned his mutilated body lying still before her.

When she could stand it no longer, she slipped into her negligee and bedroom slippers and ran thru the living room to the phone. She didn't want to use the one in Elaine's room lest she wake her.

It was 7 a. m. She called the club, scolding herself for a foolish gesture. Of course, he hadn't come in. If he had, he would have called her.

She pushed her flowing hair out of her face as she listened to the telephone operator ringing his room—buzzz—buzzz—buzzzzz.

"Hello?"

She could feel her heart pounding. The weight of the fear that had been burdening her thruout the night suddenly slipped away leaving her light-headed and dizzy.

"Philip? Where were you?"

"Yes? Who's there? asked Philip sleepily. "Who is this? What?"

"It's Juliet, darling. I said, where were you? I've been worrying about you all night."

"Well, for heavens's sake! You woke me up out of a sound sleep!"

"But, Philip, I was so worried. I thought you'd been in an accident or something and I—I——"

"Listen, Julie. I'm too sleepy to know what you're saying. Go back to bed. I'll call you later. Good-by."

The phone clicked.

She could hardly believe her ears. They must have been cut off! She flashed the operator. But the operator confirmed the act.

"Your party has hung up. You were not disconnected. Do you wish me to call again?"

Juliet slammed down her receiver. That would teach her to waste her worry on a man! She had spent an almost sleepless night over Philip—and having at last reached him to tell him how frantic she was, Philip had hung up!

Her fury was feminine—unreasonable as the changing wind. For the moment she completely forgot the original purpose of her call.

She started back to Elaine's room—then caught sight of Maria in the patio.

This time, when there was nobody around, would be as good a time as any to talk to Maria.

The inner voice warned her that she was treading on dangerous ground, but she was one of those genuinly earnest girls who acted first and regretted or rejoiced afterward.

"Maria?"

"Si, señorita! You rise early!" the Mexican's eyes were catlike slits.

"Maria, I think for your own sake and mine and Sir James' and anybody else concerned—you ought to tell the police what you know about Lord Festone."

Blindly she shot her arrow into the air. It hit no mark.

"What I know? I know nothing, señorita," Maria replied, licking her lips. "O, I know who he was. I know he made eyes at Lady Lynn. I know she wanted to marry him. I know that once he and Señora Lathrop were like this——" she held up the second and third fingers of her brown left hand to show that they were tight together—— "and I know that he died of a bullet wound, here." She pointed to the spot behind her left ear. "But the police know that, too, señorita. What else could I tell them?"

"Why, I—I—I" Juliet faltered. She had not planned the attack. But she picked another arrow from her quiver, strung it to the bow, pulled, and let go.

"Perhaps an entry book from the National bank in El Paso, has something to do with the murder."

That arrow must have come close to the bull's-eye. Maria's narrow eyes opened, her lips tightened.

Juliet let go another.

"A serving woman does not ordinarily have a large amount of cash in her room. Perhaps that has something to do with Lord Festone."

The disdain in Maria's gaze infuriated the girl.

"You know nothing about me, señorita—and there is nothing about me in which the police might be interested," the Mexican girl whispered.

Juliet had one more shaft.

"No? But maybe the police investigating that murder might be interested in the little boy you visit at the orphanage near Mexico City."

That arrow shot home.

"You know about him, señorita?" exclaimed Maria in a loud voice that startled Juliet who had forgotten that the Mexican could speak above a whisper.

"Yes, and——" she stopped to see if she had any more arrows. She had none, but she tried hard not to show it.

Maria licked her lips again.

"And Lady Lynn, does she know?" Her voice lowered.

"I don't know," Juliet answered truthfully. "Sir James does."

"Yes, of course, he knows."

Maria's answer was simple. But her hands trembled, and a crafty look flashed into her brown eyes.

"Señorita, that is one thing I do not want Lady Lynn to know—one thing I do not want the police to find out. I—I—I——"

She seemed to be hunting for words.

"Why, Maria——"

The Mexican girl rubbed her hands violently across her eyes.

"I do not tell my private life to people when I do not have to," she said. She bit her lips. "The baby was my mistake—and—and—I have tried to keep some people from knowing. Believe me, señorita, that little boy has nothing to do with Lord Festone's death. That little boy——"

Suddenly her eyes shone with anger.

"Sir James told you!" she whispered accusingly.

"No, Maria, he didn't."

"Then you found out when you followed me in that other taxi."

"Yes, I did."

Now Maria had the quiver and the arrows.

"Señorita, why do you spy on me? What have I done to you?"

Juliet found herself embarrassed and confused at the woman's challenge.

"Well, Maria—I'm in desperate trouble. And I'm in danger. If I don't find out who wants to harm me, no one will find out for me."

"Why don't you leave then?" the woman asked with cold logic. "Why do you go around prying and making trouble? Isn't there trouble enough? Or do you want more?"

Her eyes gleamed as she asked the questions.

BILL APPROVED OUTLAWING WAR CONTRACT FEES

House Group Acts as One 'Broker' Is Indicted.

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—The house naval committee unanimously approved today a bill outlawing commission fees on government contracts which have netted agents millions of dollars in recent months.

Alexander Stone.

Almost simultaneously a federal grand jury here returned an indictment against dapper, dark haired Alexander Stone, charging him with unlawfully receiving commissions while a government employé.

Stone, a former $4,200 a year Federal Housing administration employé was the first of the commission agents to be questioned by the naval committee which is investigating war profiteering. He was alleged to have received $27,074 as a 5 per cent fee on $541,491 worth of business obtained by the Lionel corporation of Irvington, N. J., between April 6, 1940, and March 1, 1941. At that time, he was still an FHA employé.

Conviction would carry a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on each count.

Seek to Recover Money.

Robert E. Kline, speaking for the navy, said that the department was prepared to take steps to recover Stone's commissions. Kline is an advisor in the office of Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal.

The naval committee's vote followed three days of public hearings during which some of the agents, with a coast to coast clientele of manufacturers, acknowledged tremendous profits as their business in obtaining contracts multiplied under the impetus of war.

But approval of the legislation came only after a last minute protest from Morton Dukehart of Baltimore and Washington. Calling himself an "old line" commission agent, he complained that the committee, in its effort to get at the "unscrupulous" agents, was "using a shotgun to hit all of us."

But Chairman Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], held out firmly against any exceptions. "There is a loophole in the present law, and that's where all the sheep have gone thru the fence. We can't blow hot and cold on this. This iniquitous situation has shocked the whole country."

Something "Very Wrong."

He offered that observation after Kline told the committee:

"It should be obvious that something is very wrong, and that quick action should be taken to stop profiteering at government expense."

The fees received were, he said, "entirely out of proportion to any services rendered."

The bill, in outlawing both payment and receipt of "contingent fees" for obtaining government contracts, would establish a maximum penalty for violation of six months imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

The measure, as now drafted, covers only navy contracts. But the committee agreed it should be broadened to cover all the government departments.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN TO OBTAIN RECAPPED TIRES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—Army and navy personnel today were made eligible for recapped tires for privately owned passenger cars used principally in necessary transportation between residence and post or on official military business where no military vehicle is available.

The Office of Price Administration, in announcing this amendment to rationing regulations, said in reply to inquiries that it will not benefit wealthy young officers in the Washington swivel chair corps who use private automobiles mainly to go to beaches, country clubs, and cocktail parties.

Military personnel heretofore could get recaps or inner tubes only under the "war worker" classification when they were acting as technical workers on construction jobs or in defense plants and had to use their own cars to get to and from work.

Even within the new eligibility classification, there is provision for careful qualification of members of either of the armed branches applying to a local war price and rationing board for a recapped tire, a recapping service, or a tube.

EIGHT INDICTED AT PEORIA IN WAR BIDDING FRAUD

Peoria, Ill., July 17 (AP).—Eight men and two supply companies were indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of conspiring to defraud the war department by collusive bidding on supplies for the Sangamon ordnance plant under construction near Springfield.

District Attorney Howard L. Doyle said the conspiracy involved collusive bidding on office supplies and equipment valued at $4,000, but added that "the scheme might have resulted in fraud running into tens of thousands of dollars if the army had not nipped it in the bud."

Among those indicted were Roy N. Lennstrum of Chicago, former director of purchases for the James Stewart corporation, contractor at the Sangamon plant.

The Simmons company and the Standard Printing company of Hannibal, Mo., were the two companies named in the indictment.

and tents. These are brick, Ma'am, brick, and just real cool. And the grass and flowers and trees. Where I've been, ma'am, there wasn't any grass at all. And real bathtubs. See them? Real bathtubs."

The barracks are two storied red brick trimmed in white with long double verandas and the thick walls and high ceilings of the turn of the century when they were built. The interior, now ready for occupancy, is quite beautiful by military standards, for it is an orderly symphony in cream and a soft blued gray.

Regulation Cots Provided.

Dormitories, with from three to 36 beds in each, fill the two floors. The beds are regulation army cots. A small trunk or foot locker is at the foot of each bed, and a metal chair is at the side. Each girl also has a standing metal locker, the interior of which she can decorate with two pictures [no more: army regulations], and a metal study table.

Sanitary facilities are in the basement. An adjoining room contains laundry tubs, ironing boards, and drying racks. The basement also houses a large playroom complete with card tables, chairs and a piano.

All in all, the war department seems to have missed very few tricks in preparing for the comfort of its first women's army corps. Fort Des Moines even has a beauty parlor, and as a final piece de resistance Col. Faith has asked the war department for one full length mirror for each barracks. This is thoroly unroutine, but so is the women's army corps.

NELSON SEEKS SHOWDOWN ON RUBBER PLANTS

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, has assumed personal direction of the government's rubber program, it was learned today, with indications that a showdown on remedies for the rubber shortage is in the making.

Shelving much of his other work in an effort to straighten out the widespread confusion, it was understood from sources who declined to be quoted that Nelson and Arthur Newhall, his rubber coördinator, have decided upon a "put up or shut up" drive to end sniping at the War Production board's synthetic rubber plans.

For the last week or so, these sources said, Nelson has been dealing directly with WPB experts involved, and has spent hours discussing various new processes for making rubber substitutes or synthetics, frequently with the inventors themselves.

Assistants emphasized that Nelson had not displaced Newhall, and has no intention of doing so. They declared the WPB boss merely is placing the accent on speed and maintaining a close personal touch with all developments.

WAR INCREASES MARRIAGES; 1941 TOTAL IS 1,679,000

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—War has brought America its biggest crop of marriages.

The census bureau estimated there were 1,679,000 weddings last year, an average of 12.6 for every 1,000 population—7.3 per cent higher than 1940 and 22.1 per cent higher than 1939.

The previous record was 12 marriages per 1,000 population in 1920 after the AEF returned from France.

ORDER SOAP MAKERS NOT TO CUT THE SUDS IN THEIR PRODUCT

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today embarked on a new field of consumer protection, ordering soap producers not to change the size or quality of soaps sold thruout the country.

Henderson said the order, called "commodity practices regulation No. 1," will guarantee to consumers that "the 500 million dollars they will spend this year on soap will buy at least as much as it does at present and that the quality will not be debased."

The regulation sets the types of soap now being sold as minimum standards for the manufacturers, and covers all forms of household soaps—toilet, laundry, flake, chip, and granulated. No reduction in the size of cake or package, or deterioration in quality or "serviceability," is permitted.

The edict applies only to manufacturers, effective July 21, but householders benefit thru the fact that retail prices of soap are controled by the universal price ceiling. The new regulation will preclude the possibility of evading price control thru changing the weight or quality of a bar or package, Henderson said.

WAGE CONTROL BEING STUDIED BY ROOSEVELT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—President Roosevelt said today that he has the problem of wage control under study and is considering means of strengthening his program for checking the inflation spiral.

Until the study is completed, Mr. Roosevelt said he would not discuss details. He said he had no idea whether he might have a special message for congress next week on inflation curbs.

He would not give his reaction to the decision of the National War Labor board which gave "little steel" workers a wage increase of 44 cents a day other than to say a 5 per cent rise in wages in the steel industry does not reflect as much in the cost of living as a similar raise would do in food industries.

He added that wages in all industries must be kept in line, however.

SLAVS TO UNITE IN VICTORY RALLY HERE TOMORROW

Back U. S. to Oust Nazis from Homelands.

Tomorrow, on the 532d anniversary of the battle of Grunwald in which the combined Polish, Lithuanian, and Czech forces defeated Teutonic knights who sought to subjugate Slavic nations, Slavs thruout the world will meet to celebrate that victory and dedicate themselves to defeat of the Nazis who now overrun their homelands.

In Chicago the celebration will be a victory rally at Soldiers' field, where, for the first time in Chicago's history, all Americans of Slavic descent will unite in a common cause—victory for their adopted land.

Slav Congress Is Sponsor.

The rally is sponsored by the American Slav congress, whose leaders estimate that more than 1,000,000 Slavic descendents live in Chicago.

The celebration will begin at 1:30 p. m. with a parade of army, navy, and Red Cross units, Boy Scout troops and groups representing the various nationalities in Soldiers' field.

Postmaster General Frank Walker will give the principal address, which will be broadcast over Mutual network stations excepting W-G-N at 2:45 p. m. Other speakers will include Col. P. F. Berezin, Russian military attaché; Mayor Kelly, Gen. Joseph Barzynski, 6th corps area quartermaster commander, who will lead the pledge to the flag; Victor Olander, representing the AFL; Van Bittner or Philip Murray of the CIO, and David L. Shillinglaw, representing Gov. Dwight H. Green.

The rally will emphasize the rôle of Chicagoans of Slavic descent in the war effort, both in the armed forces and in war industries, where an estimated 53 per cent of the workers are of Slavic ancestry.

President of the midwest division of the American-Slav congress is the Rev. Ernest Zizka, who is chairman of the rally.

LANA TURNER WEDS FORMER CHICAGO BROKER

Las Vegas, Nev., July 17 (AP).—Lana Turner, the little redhead who achieved fame as a curvaceous sweater girl, then became famous in the movies, played a return engagement before Judge George F. Marshall today.

She was married to Stephen Crane, Beverly Hills merchandising man, in a surprise elopement. Hardly any one in Hollywood knew that 22 year old Lana, former wife of Band Leader Artie Shaw, was romancing with Crane, 27, a former Chicago and New York broker. Lana said they'd been serious four months and they even had an apartment leased. They flew up from Hollywood, were married, had lunch, and returned by air in midafternoon.

Lana also flew here with Shaw for their ceremony, but they separated a few months later.

Lana nervously fumbled thru the double ring ceremony with Crane. She had difficulty placing the ring on the groom's finger, but made it on about the fifth attempt. There wasn't any fumbling, tho, when she embraced him repeatedly.

"It's wonderful," she sighed.

LEGION LAUNCHES 17 DAY CAMPAIGN FOR OLD RECORDS

The American Legion and its auxiliary yesterday started its 17 day drive to persuade phonograph fans to donate old, obsolete, groove worn, and broken records to be sold to provide funds to buy new records for the entertainment of service men. Arthur E. Canty, commander of the Cook county council of the Legion, said that Chicago fire and police stations and more than 2,000 druggists will have deposit boxes to receive the records. A house to house canvass also is being conducted.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

LEND-LEASE IS NOT A PERMANENT SOLUTION.

The Sydney Morning Herald, one of Australia's most influential newspapers, calls upon the commonwealth government to disclose in the fullest detail its undertakings under the lend-lease agreement with the United States. It points out that the government "is traditionally opposed to secret negotiations." There will be a general disposition in this country to second the proposal that lend-lease dealings be given full publicity.

The Sydney Herald assumes that lend-lease is not a temporary measure but is to continue not only thru the period of postwar reconstruction but even afterwards. The Herald suggests that the lend-lease act is designed to dovetail with the Atlantic charter's goal of "equal access to trade and raw materials" in the permanent economic reorganization of the world. Australia, it was stated, must be prepared "to make proper reciprocal concessions."

Any one who examines lend-lease in the light of a permanent working arrangement will see that its inherent limitations defeat any hope of basing a permanent economy upon it. It has no place in a money economy. It is not even a barter arrangement, for barter is trade on even terms without money exchange, whereas the tanks and planes we are shipping to Australia and the wool Australia may be shipping to us may be of unequal value, and probably are not even of approximately equal value.

No economic system will survive if the benefits are to be virtually unilateral. Pump priming was tried and failed on a national scale, and it is hardly to be expected in view of the experience that it would work on an international scale. Flourishing international trade depends on the exchange of goods in reasonably free markets. The practice of exchanging goods for credit balances that in the long run cannot be satisfied or for nothing at all is only an extension of deficit spending on a world-wide scale.

THE FAIRFAX RESOLVES.

July is the month of liberty and its claim to this distinction is not confined to our own Declaration nor to the fall of the Bastille in France. It was on July 18, 1774, that there occurred in Alexandria, Va., a meeting which was notable not only for what was done there in preparation for the Declaration of Independence, nearly two years later, but for the participation of Washington in the proceedings.

Our attention to Washington during the Revolutionary period has been directed too much to the soldier and too little to the statesman. He was not a Cincinnatus called from his plow. Just as Fort Necessity and Braddock's march prepared the way for Valley Forge and Yorktown, so did Washington's activities in the days when the colonies were making up their minds that they must be free prepare the way for the chairmanship of the Constitutional convention and the first Presidency.

By the summer of 1774 Boston had held its tea party and parliament had retaliated by closing the port. Thruout the colonies the people rallied to the support of Boston, and in Fairfax county Washington headed the subscription of funds and food to be sent to the citizens of Boston. The purpose of the meeting on July 18, over which he presided, was to act on a series of resolutions written by George Mason, the Virginia scholar who has been acclaimed as the father of the Bill of Rights. These Fairfax Resolves, as they were called, passed by a group of country gentlemen in a single county of Virginia, were among the most important of the pre-Revolutionary documents. They formed the basis not only of subsequent action by the Virginia convention but for statements in the Declaration of Independence as well.

Of the 24 resolves, the most important was that which declared that the fundamental principle of the British constitution consisted of "the people's being governed by no laws to which they had not given their consent by representatives freely chosen by themselves, who are affected by the laws they enact equally with their constituents, to whom they are accountable and whose burthens they share."

Washington was one of the two burgesses, or members of the general assembly of Virginia, from Fairfax county, while Mason was not. It was partly for this reason that he was, by action of the Alexandria meeting, instructed to present the resolves to the special meeting of the Virginia assembly on Aug. 1. This he did, and the fact no doubt contributed to establishing his title to the leadership of the patriot cause.

DIVIDED COMMAND IN ALASKA.

At a closed session of the senate's committee on military affairs Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding the army air services, is said to have testified that the military importance of the Japanese occupation of several of the Aleutian Islands has been exaggerated in the public mind.

Possibly so, tho even the least troubled of military experts will concede that our situation would be improved and that of the Japanese would be weakened if we had succeeded already in dislodging them.

The question, of course, is whether everything is being done which can and should be done to drive the Japs out. Alaska's delegate in congress, Anthony J. Diamond, complains that the army and navy contingents in the territory are still operating under separate command. He recalls the heavy price paid for divided command at Pearl Harbor and wonders why the principle of unified command, which was subsequently adopted in Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Canal Zone as well as in European and Asiatic areas, has not been accepted in Alaska.

It is a question which calls for an answer. The fact that the prevailing fogs over the Aleutians interfere with military operations may help to explain the inactivity of recent weeks, but cannot be a justification for the additional handicap of a divided command.

SOISSONS.

This was the day on which the great German retreat of 1918 began. It was not to end until Nov. 11. For four months before July 18 the Germans had held the offensive while the allies barely staved off disaster. The first great allied comeback was entrusted to the 1st and 2d American divisions and the 1st Moroccans—the premier assault division of the French army. Within five days their thrust had driven a deep wedge into the base of the German Marne salient, and, in conjunction with Franco-American attacks farther south, had rendered the German position in the salient untenable.

The battle records of the two American divisions during the World war can have had few parallels in all military history. The 1st was the first American division to reach France and the last to go home. It was the first to enter the battle line and it was still following a beaten enemy on Armistice day. It never failed to take an objective and it lost in dead, and wounded, and broken by hardship three times as many men as it numbered on mustering day. The total casualties of the 2d division in the war were as heavy. These divisions suffered about 10 per cent of the total casualties of the American Expeditionary Force. The 2d division captured 12,026 prisoners, more than one-fourth the total number captured by the AEF, and 343 cannon, about one-quarter of the total captured by the AEF.

The attack of these two divisions and the Moroccans was directed against the western face of the Marne salient toward objectives south of Soissons. The 1st came to the battle from its victory at Cantigny in May. The 2d had seen 40 days of steady fighting and had suffered a 30 per cent casualty list at Belleau Wood and came into the new battle after but six days of rest. It went sleepless for two days and nights while marching to the front line and then fought for two more days without sleep before it was relieved.

The jumpoff came at dawn July 18 after a terrific all-night storm. The terrain was intersected with ravines interspersed with open fields, except where the 5th marines of the 2d division had to fight their way thru the forest of Villers-Cotterets in an action similar to that of Belleau Wood. Losses were staggering, but the first day brought a general advance of six kilometers. At dawn on the 19th the 2d broke up a heavy counterattack and that day advanced another three kilometers. When it was relieved after dark it had captured 3,000 Germans and 66 guns, while suffering 5,000 casualties.

The 1st division was not relieved until midnight of July 22. Its attacks were pushed home against frontal machine gun fire and against 77 millimeter guns the Germans had hauled into their front lines to fire point blank into the American ranks. By the morning of the second day a sergeant was the senior remaining officer of one infantry battalion. By night of the fourth day the Americans lying in their fox holes saw the light of great fires in the southern and eastern sky. The Germans, recognizing they could no longer hold the salient, were burning villages and supply dumps preparatory to retreat.

The 1st had won a great victory. Its advance extended 11 kilometers into the most sensitive point of the salient south of Soissons. It had captured 3,800 prisoners and 70 guns, but its dead were strewn almost every yard of the way it had come. It lost 7,000 men, 1,000 of whom were killed.

The weight of the Soissons offensive was carried by American troops. From July 18 the allies, always with Americans as the spearhead of attack, rushed on in a mounting tide toward victory. The turn had come after three and one-half years of war, during which Frenchmen and Britons had continually been rocked back on their heels by the forward lunge of Germany. In the new war we have seen the same course of events. Since September, 1939, the nations now aligned with the United States have not achieved a single enduring success of importance. Defeat of the enemy again waits on the armies of America.

VOTES FOR SERVICE MEN.

Congress has been derelict in its duty of making provision for men in the armed services to vote. All but one or two of the states have statutes under which it is legally possible for service men to cast absentee ballots. What is required of the federal government is the means of making this legal possibility physically practicable. It is necessary that the war and navy departments coöperate in getting the ballots to the soldiers and sailors.

Rep. Martin, the Republican leader in the house, introduced a bill many weeks ago providing for this coöperation of the war and navy departments with state authorities. His bill has been sidetracked, possibly because of partisan prejudice by a Democratic majority which may not wish to allow a Republican any credit for getting this necessary job done. If this is the reason the Martin bill has been sidetracked, the Democrats have a bill introduced by one of their own party, Rep. Ramsay of West Virginia. Mr. Ramsay is demanding that his bill be brought to the floor of the house, an action to which there seems to be some opposition.

It is immaterial who gets the credit for drafting the legislation so long as it is passed. The failure to act is naturally chargeable to the Democratic majority which, thru its committees, controls what bills are brought to the floor of congress for discussion and passage.

Editorial of the Day

NO ASSET.

[Tulsa Tribune.]

It may be a silly retort: Well, if you don't like what we have here why don't you go back where you came from? But it is the retort that rises with your anger at the words of the American citizen, who has chosen to live in France for the past 21 years, who griped and crabbed at being questioned by United States army and navy officials and FBI agents upon his arrival at Ellis Island on the diplomatic exchange liner Drottningholm.

Lawton S. Parker, who is described as a noted portrait painter, denounced the questioning as "worse than anything he had had to endure in Europe."

After all, the nation which gives Mr. Parker refuge now has a right and a duty to protect itself. Mr. Parker is no asset. He expatriated himself by choice from the country which is now his only haven.

What's as awkward, when trying to finance a great war, as a social gain which insists on being maintained in the style to which it has become accustomed?—Detroit News.

MR. PEPYS GOES SLUMMING.

18th July—Walked in the blighted region of the north side the other evening with an artist, and we saw many relics of Chicago's antiquity and slummy streets that are supposed to fill you with horror and dismay. But the inhabitants, taking the air on their front steps and playing games on the sidewalks, seemed contented and orderly. At last my companion said, "Here is where I live," and we entered.

He had found this old frame house, maybe as old as the Chicago fire, almost a ruin and a nesting place for tramps. He had rented it for $10 a year, and then bought it for a song or two, perhaps less than $1,000. His repairs and refittings have cost him not much more, and now the place is as neat as a pin and he lives there in happiness and comfort.

He has an ancient willow tree in his front yard, and he sits on his porch under its shade, enjoying the street scenes and never envying the denizens of the Gold Coast, a few blocks away, at all. In fact, they often come to admire his little gray home in the slums, and to ask questions about his tenant in the ground floor rooms, below street level, who plays Rachmaninoff on a good piano.

So I thought, maybe this is the future of old houses in the slums. Maybe they will become the refuges of fugitives from the Gold Coast, seeking to escape the tax collector. With a small amount of money, and the ingenuity of Robinson Crusoe, and an indifference about the social standing of the Widow O'Brieninsky next door, such refugees might recolonize and civilize the slums.

There are fine houses in the Chicago slums in which a refugee could live like a merchant prince. I know of one that is a noble French château in its architecture and that cost a large fortune 50 years ago. Its asking price is less than the price of a new six-room villa on a 50-foot lot in the suburbs, but there are no bidders. It contains 24 rooms, which would be about right for me, the way my library is growing.

POEMS FOR PAM—VI.

[One year old July 22, 1942]

I looked at gifts for you today,
Pam darling, one year old—
But all the dreams looked shopworn
And all the stars were sold!
I asked the elfin storekeeper
What presents I could bring;
"To Pam?" he asked, "Why, none at all,
For Pam has everything!"

And that, of course, I had to own
Was most completely true—
For God has been most generous
In what he gives to you.
He sends the grass for carpet,
The sunlight for your hair,
A daisy chain for jumping rope,
A rainbow for your stair.

He sends the stars to guide you,
The rain to wash you, dear,
And blows a breeze to cool you
When sultry days are here.
He bids the sun to wrap you round
And warm you when it's cold—
And makes the world your picturebook,
Pam darling, one year old!

A Sentimentalist Changes His Tune.

It was a recent cool, gray dawn as I stood across from the First National Bank building awaiting any Clark street car to take me to Dearborn station. At 6:55 a. m. the bank door opened and out rushed 50 or 60 young and old ladies, mostly old, who made up the night gang—the gals who clean these immense buildings while we sleep.

From all the tales I've heard about how these old darlings raise families, send sons and daughters to school and work all sorts of weird hours, I felt like shedding a tear for them. About half of them came across the street to await the same street car I was looking for. I looked them over, noted their toil worn hands, and was sorry for them.

The street car arrived and in one minute flat I lost all sympathy for these old sweethearts—I was pushed, shoved, elbowed, stepped on, and in general kicked all over the car as they swarmed aboard. Those gals don't need sympathy; they deserve admiration. They can take care of themselves, believe me!

THE MEDITERRANEAN SEA.

Upon your waters blue of vast extent
Have floated argosies of every sort;
Your gentle tides and lapping waves have lent
To wandering men blest passage home to port.
Ulysses roamed your waves for ten long years,
Returning home from glamorous Trojan wars;
You've known the joys and strife, the loves and fears,
Of eager, restless men from all your shores.

But now when boats lie stalking down below
And flying craft bring havoc to your skies,
We wonder what you think while ripples go
In widening circles where the stricken dies.
Will mankind learn to live with fellow men,
Or should the pitying sea engulf the earth again?

The Class in Erwinology.

May I join the discussion of the name Erwin? Originally Herwin, this Christian, or rather heathen, name is derived from Old German [and Anglo-Saxon], hery, army, by extension, man of the army, warrior, and wine, friend. Hence its meaning is "friend of the army."

The English name usually developed into Irving. Irving also occurs as a Scotch placename. The Gaelic word on which it is based means "beautiful," and is akin to the Anglo-Saxon wynn [lovely], the German wonne [delight] and probably also to the Latin Venus. E. M. Fortgang.

[The most famous Erwin in American life is a fictitious character—the clairvoyant horseplayer who was the central figure in the popular comedy of a few years ago, "Three Men on a Horse."]

At the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and 11th street there is a deserted and dilapidated building. High on its north wall there is an old example of sign painting and slogan shouting which reads: "World's Problems Solved."

FEVER THERAPY IN CHOREA.

CHOREA, commonly referred to as St. Vitus' dance, has a long but dishonorable history. Many centuries ago, outbreaks of emotional and physical excitement occurred in certain parts of Germany. Victims of the so-called dancing mania were advised to seek the shrine of St. Vitus, the patron of Saxony and Bohemia. It was the reputed healing power of the saint that gave the disorder its name.

But this malady was not the typical chorea of modern times. We look upon the ailment today as a phase of rheumatism which attacks children between the ages of 5 and 15. Just why it is three times as prevalent in girls as boys is not known. Perhaps the fact that boys build reserve quickly with more active play offers the explanation.

The symptoms are familiar to most of us. Purposeless movements, grimaces, and gesticulations—which appear to be uncontrolable—attract attention to the child. Now and then, speech will be interfered with to such an extent that conversation can be scarcely understood.

Strangely enough, in all but very severe cases, muscular gymnastics cease during sleep. But the little patient can be provoked to laughter or tears with the slightest vexation—indicating an extremely delicate nervous balance. Because of the jerking activities these sufferers may injure themselves and it is necessary to provide rubber dishes and padded playthings which cannot possibly cause harm.

Quiet is essential because of the tendency to heart complications. As soothing measures, drugs may be prescribed or a warm bath administered. Some of these little victims will be very sensitive to sedatives and the physician may find that tiny doses will prove sufficient.

While we may look upon the disease as self-curing in most instances, we must do everything we can to abbreviate its course and bring recovery as promptly as possible. Even with the best of nursing it may persist for from a few weeks to several months. But the longer the illness continues the more likely will cardiac damage ensue.

Physicians have observed that should the child develop a fever—as from measles or any other type of contagion—relief is striking. This led to the suggestion that a temperature would discourage the causative organisms. Fever machines, such as the Kettering apparatus, proteins, and typhoid vaccine have all been utilized. If the temperature can be raised to 105 degrees F. or somewhat higher, even for a few hours, marked improvement may follow.

In a series of 17 cases described by Tucker, with whom typhoid vaccine was employed, only one failed to respond. The regimen is recommended particularly because it is readily available and can be used with impunity.

Altho high doses of vitamin B6 [pyridoxine hydrochloride] have been advocated, the number of favorable reports is not large. Excellent results, however, have been cited by Schwartzman and others. Because of the satisfactory showing with this drug, it has been hinted that the affliction may be a food deficiency.

VIOLIN PLAYING AND HICCUPS.

J. S. writes: My young son is taking violin lessons and practicing is quite an ordeal. He always has a siege of hiccups immediately after he starts to play. What could cause this?

REPLY.

Nervousness is a possible factor. On the other hand, the position of the instrument as well as his posture may irritate [by pressure] the phrenic nerve. Inasmuch as this structure governs the diaphragm, spasmodic contractions of this broad muscle [hiccups] may follow.

PREMARITAL TESTS.

H. P. writes: I had to have two premarital blood checks because the first had hemolyzed. What does this indicate?

REPLY.

The red coloring matter [hemoglobin] had become separated from the corpuscles. This rendered the specimen unsuitable for testing.

WASHINGTON'S WARNING.

Boston, Mass., June 30.—Among such great, unselfish, and patriotic statesmen as America has produced, Gen. George Washington easily merits the first place, in spite of the sneers and debunking indulged in by our "bright" writers of the last 20 years. A general who, with ill disciplined, starving, barefooted soldiers lacking every essential material resource, was able to win thru at last to a final victory over a well disciplined foe, amply provided with every sort of war material, certainly deserves a high place among the world's great captains. It was not an ill-advised gesture when the able and cynical old Frederick of Prussia sent him a sword inscribed: "From the oldest general to the greatest."

A man who could sink all personal ambition and by his unselfish devotion to the public good could weld the self-seeking and dissident elements of the 13 colonies into a united nation and then, with calm self-effacement and simple modesty, retire to the seclusion of Mount Vernon, offers an example, unhappily rare in history, of a good man and a great gentleman.

Today people prate of Washington but they really know very little about him. In his Farewell address he strove to set forth those unchanging and ageless principles upon which a nation may be permanently and prosperously maintained. Would that every real American would read and ponder those words of priceless wisdom). The following quotation from them seems, all things considered, to be worthy of the attention of his fellow countrymen:

"Real patriots, who may resist the intrigues of the favorite, are liable to become suspected and odious; while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests." [Irving's "Life of George Washington," New York, 1859, Vol. V., p. 372]. AN AMERICAN.

THEIR DAY IN COURT.

Chicago, July 15.—On Friday a daily of this town carried an item about the lynching of a Negro in Arkansas. This man had been identified as "looking like" the guilty person. On this flimsy identification he was dragged from a hospital bed and hanged by a mob. In the meantime the German spies, in this country for the purpose of sabotage, were on trial. Extreme precautions were taken for their safety and their legal counselors fought and are fighting for their lives. Thousands of dollars are being spent on these German saboteurs' trial and they are given every chance in the face of every evidence, while an American citizen is given no chance, no protection, and no opportunity for trial in the face of no legal evidence.

LESSON IN CONCENTRATION.

Danville, Ill., July 14.—At the north pole the sun's rays are scattered over so wide a strip of ground they do not furnish very much heat. But at the equator, where the sun is directly overhead, the rays cover a very small portion of ground, hence they make intense heat. By taking a small glass and concentrating them, still more heat can be produced.

This lesson should be studied by the military leaders that are placing our armed forces. Germany has won, so far, by concentrating strong forces at one point. England has lost by scattering her forces all over the earth. F. W. R.

FICTITIOUS WOOL SHORTAGE.

Buffalo, Ind., July 15.—I am the owner of some 55,000 pounds of wool that I was foolish enough to buy from farmers, knowing that this shortage story was all a myth, but it was my long established business and I went along with the rest of the buyers. Now we are all in the same condition, loaded up with wool that we cannot sell and loans we cannot pay. Not 30 per cent of the 1942 clip has been moved from the states of Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan and will not be while the mills are being harassed by a new regulation or different ruling every day. Now the tariff is taken off all foreign wool used in governmental orders, which make up about all the demand, as civilians are by now under the impression that it is unpatriotic for them to even ask for a cuffless pair of trousers, wool being so scarce. Tons of wool remain in farmers' hands, yet there is nothing to prevent dealers from buying it except their better judgment and the money. We have seen the paper shortage turn out a joke, we are seeing the wool shortage become one, and I think will see the sugar shortage become the same. I am thinking the only thing we are short on is management. WILLIAM SMITH.

TRIBUTE TO "SMALL POTATOES."

Chicago, July 15.—I have sent the following letter to Rep. Raymond McKeough in appreciation of his work in fixing a corporate tax rate that will put most small enterprises out of business: "Allow me to congratulate you on the great work you have done on the new tax bill. Altho it was done at the last moment, surreptitiously, that is the only way we can deal with business men or corporations who stand between us and control of the United States.

"On account of your splendid work this time, I hope we Communists can count on you to do even better next time and believe me, with help from men like you, we will soon be in the saddle at Washington and will not forget you and the help you are giving us."

BUSINESS MAN.

BELLS BOTHER DEFENSE WORKER.

Chicago, July 14.—This problem affects the 20 or 30 per cent of night workers. My greatest annoyance is the church bells. I get home at 5 in the morning after 12 hours of work and get in bed about 5:30. I just about get to sleep and the bells ring at 6, then they ring again at 6:30 and so on. If they keep the night defense workers awake, the victims of insomnia work less hours and produce less, and if Hitler wins there won't be any churches to ring the bells from. ALFRED CLISHAM.

AUTOMOBILES AND BIRDS.

Chicago, July 13.—While on a trip by automobile from the eastern border of Illinois to central Indiana, the writer noticed the carcasses of 52 birds killed, presumably, by automobiles. We were traveling on what might be called a back road.

Young birds fresh from the nest seem more vulnerable than the older ones in not being accustomed to the "blitzkrieg" action of the gasoline chariot bearing down upon them. The pay-off came as we were leaving the outskirts of Lafayette at 60 miles an hour [over my silent protest]. A sparrowhawk swooped down on the pavement to pick up a grasshopper and as he rose we struck him with a sickening thud. Have others taken note of this needless massacre?

AIR CADET WANTS ACTION.

Park Ridge, Ill., July 11.—What is wrong with our army air corps? I've been an aviation cadet, air crew, for more than two months and haven't been called. Now I've been informed by the air corps office that I probably won't be called for another four months. In other words, I will have been in the air corps for six months sitting around and receiving no training at all. If we don't have enough training centers, we should get more of them, and quickly. This could be done by discarding such strictly asinine projects as a Florida canal and a few other of the administration's queer ideas and using the money to build replacement centers, etc.

RENT PAYMENTS.

Chicago, July 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Rents are due and payable, of course, on the first of the month.

1. Is it not legal, [2] at least customary, to have until the 10th of the month to pay such a bill?

3. One or two of our largest department stores give until the 15th of the month for payment of a bill dated the 1st of the month.

4. I understand that payment on or before the 10th of the month is allowed on payment of rents. J. W.

1. No, in the sense that the landlord can serve a five day notice on the first if the rent is not paid on the first.

2. It is not unusual for debtors to be slow pay.

3. We do not see that these points are material.

4. There is no such rule of law.

Varied Events Are Scheduled for Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE week-end's diversions are many and varied. A gala crowd is expected at the Arlington Park race track for the running this afternoon of the Futurity. Sailing enthusiasts will gather at the Chicago Yacht club's Monroe street harbor to cheer the start of the Chicago-Mackinac Island race. The concerts at Ravinia Park tonight and tomorrow afternoon will attract others, and there will be dancing parties at a number of the clubs.

It is rumored John Hay Whitney, altho in uniform, may arrive at Arlington this afternoon to see what his entry, Picket, can do in the Futurity. Also expected are the Charles T. Fishers of Detroit, who have entered their Amber Light. The Warren Wrights will be represented by Careless. It cost Emerson F. Woodward $2,500 to enter his Valdina Sol at the last minute.

Maj. and Mrs. Ednyfed Williams, the Otto Lehmanns, Mrs. Dwight Green, the Armin Brands, the George E. Van Hagens, the Laurance H. Armours, Mrs. Frank Miller, and Mrs. Bert L. Atwater are some of those expected for luncheon at the Post and Paddock club.

Some of the younger residents of Barrington and other suburbs in the vicinity of the track have been turning out at an early hour to watch the horses being exercised and to clock them around the track. It has been a good excuse for arising early, or for staying out late, the youngsters have found, and so enthusiastic have they become that a number of members of the Barrington Hills Country club arranged to go over at 6 o'clock this morning, and to have breakfast with the jockeys and stablehands afterwards.

Entries in Mackinac Race Dwindle to 32 This Year.

The starting boats in the Mackinac race have dwindled to 32 in this war year, and few of them are large. John T. Snite has entered his Copperhead, and some other large yachts competing are those of Robert Benedict and Samuel Pirie. Fifty-two boats were entered two years ago. The yachts will cross the starting line between 1 and 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Many will end the day at Ravinia Park, where the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under guest conductor George Szell, will give its regular Saturday night concert. The Donald R. McLennans, Mrs. Louis Eckstein, and the Harold O. McLains are entertaining in their boxes. Among the McLains' guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mulroy of Genoa City, Wis. After the concert Mr. and Mrs. McLain will take their guests to the dance at the Exmoor Country club.

The Shoreacres club is having its first club dinner-dance in two years tonight. The Howard Linns, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas and the Peter G. Moons are some of those who have taken tables for the party.

Mrs. Robert Morton Lee to Become Bride Today.

Today at 1 o'clock in the Presbyterian church in Lake Forest the pastor, the Rev. W. Oliver Brackett, will officiate at the marriage of Mrs. Robert Morton Lee and Douglas A. MacMillan. The bride's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Johnson, will attend the couple, and the only other guests at the ceremony will be Mrs. Lee's sister, Mrs. John Bishop of Auburn, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Bissell of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan will hold a wedding reception this afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock at her home in Lake Forest.

Mrs. Lee is the widow of the former managing editor of THE TRIBUNE, who died three years ago. Mr. MacMillan was divorced from Elizabeth Hoyt MacMillan in April, 1941. Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan will be at home at 830 North Waukegan road, Lake Forest, after Aug. 1.

Lieut. Willard A. Sampson and his mother, Mrs. Ross D. Sampson of Evanston, are in West Newton, Mass., for the marriage tonight of Lieut. Sampson and Miss Jean Rae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Rae of West Newton. Lieut. Sampson and his bride will go to a southern post and he will begin training as a naval flyer.

Dorothy Wolverton to Be Wed in Hinsdale Today.

Miss Dorothy Wolverton and Lieut. James Warren White, army engineering corps, will be married today in the garden of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Wolverton of Hinsdale. Mrs. Philip R. Clarke Jr. will serve as matron of honor and Miss Betty Jane Everhard as maid of honor. The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. White of Ames, Ia., will have his father as best man. Ushering will be Seeley Lodwick of Sedan, Ia., formerly of Winnetka, and Robert Chase of Des Moines, Ia. Lieut. White and his bride, who both were graduated from Iowa State college, will live in Rolla, Mo.

Heirloom lace trims the bridal gown which Miss Lilias Reid will wear for her marriage tonight to Kenneth Wilson Cobb. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock in the chapel of Christ church, Winnetka, with a reception following in the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Candler Cobb Jr. of Winnetka. The bride's mother, Mrs. Robert Adams Reid, and her aunt, Miss Lilias Reid, are here from Boston, Mass., for the ceremony.

Being welcomed in Lake Forest are Maj. and Mrs. Hugh M. Groves, formerly of London and more recently of Canada, where he is stationed at present. Mrs. Groves' mother, Mrs. Benjamin C. Allen joined the Groveses at the Deerpath Inn yesterday, where Maj. and Mrs. Groves will enjoy a 10 day holiday.

Mrs. Frederick W. Fairman Jr. of Washington, D. C., will be spending several weeks in Lake Forest until her little girl, Lani, is well enough to travel. Lani was burned when her bed caught on fire while visiting here, and is recovering at the Passavant hospital.

Assistants at Lake Geneva Garden Tour

Miss Kathryn Vaughan (left), daughter of the John E. Vaughans, and Miss Valerie Grunow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Grunow, were among the attractive young women who assisted at the Lake Geneva Garden club's tour at Lake Geneva, Wis., yesterday. They were photographed in the garden of Mrs. Elmer H. Maytag's estate, one of the five homes visited in the tour. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lake Geneva's Flower Show Is Garden Tour

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

Lake Geneva extended a hospitable hand of welcome yesterday to the visitors who came from surrounding country towns and from Chicago and its suburbs to see the Lake Geneva Garden club's annual show. This year's project was different in one respect from those of former years—instead of seeing a flower show in Horticultural hall, the guests were taken on a tour of the summer homes of Mrs. Elmer Maytag, Mr. and Mrs. John Eliot Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Peterkin Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin, and Mr. and Mrs. William M. Spencer. But the same traditional feeling of friendliness was there, and the same earnest attempt of hostesses, their children, and their gardeners to show off Lake Geneva at its best.

No ribbons were awarded, for there weren't any competitions, and one missed the usual giant yellow tomatoes and waxy purple eggplant laid out with loving care upon beds of kale by gardeners who have been with Lake Geneva families for two and three generations. Nevertheless the gardeners had their day. All day long they lurked in the background, watching the scene sometimes with pride and sometimes with anxiety.

At each of the five homes the gardens were a blaze of color, and color photography addicts had a field day. A favorite spot for these amateur artists was the formal garden on Mrs. Maytag's estate, Ceylon court, squared off by low clipped hedges and bordered by scarlet phlox, zinnias, snapdragon, and giant larkspur. Keeping a benevolent eye on the scene was a fat turquoise buddha, who sat atop his rocky ledge and looked over a kidney-shaped pool and thru two magnificent Chinese pillars into the garden beyond.

Some of the guests remembered Mrs. Maytag's turreted home of carved teakwood and ebony from the Columbian exposition of 1893, when it stood on the fair grounds as the Ceylon building. Others had visited the house, a copy of an ancient Singhalese temple, when the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell lived there. The main house was not open on yesterday's tour, but guests who had toured the gardens were invited to step up onto the veranda, abloom with white hydrangeas and exotic tuberous begonias, for refreshments.

Among the young guests on duty at the punch bowls were Barbara and Betty Lou Schultz, Jody Pope, Margaret Redeker, Valerie Grunow, Alice Lyon, Kathryn Vaughan, "Deedee" and "Blannie" Wrigley, Roxanne Laroche, and Elizabeth Maytag. Mrs. Everett N. McDonnell, Mrs. Philip T. Stark, Mrs. William Grunow, and Mrs. Norman Hansen were among those assisting the chairman at Ceylon court, Mrs. Harry MacDonald.

From Ceylon court it was just a short drive around Buttons Bay to Holly Bush House, Mr. and Mrs. Warner's English Tudor manor, with its leaded windows and clover starred lawn. Here Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Bartholomay Chapin, and Mrs. S. Austin Pope had designed flower arrangements to harmonize with the lovely old wood panelling of the interior. One of the loveliest of these was of huckleberry and regal lilies, a white variety stained in deep pink, massed in a rectangular white glass bowl and set against the wall in the square beamed hallway.

Formal green lawns roll away from the steps of the Stenning, Mr. and Mrs. Peterkin's dignified Georgian home of red brick and white pillars. Here Mrs. Hans H. Reese was on duty during the early part of the afternoon, but soon handed over her official hostess badge to Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Lewis.

"This is the cooles. . . . I've found all afternoon," was the stock remark as guests stepped into the Chapins' long and comfortable living room at Flowerside Farms. All thru the afternoon music came forth from the Chapins' organ. Thruout the house, one of the early homes built by Benjamin Marshall, Mrs. Chapin had placed low Chinese bowls of blue, fuchsia, cerise and peach gladioli, dahlias and giant zinnias which she had arranged herself.

Mrs. E. Perry Ellwood, Mrs. Augustus Maxwell, Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, Mrs. William O. Hunt, Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley, Mrs. James Offield, and Miss Janet Fairbank were among those assisting Mrs. Spencer at her House-in-the-Woods. At one side of the lawn the Spencers' young daughter, Suzanne, received in her own little playhouse. The Spencers' house is arranged around a charming patio where an old English well flowers with white petunias and ivy. At one end of the court is the Tyrolean peasant house, which serves as the family's winter house as well as the summer guest house.

Proceeds from the tour, of which Mrs. William H. Emery and Mrs. William F. Petersen were co-chairmen, will go to the Lake Geneva Fresh Air association and the Horticultural society. The former maintains Holiday house, a vacation home for children.

Women in War Work

By India Moffett

Miss Jean Michels of Pensacola avenue, who has enrolled in the evening course in modern radio practice at the Illinois Institute of Technology, is planning to add another "first" to her collection, for she will be one of the first in the home troops of technically trained women workers. When she was graduated last spring from Illinois Tech with a degree in chemistry, Miss Michels was first scholastically among the girls in the class and was named the senior honor woman. She was offered eight fellowships and assistantships and one scholarship.

Miss Jean Michels.

A year ago Miss Michels was first in the state bicycle races, and then she came out first in the national road meet in Pasadena. When she went to San Jose, Cal., to enter the national unofficial track cycle meet she won another "first." She was the first — and only — Lewis institute campus coed to receive her private pilot's license by learning flying in the school's civilian pilot training program.

This fall she plans to start work on her master's degree in biochemistry, but in the meantime she is employed as a chemist in a Chicago manufacturing company and is spending her evenings studying radio. She enrolled in the beginning courses, but instructors immediately put her into the advanced class. Hats off to Miss Michels! May there be many more like her in this day of total war when every woman, as well as every man, must do her part to win victory for the allied nations.

The men who seek recreation tonight at the USO club at 131 South Wabash avenue are going to enjoy themselves at a Latin America fiesta, thanks to the Travelers' Aid society, which, as one of the six member agencies of the USO, is in charge of tonight's party. Joseph Spear of the Pan-American council and Mrs. Robert Platt are arranging for authentic decorations, entertainment, and refreshments. The Navarro sisters, daughters of a former Panamanian consul, will sing, and rhumbas and congas will be featured in the dancing.

Mrs. William Sills II., Mrs. David Wilson, Mrs. Edward Sims Jr., Mrs. Wesley Loomis III., and Mrs. William Pope, members of the Travelers Aid woman's board, and their husbands will serve as hosts and will supervise ping pong and golf tournaments in the game room. Paul Shahin will be master of ceremonies. The women employés of Scott-Foresman & Co. will provide and serve the refreshments. Willis Scott is president of the executive board of the Travelers Aid.

Three hundred and fifty Negro women who have completed Red Cross first aid or home nursing courses will receive certificates at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at a meeting to be held in the Good Shepherd Community center, 5120 South Park way. Twenty members of the Motor Corps auxiliary will be certificated at the same time by the Near South Side unit of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. B. J. Mix, member of the board of directors of the Chicago chapter, will deliver the principal address, and presiding will be Arthur B. Knight, commander of the South Center of the Office of Civilian Defense. Mrs. Irma Cayton, first aid chairman of the Washington park community, directed the training of the 250 first aid students.

Cadette Col. Cleone Cook of the Aviation Cadet Recruiting Aids is making an appeal for volunteers who can serve during the day. The organization has plenty of young women who want to help recruit aviation cadets at nights, but day workers are needed. Applicants should get in touch with Col. Cook at the headquarters in the Hotel Sherman.

Next Saturday the Lindblom High School Alumnae council will present a double gift to the Chicago Service Men's center at 176 West Washington street: A check for $50 and a mass donation of homemade food and cigarets contributed by the 350 members and their relatives, neighbors, and friends. The alumnae council is composed of girls who were members of the honorary Senior Girls' council, founded in 1922 by Miss Mary E. Courtenay, the former dean of girls at the school and now principal of Gompers school. In 1937 the alumnae organized to do philanthropic work, and since then the school has been the recipient of most of their efforts, but this year they wanted to assist service men. In charge of arrangements for next Saturday's project are Eleanor Lanz, Helen Levine, and Lois Young. Mrs. Russell Greenacre is president of the group.

Mrs. Olyse Marchi, national junior vice president of the Marine Corps League auxiliary is asking all mothers, widows, wives, sisters, and daughters of all marines in service today and of all marines holding honorable discharges to attend a meeting of the Chicago unit of the auxiliary on Thursday at 8 o'clock in the Hotel Sherman. The national convention will be held here from Sept. 2 to 5, inclusive.

The Chicago unit is engaged in a membership drive which will end at the meeting Thursday. Members of the auxiliary help to bolster the morale of each other, and Mrs. Marchi likes to tell of the wife of a marine who heard from 42 other marine mothers or wives all over the country about a broadcast from Japan that her husband took part in recently. He is a prisoner and his message over short wave that he was captured but unharmed, was heard by all these other women, but not by his wife, who had not heard from him for many months.

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and answers questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

USO to Benefit from Tribune Fashion Show

The climax of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S American Fashions contest on Aug. 7 and 8 will serve a double wartime purpose. It will benefit the women of the nation and the United Service Organizations.

There will be three style shows on the two days in W-G-N's spacious studio theater. The style shows will present 30 skilfully executed costumes, the cream of thousands of designs entered in the contest, which sought to find smart, wearable costumes for women in wartime. Two of the shows will benefit the USO.

Chicago merchants and buyers, as well as out-of-town wearing apparel manufacturers and shop owners, who will be in the city at that time for Chicago Market week, will be guests of THE TRIBUNE at a preview showing of the winning costumes at 2 p. m. Friday, Aug. 7.

The evening of the same day, the main show will be held at 8:15 p. m. and broadcast over W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Winners of the three grand prizes, voted on by the fashion leaders in the afternoon and by the public at the evening performance, will be announced over the air. The grand prize winners will be awarded $3,000, $2,000, and $1,000, respectively, in addition to the $50 prize given to each designer of the 30 successful costumes in the show.

Starring the grand prize selections, a third show will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday, Aug. 8.

A select corps of the nation's top flight mannequins will model the costumes for all three shows. The models were chosen by Mrs. Grace Pickering, noted fashion authority in charge of the competition. Each will wear the costumes which are suitable to her type and which were made for her exact measurements.

While the contest has endeavored to create loveliness for women in a war disrupted era, it has not forgotten the men in the service who are far away from their own women folk in camps and stations. To add to their pleasure, admission fees, which will be turned over to the Chicago USO war fund campaign, will be charged for the Friday night show and the performance the following afternoon.

Tickets for Friday night will be $2.50 and for Saturday afternoon $1. All seats will be reserved. Reservations must be made by mail and accompanied by the price of the admissions. They should be addressed to The Chicago Tribune Fashion Show Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Milwaukee Road Club Unit to Be Entertained at Party

A card party will be held for Union Station chapter of the Milwaukee Road Women's club tonight at the home of the membership chairman, Mrs. O. P. Catlin, 2036 North Tripp avenue. Proceeds will be placed in a Christmas basket fund.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY KATE MASSEE.

Sideline.

A new number to be introduced soon by Emile Petti's orchestra, now playing in the Pump room, is "What Happened to You," the third song written by two Chicago boys, Woody Olson and Charles Maddox. Both composers are in professions far from music; Olson was formerly an architect and will be in the army practically any day now, and Maddox is associated in business with Raoul Borne, Michigan avenue couturier.

Omar Writes a Torch Song.

Ah no, Beloved, I find no solace in a jug of wine,
No book of verse can cheer this wilderness of mine;
The Moon of My Delight is on the wane,
No voice can change this sorry scheme of things but thine.
—Jacques.

Far from Home.

In the mail:

"I stopped my car in Winnetka yesterday to pick up a beautiful toy collie dog which was wandering thru the speeding traffic. His license number was Springfield, Mass., No. 5112. I brought him home to give him food and water, expecting to write the chief of police in Springfield and inquire about the owner. I opened the front door and the little fellow dashed out and ran north. I hope some one will find him and restore him to his owner.
—Kenneth Horan."

Small World.

Mrs. Morrow Krum's telephone has been unusually busy this week, ever since an announcer on a London broadcast presented Maj. Krum at the microphone. In his last letter, Maj. Krum told of being hailed as he passed the table of an elderly couple — strangers to him — in a London hotel, and asked to sit down for a little visit. As the conversation progressed, it turned out that the couple were Sir Warren and Lady Hall, the former a brother-in-law of Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, a Lake Forest neighbor of the Krums. Maj. Krum and Maj. Kingman Douglas, also of Lake Forest, are sharing a flat in London at the moment.

This Way, Please.

A letter came a few days back from two girls who signed their names F. and L.. They'd spent a good part of a Sunday afternoon around Glen Ellyn looking for prefabricated houses, particularly the one belonging to our Guy Murchie, but with no success. Mr. Murchie has obliged with the directions for finding his house, which we pass along to the girls. It's on the west side of Bryant avenue, about one-third of a mile south of Roosevelt road. It's the second farmhouse, is painted red, has a flat roof, and sits back 800 yards from the road.

Sally Selects Her Guests for Baseball Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

I'm afraid that some of the boys and girls who wrote enthusiastic letters about our Sox party are going to be disappointed tomorrow. Their names will be missing from the list of children who've been selected as my guests for the White Sox-Red Sox game on July 23, and only because they forgot one or more of those three little items of information always required.

A surprising number of boys and girls got so excited about their favorite baseball players and the reasons why they'd like to attend the party that they completely forgot either their names or their addresses. Can't be a winner that way, you know!

However, I'm pretty sure you'll cheer up just as soon as you see the news of our next party. I think it's just about perfect and I think you will, too.

All you boys and girls who do find your names in the list of winners in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE had better be on the watch for the mailman because he'll be bringing a letter for you within the next day or two!

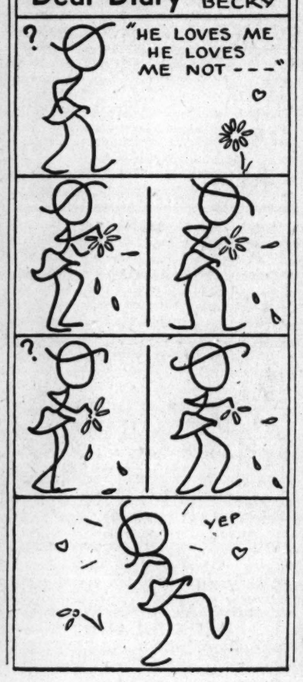
Church Homecoming.

St. Peter's Catholic church at Spring Grove, summer parish of Chicagoans who have cottages in the Fox Lake vicinity, will hold its annual homecoming festivities today and tomorrow. The Women's guild will serve chicken dinners.

Dear Diary BY BECKY



White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Women Bosses.

Do men work well under the direction of a woman supervisor? A woman employment director says they do; that there is surprisingly little friction.

That men workers accept the situation with good grace and a degree of humor ["After all," said one, "aren't we all bossed at home?"] is due largely to proper personnel management. The woman who is to be placed in charge of a group of men—in an office or a factory—must be carefully chosen and well trained. She can't be a "lady boss" because of a fondness for bossing. It takes more than that.

She must be a hard worker herself to keep the respect of those she supervises. She must be likable. [Two persons can give the identical order; for one you willingly do it; for the other you'd rather be court martialed.] She must "know her stuff" in this highly specialized business area. And she must be fair minded and above pettiness.

The men in the department must be trained to take orders from a woman. They must be adjusted to the viewpoint that the important thing now is not whether a supervisor is a man . . . or a woman . . . but how well and how fast they can get the job done.

Railroad Women.

"Marie Garner and Van Liew Koontz, clerks, were employed last October as chief train and engine crew dispatchers, night and day respectively. They dispatched on an average of 35 road crews and about 10 yard crews within 24 hours. Irene McCarthy has been appointed chief clerk to a master mechanic. Coach Cleaner Mary Chapman has learned to couple hose, test air brakes, and do almost any kind of manual labor connected with a passenger train. . . . Women are necessary as station guards and gatekeepers . . . they wear natty blue uniforms. Few men speak harshly to women gatekeepers." From the Baltimore and Ohio magazine of 1919.

Big Town Note.

Stenographers, running out for a "10 o'clock breakfast" became engrossed in a man and women who sat, each day, at exactly the same hour, in the same booth of the drug store having their morning coffee. The man was unfailingly pleasant, but from the booth came often the quarrelsome tone of the woman berating him for this and that. One morning it was one thing. The next morning another thing. Always something.

The man was no Gable, but good-looking. The girl, fairly so. Day after day the spectacle of infelicity continued. Why did he take it? Obviously they weren't married. Was he a man or a mouse?

Chicago isn't such a Big Town. Pretty soon a number of persons began to worry about the little man who every morning got the dickens regular as clockwork.

So, with pleasure this bulletin is issued. Last week amid ill-concealed elation on the part of the onlookers, the man rose quietly, firmly, resolutely, and finally walked out. He hasn't been seen with the lady since.

Monogram Is Final Touch for Lingerie

BY REA SEEGER.

Whether you live alone peacefully sure of your own clothes when you want them, or live hectically with a crowd of borrowing mad companions, monogramming your own property makes everything much easier. This monogrammania is a justified urge we think. Besides identifying your clothes beyond any reasonable doubt a monogram or a bit of embroidered initialing adds the just right final touch of individualistic decoration.

Lingerie and housecoats and robes, especially, become more decorative with a monogram in contrast color and design. An otherwise plain utilitarian housecoat is quickly and easily rejuvenated with a monogram on the chest pocket or a huge three letter affair on one of the side hip pockets.

Sleeping and lounging pajamas likewise acquire a new swank if the lapels, pockets or sleeves boast an important looking initial or monogram . . . besides the most persistent roommate with a borrowing gleam in the eye will scarcely dare to wear such a visibly marked piece. What we're pulling up to, is this: One well known store is offering a monogramming service free of charge this month [till July 22, to be exact], on all purchases of lingerie.

College bound shoppers, career girls sharing "diggings" with a couple of other budding executives, live alone and like it ladies with pride of ownership all should take advantage of this offer. All you do, is select your lingerie, gowns, robes, housecoats, travel togs, pajamas, slips, and petticoats, choose the contrast color and the monogramming is worked free.

Interest Can Oil Wheels of Obedience

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

(Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

Teachers know that learning is infinitely easier for a child, and what he learns will "stick" better, if his interest is aroused. Yet too often parents think that children should obey because it's "right," that they should do what they have to do because it's their duty. Now "duty" and "right" are good solid words and good solid reasons for certain acts, but when a child has dozens of things to learn [year in and year out] and some of them may be acts that we know are useful and necessary, but may not appeal to him on that ground, why not use the very human lever of interest to get results, and to keep everybody happy?

When mealtimes are a "riot," when the simple consumption of nourishment by a little girl or boy is the sign for dramatic goings on;

When going to the bathroom becomes a problem instead of a simple function;

When bedtime is the hour of struggle;

Or, to make it more general, when the accomplishment of necessary everyday acts is accompanied by resistance on the part of your young child, it may be due to the fact that his associations with that act are unpleasant ones.

A child's obedience, that is, his conformity with your wishes, is most easily gained if pleasantness has in the past been connected with the act.

Some of the many things a young child has to do are, in themselves, interesting to him. Some are not. But if your feeling, and so your voice and manner, are those of one good friend to another, his obedience is almost a foregone conclusion.

Is learning to handle a spoon and absorb nourishment accompanied by scoldings for spillings, or efforts to hurry?

Is the gaining of bladder control associated with annoyance or spankings for accidents?

Are bathtime and bedtime a time of hustle and irritation?

Is your attitude about one or all of these many routines connected with your child's physical care and simple learning habitually one that holds no appeal from his point of view? Then the chances are that he's not going to fall in with your wishes.

Every once in a while two women will enter almost identical copies of a grand recipe in our prize contest. Sometimes the two recipes are such nearly perfect duplicates that it would be impossible for the judges to give preference to one over the other.

It's just such a situation with this fine cheese cookie. Honorable mention goes to Mrs. F. Drazen, 4111 North Bell avenue, Chicago, and Mrs. W. E. Temple, 2519 W. 45th street, also of Chicago. Mrs. Drasen calls her cookies "Rose's Kipfel." Mrs. Temple names them Cheese Rolls. To be strictly neutral, let's call them Cheese Crescents.

Cheese Crescent Cookies.
[About 20 cookies.]
¼ cup butter
4 ounces cream cheese
1 cup flour
½ cup chopped pecans
½ cup brown sugar
Powdered sugar

Cream butter until soft, then blend in cheese. Work in flour until well blended. Chill in refrigerator overnight. Roll out thin as pie crust on a floured board. Cut in 3 inch squares. Place teaspoon of nutmeats in center of each square and sprinkle with brown sugar. Start at one corner and roll up diagonally, pressing edge down firmly. Bend ends to form crescent shape, and place on greased cookie sheet. Bake in a hot [400 degree] oven until lightly browned, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle powdered sugar over tops when baked.

The sauce that Miss Anne M. Prindiville, 6577 North Lakewood avenue, Chicago, serves over cup custard is a grand sugar saver. It's not inexpensive, but you'll find it a fine means of dolling up all sorts of pudding desserts.

Maple Cream Sauce.
2 egg yolks
¼ cup maple sirup
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Beat egg yolks. Heat sirup, but do not boil. Stir gradually into the egg yolks. Place over hot water and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is very thick and will coat a spoon. Remove from heat immediately and cool. When thoroly chilled, fold in whipped cream and serve immediately.

Carrots go out in company when prepared in this attractive manner. Mrs. L. Reichman, 7919 Drexel avenue, Chicago, gets an honorable mention award for the recipe. You'll like these carrots particularly with lamb or pork.

Candied Carrots in Orange Rings.
[Serves four.]
12 whole small carrots
1 or 2 small oranges
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
¾ teaspoon salt
2 cups water

Wash and scrape carrots. Cut oranges in ¼ inch slices and remove enough of centers to permit 3 carrots to be inserted in each ring. Place sugar, butter, salt, and water in a sauce pan and bring to boil. Place carrots in orange rings and place carefully in boiling sirup. Cook gently, until carrots are tender. Remove carrots carefully from sirup and keep warm. Turn up heat and boil sirup rapidly to a thick sauce. Serve sirup over carrots.

There's a $5 prize given daily for the best recipe submitted to the contest. See today's prize recipe for rules for entering the contest. The contest editors like to find good seasonal recipes, so keep them coming. That pet salad or economy dish may be a prize winner. In sending in recipes for foods that have a short season, be sure to get your recipe in early, about a month ahead. It takes about four weeks carefully to test your recipes and get them in print.

YOUR BUTCHER WILL BUY SALVAGED KITCHEN FATS.

Today's Prize Recipe

Curried Tongue.
[Good hot or cold.]
[Serves six to eight.]
1 3 pound beef tongue [fresh]
2½ teaspoons salt
¾ cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon curry powder
4 tablespoons flour
½ cup cold water

Wipe tongue with damp cloth and place in kettle. Barely cover with water and bring to boil. Skim and lower heat to simmering. Cook for 2 hours at simmering temperature. Remove tongue from broth and trim off root end and skin. Return to broth and add salt, onion, celery, and curry powder. Simmer for 1½ hours. Remove tongue and strain 2 cups of broth. Mix flour with cold water and add to strained broth, stirring while adding. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add more salt, if necessary, and serve hot over sliced tongue. Or serve cold without gravy.

MRS. P. B. LACEY,
211 S. Kosciusko St., Jacksonville, Ill.

HOW TO ENTER A RECIPE IN THE PRIZE CONTEST:

1. Choose your best recipe.
2. Type or write it legibly and completely, listing ingredients in order of use, and giving level, standard measurements.
3. Include helpful information such as number of servings, time for baking, size of pan for cake.
4. Address it to Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

There's a $5 prize daily!

Style No. 2869 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inch bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 35 inch material for skirt and bolero; 1⅜ yards for blouse.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost (coin preferred)—wrap it carefully, for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT: Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The summer pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., July 17.—Donald Crisp and I got together on the "Mark Twain" set, and I was much interested in hearing him tell about the time he sailed down the Mississippi river as stage manager for George M. Cohan. George was with him, the year was 1908. Donald said, "Did you know why the gentlemen always retired to their rooms for their drinking, Hedda? Because of those high, stiff collars. Behind closed doors we took 'em off and relaxed. . . . Crisp fought in the Boer war, also in the first World war. In the Boer war in Africa he shared a tent with nine other men. Each night for three nights he returned to the tent alone—the other men having been killed. "I sat there, sleepless—wondering when a Boer scout was going to get me," he said, "never dreaming I'd be saved so that in 1942 I'd be a Hollywood actor."

Makes Grade Both Ways.

Orson Welles gave Joseph Cotten his opportunity and he made good. Now Alfred Hitchcock will make his name boxoffice, 'cause he's given him the lead in "Shadow of a Doubt." . . . Director Roy Del Ruth, coming down from Yosemite, picked up a hitchhiker who turned out to be a fruit picker with a guitar and a store of folk songs. Ruth was so impressed he brought him on to Hollywood. And if you hear a program at 7 each morning called Songs of a Fruit Tramp you'll know there's one hitchhiker who got a chance and made good.

Courage in Small Package.

One of the most interesting women who ever hit this town is Paddy Mynor, wife of Wing Comm. Mynor. She's tiny, has same color eyes, hair, and skin as Greer Garson, and is a flyer. While helping evacuate children in Ireland she and another woman were putting them aboard a boat when a German plane machine gunned them on the shore. About 500 escaped and, with the greatest difficulty, got to Bath, England—just in time for an air bombardment, and nearly all the 500 were killed. They ran out of medical supplies, and Paddy used all her undergarments for bandages. Third night after she arrived in New York her husband found her sleep-walking in the corridor of their hotel, moaning, "I've just got to find their parents—I've got to find them!" She has shrapnel wounds in both arms and legs, but is going right back to England.

On the March.

With Lubitsch off to New York to see the plays, Mary Anita Loos is Arrowhead bound to add 30,000 more words to the novelette she wrote with Walter Duranty. Lubitsch, being an air raid warden, is down to three cigars daily to keep fit. . . . Columbia's going ahead with its picture, "Petticoat Army," with Joan Bennett. Speaking of Joan, she's done a whale of a job furnishing recreation rooms at defense factories. Mrs. Stanhope Nixon, from San Francisco, tells me that the AWVS has 2,000 women registered for farm work. Among cherry pickers a few weeks ago was the wife of the British consul in San Francisco. They're also making a house to house canvass seeking rooms for defense workers, and, says Doris Nixon, "It's little enough for us who have received so many blessings from our country to pass on voluntarily to others some of the good done us."

Still Ducking.

I caught Errol Flynn perspiring like a porpoise when he exited from the ring in "Gentleman Jim" and asked whether he was worried about camera angles. "Goodness, no!" he replied, "I was trying to duck those blows and jabs, just as I used to when I was married to Lili Damita." . . . On the same set sat Alexis Smith in a starched lace dress and hat, which she'd like to wear when she's married. Sure, I spoke about Craig Stevens, and she said, "I'm not in a wedding mood these days, but I'm not going with him for publicity purposes." . . . For years Alexis, who loves music, attended our bowl concerts, went early to get better seats. This year she can afford a box, and has one right down front.

They Still Do It.

Quite a row between Lucille Ball, Director Tim Whelan, and that hunk o' something. After holding up shooting for an hour everything was patched up and peaceful and they went on with "Sweet or Hot." But for an hour it looked like "Arsenic and Old Lace." . . . Now, now, Marlene! Was it nice of you to run down New York's rain, saying it was only a B production? It was wet, wasn't it? Well, if it's wet, it's rain—except in Scotland. Then it's mist. . . . In "The Desert Song" Dennis Morgan has a scene scrubbing his feet when the phone rings. "If that's for me, tell them I'm cleaning up some unfinished business," he says.

Loyalty Takes a Holiday.

When I told on the air about the ovation given William Farnum at the Hollywood ball park on his birthday, I said that tho the mighty moguls of Hollywood had forgotten Bill, his thousands of fans hadn't. Now a letter from Charles Turner of St. Louis [veteran of the first World war] tells me that the night before my broadcast he'd written the Lambs' club in New York, recalling the wonderful job Bill did for service men in the last war, and asking them to bestir themselves toward putting him back on the Hollywood map where he belongs. Good for you, Charlie! It's a pretty callous setup out here, but we can't get shot for trying!

Calling Kettle Black.

Boris Karloff and Peter Lorre, doing "The Boogie Man Will Get You," think cartoon characters are more frightening than they are—the witch in "Snow White," the big, bad wolf in "Three Little Pigs," the fox in "Pinocchio," and the cat in the same picture. For my money, Boris is still king of boo! . . . Marie Wilson just can't seem to make up her mind. One day she wants Nick Grinde, and the next night appears at the bar of music with husband Alan Nixon. And then we're told there's a scarcity of men! . . . Because of George Brent's broken finger, which is holding up "You Can't Escape Forever," Brenda Marshall is escaping—and flies to New York for her anniversary with husband Bill Holden, who's stationed at Astoria. . . . When some one asked Vera Vague whether she liked boysenberries, she said, "You keep the berries—bring me the boys!"

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

I'm going to be one jump ahead of you, girls!

You'll be wanting to know "all about" Donald Barry, who plays Lucky Smith in this movie. You'll want to know, because he's a heart warmer—gay, doughty, smart acting and speaking, and, in a carefree-red-headed way, good looking. . . . So—here's a sop to your curiosity:

Mr. Barry has been seen mostly in "westerns"—"Ghost Valley Raiders," "The Tulsa Kid," "The Apache Kid," and a lot of others. . . . He was born in Houston, Tex., and educated at the Allen academy and the Texas School of Mines. He has blue eyes—red hair, like I said, weighs 160 pounds, and is 5 feet 8½ inches tall. . . . Likes to swim and play tennis and handball. . . . Enjoys any kind of music and has written some short stories. . . . There, that's off my chest. . . .

In "Remember Pearl Harbor" he plays a soldier who loves his country but who just can't stomach orders. . . . Consequently Lucky spends about half his time in the guard house at the La Dessa army post in the Philippines, where he and his company are stationed. . . .

It's a strategic position and a center of saboteur and fifth column activity. . . . Lucky, in disgrace with the army for a time, during that period is able to distinguish himself brilliantly, rendering great service to his Uncle Sam. . . .

This is a spy melodrama, full of action and characterized by excellent acting. . . . Alan Curtis as Lucky's pal, Rhys Williams as a traitor, Sig Ruman as a German agent parading under Dutch colors, and Ian Keith as the company commander do outstanding work. . . . Direction was quite able and suspense often runs high.

Events are timed before, during, and after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

See you tomorrow.

Thru the Looking Glass

The springy step and the smiling face are pretty rare on the steaming streets these days. It's foot trouble weather with a vengeance, and we know of nothing, with the possible exception of the twinging tooth, that is so effective in making even the Spartan slow down and scowl.

Cool shoes help, especially if they allow plenty of room. We have doubts about the very thin sole, tho. A fairly heavy sole is best, we think, because it affords better protection for the flat of the foot where the skin is usually quite sensitive to heat and to the whacking it gets on city pavements.

Soothing and cooling preparations help, too, as you discover once you've treated yourself to the slight luxury of a little home treatment. One we like particularly is a lotion, with a good bit of camphor in it. It takes the ache right out of the cooked footsies; that scalded sensation after a hard, hot day gives way to a cool, bracing kind of tingle that restores happiness to face as well as feet.

The lotion is petal pink and, besides the camphor, it contains ingredients that are as balm to roughened, reddened skin. Massaging it into the feet morning and night—especially on those nights when the feet feel blistered and tired—makes life a lot cheerier.

Bathing the feet in warm water and then in cold before the soothing lotion is worked in makes the treatment doubly effective.

This same lotion, while it may be pastel pink in color, isn't restricted to the "women only" classification. The boys in the service use it and like it.

Shoulderette and Blanket

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The old-fashioned name, "nightingale," is nothing but the necessary and good looking "shoulderette." This crocheted shoulderette and matching carrying blanket are ideal pieces to include in that gift layette. Both are quick needlework tricks. Fine, two-ply saxony is used for the shoulderette, and four-ply saxony or pompadour is the medium for the carriage cover.

For instructions in crocheting the shoulderette and matching carrying blanket, No. 406, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 diamonds	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

Apparently, South was the type of player who prefers to use an opening three bid as a pure shutout, rather than put it to its more valuable use as a bid indicating a solid suit in the minors, or within one trick of solid in the majors.

West hit upon the spade ace as his opening lead and when dummy appeared with its long spade suit, a shift seemed very much in order. Accordingly, West now led a low club, an unfortunate choice for his side. Dummy ducked and South's queen won. A club was promptly returned to the ace and the spade king was cashed, declarer discarding his last club. It was this extremely shortsighted discard that led to declarer's undoing. It should have been completely obvious that a heart discard would be greatly superior to a club. The latter could be ruffed in dummy, whereas the heart discard was vital if declarer was to avoid the loss of two heart tricks.

After his actual discard of a club, declarer found himself in deep water. He suddenly discovered that it was more important to finesse hearts than trumps, hence led the heart jack and let it ride when East refused to cover. West won with the ace and exited with a spade. Declarer ruffed and, abandoning the foolish idea of leading trumps toward his own hand, laid down the diamond king. West won and exited with a club. Again declarer ruffed, and now played the diamond jack. East won and made the safe return of his last trump. Declarer finally had to concede another trick to East's heart queen.

If declarer had used dummy's single trump for a sensible purpose, namely, to ruff a club, and had discarded a heart on the spade king, then had finessed the heart jack thru East, he would have held his losses to one spade, one heart, and two diamonds, thereby fulfilling his contract.

Why go to the fuss and expense of buying materials and making curtains or draperies for your summer cottage when you can get them already made of a specially processed cellulose that look exactly like a fabric and costs so little you can throw them away when the season's over? These "drapery" panels are 90 inches long and a pair is 72 inches wide. A set of two panels and two tie-backs costs only a dollar. Patterns and colors are nicely styled and this product is sunfast and waterfast. Panels 54 inches long and 46 wide are made for bathrooms and kitchens.

Tribute Is Paid to Grant Park's Best Customer

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A woman who goes to more summer concerts than any music critic, and who does not get paid for it, was honored at Grant park last night when the Woman's Symphony orchestra, under Nicolai Malko's direction, played "Happy Birthday," and the people in the front rows stood and clapped. Yesterday was her 77th birthday.

She is Mrs. S. Jacobs, who lives at the Hayes hotel, and who, since 1935 has been Grant park's best customer. She has attended about 400 concerts, a record surpassed only by Herb Carlin, who manages them. In addition Mrs. Jacobs goes down to the band shell after the season is over, amuses herself amid the autumn mists by thinking over the concerts she has heard. This is more than Carlin does.

Mrs. Jacobs is a vigorous, bright eyed lady who considers Grant park, Orchestra hall, and the Art institute her three heavens on earth.

The program proper began with a solid performance of Weber's "Der Freischütz" overture, then moved on to the Brahms second symphony. This symphony is well suited to Mr. Malko's clear, unhurried style. His noble and spacious conception of the work was externalized quite well by the orchestra.

Because a slow movement under Mr. Malko's hands is really slow, there was leisure in the adagio for the gradual building up of an intense and moving lyricism. The first movement, with its broad and singing cello theme, was hardly less admirable.

After the intermission Florence Henline, an intelligent and sensitive Chicago pianist, appeared as soloist in the Tschaikowsky B flat minor concerto. In the concerto's lyrical aspects [of which there are, alas, not many] soloist and conductor were in pleasant agreement, but the performance as a whole was a little on the tentative side and hardly did justice to the rhythmic tension, the momentum, and the clanging sonorities which are such important elements of this work.

Miss Henline was playing on a brand new piano, a nice instrument that replaced the Grant park piano that was drowned in one of the first big rains of the season, and every pianist knows how hard it is to get a full measure of sonority out of an instrument fresh from the factory.

NO MORE BIDDING FOR COLLEGIANS, SERVICES DECIDE

New Officer Procurement Plan Outlined.

Competitive bidding by the army, navy and marine corps for officer candidates on college campuses is past, a joint procurement committee of the three services, headed by Maj. W. S. Fitch of the army air force, told representatives of more than 100 colleges and universities in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan yesterday. The educators met at the La Salle hotel to learn details of an alternate plan.

The new plan will eliminate five separate officer procurement programs now operating on campuses. Instead, beginning Sept. 1, a joint procurement committee of five will visit each campus, present enlistment facts to students, and permit each to make a choice at leisure. Each corps area will have such a committee.

No Applications on First Visit.

No enlistment applications will be taken during the first visit. Three weeks later, however, the joint committee will return and representatives from each service will interview and enlist volunteers.

Maj. Fitch said the government hopes enlisted students will be able to complete four years in school but added: "Any student who enlists is subject to call immediately in an emergency.

"Any physically fit students of draft age will remain in college on borrowed time and only to make themselves better qualified for leadership later," he said.

Not Subject to Induction.

Enrolled students are not subject to induction by their draft boards, he added.

Maj. Fitch said the need for qualified officer personnel is tremendous and urged educators to give incoming freshmen rigid physical examinations in order that remediable defects can be corrected early to prevent disqualification later.

The joint officer procurement program was agreed upon by the war and navy departments because college officials found competitive bidding "undignified and confusing," it was said.

MAYOR RENEWS PLEA FOR HOME RULE OF CHICAGO

Mayor Kelly, in a statement issued yesterday, said that now more than ever Chicago needs home rule free from domination by the state legislature in order to meet its wartime revenue problems and defense expenditures.

The mayor said his statement was prompted by the action he took at a meeting of the executive committee of the National Conference of Mayors in New York last week when he opposed a resolution asking the federal government to grant a subsidy for city wartime expenditures and revenue losses.

Given home rule in taxation matters, he continued, Chicago could eliminate the personal property tax and place other taxes on a "business basis."

"It might levy amusement and excise or luxury taxes, charge license fees, increase certain of its existing taxes, fees, or service charges. It could take over properties in default of taxes and sell them or operate them profitably. It could rent its water, sewage plant, police, and fire services to communities outside the city limits."

EVANSTON FETES ARMY NURSE, A BATAAN VETERAN

Lieut. Ruth M. Straub of Milwaukee, an army nurse who survived the Japanese attack on Corregidor, was the special guest at an American Heroes day celebration in Evanston yesterday. Lieut. Straub's name was given to a delivery truck which was converted into an ambulance and presented to the Evanston Red Cross by Marshall Field & Co. during the celebration.

Lieut. Straub escaped in a small boat from Bataan to Corregidor as the Japanese forces were closing in. Then she escaped from Corregidor in a submarine to Australia. She had been stationed at Fort Sheridan for two years before going to the Philippines.

M. C. Piatt, manager of the company's Evanston store who presented the ambulance to Mayor S. G. Ingraham, said the gift was made possible by customers who have been carrying their purchases home. Approximately 1,000 attended the program at Church street and Sherman avenue. It was sponsored by the Evanston War Savings staff and the merchants' division of the chamber of commerce.

Theo Elmer Hall, 27 years old, yesterday was installed as the new chief of police of Wilmette. He succeeds Cloyd McGuire, who resigned because of illness after eight years as head of the department. Hall comes to Wilmette from Two Rivers, Wis., where he had been head of police since June 1, 1941. He was chosen from among a number of applicants whose qualifications were under examination for 10 weeks.

[THE TRIBUNE will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by THE TRIBUNE. Today's question was submitted by Elaine M. Thomas, 920 East 59th street.]

THE QUESTION.

Have you ever had an attack of pioneering spirit and what did you do about it?

WHERE ASKED.

City Hall Square building, 139 North Clark street.

THE ANSWERS.

Samuel Z. Goldman, attorney, 906 Gunnison street—Originally I had intended to "rough it" in the Minnesota woods, but accommodations for fishermen were so comfortable I had a hard time convincing myself I was anything like a pioneer. Then we all joined in fighting a forest fire. That was the real flavor.

Edward W. Sowin, lawyer, 1244 North Dearborn street—There's a camp in Wisconsin that I keep for such purposes. Whenever I wan to untangle myself from civilization I spend a week-end there and chop trees and dig holes until I'm very happy to return to the simple life on Monday.

Thomas Dillon, assistant corporation counsel, 1502 East 68th street—The worst case I ever had was after I had been seeing too many wild west shows many years ago. I donned my riding boots and headed west to join the cattle rustlers and gold miners. My parents overtook me and returned me to civilization.

Irving G. Zazove, attorney, 5552 Adams street—When I was overcome by the pioneering spirit I bought a long strip of unconquered lake frontage in Michigan. After I made a clearing for the first cabin I had my fill. Now I've had several cabins built and there's nothing left for the pioneer to do.

Jerome J. Weinhouse, attorney, 7156 Cyril avenue—Our camp was far from everything in the woods of Wisconsin, but that wasn't enough for me. I thought I detected what looked like an old Indian trail and chopped my way thru. After too many hours of that I came to an abandoned railroad track. I was cured.

Robert Phillips, trainman, 8516 River Grove avenue, River Grove—Every once in a while I revert to pioneering on hunting trips. I pack a few scant essentials, and my dog and I start for the wild country. I make it complete by sleeping on a bed of pine needles or soft grass.

ADAMS IS NAMED STATE OWI HEAD AT $4,600 SALARY

Homer Mat Adams, young Democratic politician, whose $3,800 a year post as Springfield manager of the Office of Government Reports was disclosed several days ago by Attorney General George F. Barrett, will become state director of the organization when it is absorbed July 31 by the Office of War Information. This was announced yesterday in Washington, D. C. Adams' pay will be raised to $4,600 annually, and he will move his headquarters from Springfield to Chicago.

Adams, who is 31 years old, is also a trustee of the University of Illinois. He was one of the trustees who voted to retain Sveinbjorn Johnson as the $9,000 a year legal counsel of the university, altho Johnson also was receiving $6,500 annually as state director of the OGR. Barrett charged that Johnson was holding two lucrative positions in violation of federal and state statutes.

Johnson said early this week that he was resigning from the OGR effective July 31. Barrett has accused the university of allowing politics to permeate the administration. His charges are under investigation by the university citizens' advisory committee.

IOWA REPUBLICAN CONVENTION GOES ALL-OUT FOR WAR

Des Moines, Ia., July 17 [Special],—Iowa Republicans affirmed at their state convention today their unstinted backing of win-the-war efforts and their party duty to call to public attention policies detrimental to the general welfare and the war cause.

"Iowa is proud of its record," the adopted platform said. "We lead, in proportion to our population, in volunteer enlistments. We are leaders in the purchase of war bonds. We are foremost in every war activity. The loyalty of our farmers, the cooperation of Iowa labor and industry, the willingness of our people to sacrifice and work, reflect the spirit of patriotism which pervades this great state."

The convention nominated for secretary of state Wayne Ropes of Onawa, the matter having been left to the convention by the lack of a choice in the June 1 primaries. Candidates for other offices, including Lieut. Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper for governor and Gov. George A. Wilson for United States senator, were nominated at the primaries.

FITCH, LILLIS MOVE TO FRONT IN ALL-STAR VOTING

MINNEAPOLIS RALLIES BEHIND GOPHER GROUP

Bauman Second on List of Tackles.

BY ARCH WARD.

Minnesota and Notre Dame players are moving to the front in the national poll which will determine the starting lineup for the College All-Stars in their game against the Chicago Bears in Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 28.

Bob Fitch of the Gophers has jumped into first place at end, where he has a slight lead over John Kovatch of Notre Dame and Mal Kutner of Texas. Charles Ringer, who was Fitch's running mate at end, ranks fourth.

Paul Lillis.

Bob Fitch.

Paul Lillis of Notre Dame, who yesterday was in fourth place among the tackles, today holds the No. 1 spot with a total of 20,167 votes. Alf Bauman of Northwestern trails Lillis by only 883 votes. Urban Odson of Minnesota is in third place.

Tom Melton of Purdue, who is the most popular Hoosier athlete in the first week's returns, has taken the lead at guard. He has passed two of the most widely known players at his position, Bob Jeffries of Missouri's Sugar bowl team and Bernie Crimmins of Notre Dame.

Erdlitz Bounces Back.

Dick Erdlitz, whose battle for ballots with his old teammate, Don Kruger, has been a highlight of the early voting, again has taken the lead at quarter back. Thousands of votes for Erdlitz were received yesterday from several Wisconsin towns, notably Stevens Point, Peshtigo, and Oconto. Sears-Roebuck stores thruout the country are serving as clearing centers for Kruger votes. It appears that both Northwestern men will fight it out for the starting assignment as field general of the All-Stars, unless national returns, which will become heavier next week, swing the tide in favor of Frank Albert of Stanford or Harry Ice of Missouri.

The coast to coast poll will continue until midnight July 26. There is no fixed form for casting ballots. Simply send to your nearest voting center the names of the eleven players you would like to see face the world's professional champions in Chicago's ninth annual charity game.

Ballots Must Be Signed.

The name and address of each voter must accompany each ballot. It costs nothing to participate in the poll. You'll get fun out of it and at the same time you'll make happy a group of young men who for years have hoped to climax their gridiron careers with election to the All-Star squad. It's the most coveted award the sport provides. Any of the hundreds of players who have been voted into previous squads will substantiate the statement.

Bob Sweiger of Minnesota has passed Ohio State's Jack Graf for the full back job and today ranks second only to Michigan's famous line plunger, Bob Westfall. The Minneapolis Star Journal reports that votes are beginning to pour in by the thousands for Minnesota play-

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A band of the nation's best 2 year olds will open their major campaign for the championship of their division in the rich Futurity which will be run this afternoon at Arlington Park. Sixteen were named in the overnight entries, with the probability that 12 to 14 will get to the post. If 14 start, the stake will gross $63,900.

This is the first of the big juvenile series, which will be continued at Washington Park, Saratoga, and Belmont. Many of the contenders already have shown exceptional speed in preliminary stakes on Chicago and eastern tracks—but those efforts were more or less tuneups. Beginning this afternoon, they will be running for the juvenile championship of the American turf.

Big Four Are Listed.

The big four in today's test at six furlongs are John Hay Whitney's Picket, John Marsch's Occupation, Warren Wright's Careless, and Emerson F. Woodward's Valdina Sol.

Picket is undefeated in three starts—and there still is no telling just how good he is because he has won so easily. He gave a particularly impressive performance last Monday when he beat Littletown, which previously had won two stake events on Chicago tracks. This horse is not eligible for the Futurity.

Occupation has demonstrated recently that he is coming up to his best form. He gave a blazing exhibition in winning away out by himself last week. He has been beaten twice, running second to Littletown on both occasions, but in his effort last week he looked much better than he ever had looked before. It is considered highly probable that he will come out of the gate like a bullet and take the early lead, after which it may be a tough job for any horse to catch him.

Careless a Handsome Colt.

Calumet Farm's Careless is a handsome looking colt which has shown distinguished running ability in several previous events. He will be attempting to bring Mr. Wright his second consecutive Futurity victory. Last season Calumet made the unprecedented one-two-three sweep with Sun Again, Some Chance, and Wishbone.

Valdina Sol has been racing well in the east, but this will be his first attempt before a Chicago crowd. Eddie Arcaro is coming out to ride him.

In addition to Picket, Occupation, Careless, and Valdina Sol, there are many dangerous contenders in the field. With a large number of starters, these juvenile events often develop into helter-skelter dashes in which breaks count for a lot. So there's considerable likelihood that

REDS RELEASE ROLLIE HEMSLEY; RECALL LAKEMAN

Cincinnati, O., July 17 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds tonight gave Catcher Rollie Hemsley his unconditional release and recalled Al Lakeman, Cincinnati boy, from Syracuse of the International league. Hemsley, purchased last December from the Cleveland Indians has batted only .113.

Hemsley had been counted on to replace Ernie Lombardi, who was sold to the Boston Braves. But Hemsley did two-thirds of his playing this season in the first month, after which he was replaced by Rookie Ray Lamanno.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It seemed like a terrible dream to Claude Passeau when the Brooklyn Dodgers knocked him out in the third inning of the opener of the series with the league leaders, then romped on to a 10 to 5 victory. That was Wednesday. Claude came back yesterday after a day's rest to prove to a ladies' day crowd of 20,982 that what happened Wednesday just couldn't be so. But alas, Claude was knocked out in the fifth inning—and the Dodgers went on to win, again by 10 to 5.

Thus Passeau, who entered the series with a brilliant record of 13 victories and only five defeats, still has the 13 victories and seven defeats. But he still can boast a shutout on one of the three occasions the Cubs have beaten the Dodgers in 15 tries this season.

It's a Profitable Series.

The league champions took three out of four in the series just ended, but the ratio brought no sorrow in the Cub counting room. A total of 63,611 witnessed the three-day series. Of these 43,111 paid admission and the others spent a fortune in lemonade and such. Yesterday 7,482 paid, and there were 13,500 lady guests.

Schoolboy Rowe, who pitched seven innings before the heat melted him, was the winning pitcher. It was Schoolboy who lost to Lon Warneke, 3 to 0, and 3 to 1, for the two games the Cubs won in the 1935 world series.

The ladies' day crowd was not left entirely without inspiration for girlish squeals of gratification. Bill Nicholson, who replaced Jimmy Foxx as the Cubs' clean-up hitter, knocked a two run homer to tie the score in the third inning and Lou Novikoff boosted his batting average to .306 with a triple and two singles.

Russian Comes to Life.

And right here may be a good spot to inject a few statistics anent the rise of the aroused Russian: On June 1, little more than six weeks ago, Lou was batting a meager .207 and virtually was choking to death. Then all at once came the awakening. A half dozen gents are claiming to have helped. But we'll just give you the figures. Since June 1 Novikoff has been slugging at a .358 clip. Since a month ago today he's been popping them at even a more tremendous rate. He has batted .389 since June 18. Here are his comparative statistics from June 18 to this morning, July 18:

	AB	R	H	2B	3B	HR	RBI	Pct.
July 18	265	28	81	14	4	5	39	.306
Month's total	113	15	44	9	3	4	21	.389

The Chicagoans made a dozen hits and there wasn't an inning in which they didn't slash out at least one safe

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

THE daily mutuel handle at Arlington Park's current meeting has averaged $550,000, about $120,000 more a day than a year ago. . . . The next two weeks' program at Arlington offers some of the richest purses of the 1942 turf season. . . . The gross value of today's Futurity will be around $60,000. . . . The Classic a week from today will be worth at least $86,000, which will be the biggest purse of the year in the United States. . . . The meeting will be concluded two weeks from today with a card featuring the $25,000 Arlington handicap, with Whirlaway among the starters. . . . The Cubs first claimed Lon Warneke about six weeks ago, but the Cardinals withdrew their waivers. . . . Then another waiver list came thru — Warneke and another Cardinal. . . . The Cubs, suspecting St. Louis was trying to slip the other player thru the waiver channels, claimed both. . . . They were surprised when the Cardinals let the Warneke waiver ride, making the Cubs' claim binding. . . . Jimmy Conzelman, whose speech, "The Young Man's Mental Approach to War," has been written into the Congressional Record for the second time at the request of Sen. Wayland Brooks, will be the subject of two national magazine articles this fall, but he probably is more concerned in sharpening the offense of the Chicago Cardinals for the new season. . . . The Cubs are trying to popularize a new nickname for Phil Cavarretta, whose hair is as dark as a tar bucket and skin as brown as a saddle. . . . They are calling him Blondie. . . .

Joe Grace, formerly of the St. Louis Browns and now an outfielder for the Great Lakes Naval Training Station baseball team, returned from the Cleveland All-Star game with three autographed baseballs. . . . His shipmates frequently ask how he got close enough to obtain the signature of Pitcher Jim Bagby of the Indians, who struck out Grace with the bases loaded. . . . Bob Schildmayer, Southern California end, will not return to college next fall. . . . He is ticketed for the navy pre-flight school at St. Mary's next month. . . . The reason Jimmy Foxx doesn't wear glasses is that he broke the pair he had. . . . Capt. Jimmy Smith of last year's Illinois football team, who now is in the United States marine reserve, averaged 4.19 in his studies last year, an outstanding record. . . . Spec Ramies, whose long ring career was brought to an end by Jimmy McLarnin, is recovering from a blood infection which occurred on a shark fishing expedition in California.

The tale is told of a collector for a Dubuque ice firm who became a little weary of repeated trips to collect a certain account. He finally delivered this ultimatum to the delinquent customer: "I'm sorry, but if your ice bill isn't paid by the 10th, the government says we've got to freeze it."

The timely and informative picturization on "How to Trap a Jap" said, for one thing, to make him talk, especially with words with one or more s-es in them. The yellow tricksters have difficulty pronouncing an "s" without a deal of hissing and other vocal pyrotechnics. "Why not then," offers Ernie Kretz sagely, "compel every suspect to repeat: 'So sorry, sir, we ever started sad, sorrowful, scandalous shenangians at Pearl Harbor that somber Sunday.'"—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 17.—Johnny Humphries turned out a seven-hitter, all the more brilliant because it spanned a stretch of 12 innings, in behalf of the forlorn White Sox cause this afternoon, but the effort failed to fetch a dividend. The ex-Indian, after suffering acutely thruout the struggle because of the futility of his mates in the pinches, finally was put on the spot by an erratic throw by Tom Turner, and the Red Sox used this to promote a 2 to 1 victory.

The Chicagoans often demonstrate their fondness for leaving runners on the bases, but on this occasion they rose to unusual heights. Twice they had two on with none out and failed to score against Charley Wagner. Once they had a runner on second base before an out was recorded, and this guy also expired. Altogether 10 of them passed out on the base lines, three in the eighth inning when Luke Appling recorded the retiring out.

John Does His Part.

Humphries' performance was such a masterpiece that he didn't yield the second hit until two were out in the sixth. In the seventh, he was nicked for a pair, the hitting demonstration providing Boston with the tying run. Then he turned out four more innings in which only one fluke hit was recorded, and he'd have gone farther if Turner's arm hadn't provided a chance for the deadly Ted Williams to do something about concluding the debate.

The deciding 12th opened with Johnny Pesky poking a bunt to the right of Humphries. The Sox weren't

BEARS UNABLE TO GO OVER IN 1935 ALL-STAR GAME

But Pro Champs Won on Field Goal, Safety.

[This is the second of a series of articles on the highlights of previous All-Star football games.]

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicago Bears had their revenge in 1935 for the scoreless tie of the preceding year that had astounded the nation's football fans who watched the inaugural battle between the College All-Stars and the champions of the National Football league. The mighty Bears, who had failed to rip the college line apart in 1934 as many had thought they would, had a revenge—that is, if winning the game was all that mattered.

The Bears took the second game of the series, 5 to 0, but they couldn't cross the collegiate goal line and there is no doubt but that their impotence was prime factor in the stirring offense by which the Bears beat the All-Stars last August. The Bears had to wait six years for a third crack at the college men. To deliver the coup de grace they built a new team around a new type of attack. But this is getting ahead of the story of the 1935 contest which was played in Soldiers' field on Aug. 29 before a crowd of 77,450.

Only Rain of Series.

The Bears outscored and outgained the All-Stars in 1935, but the features of the contest ran the gamut from Jack Manders' twenty-seven yard field goal that provided all the points the professionals actually needed, to a drenching rain in the second half which still is a record. No other All-Star crowd has been rained upon.

The rain helped produce the Bears' additional points when Bill Shepherd of Western Maryland, who later starred for several seasons with the Detroit Lions, fumbled a pass from center in punt formation and recovered in his end zone for a safety. Weather conditions also produced a total of 28 punts, evenly divided, which is a record for the series.

Yet this game seemed to establish more firmly the fact that an annual battle between the best college seniors and the professional champions always would be an interesting contest.

Hutson with All-Stars.

There's a believe it or not in the files of this 1935 game. The All-Stars failed to score despite the presence at left end of Don Hutson of Alabama, whose pass catching had won the 1935 Rose Bowl game for the Crimson Tide, and who went on to professional football to become the most adept in all gridiron history in outwitting a secondary defense to receive passes. Strangely enough, in Hutson's next appearance in the series, when he performed for Green Bay in 1937, the Packers also failed to score. The reason was the same in each instance.

The 1935 All-Stars did not have a forward passer of superior ability. Neither did the Packers in 1937, when Arnie Herber played only a few minutes because of a shoulder injury. Only when Cecil Isbell joined Green Bay after the 1938 All-Star game did the Packers get the combination that again carried them to professional heights.

No One to Pass.

The All-Star backfield in 1935 had plunging strength in Stan Kostka of Minnesota. It had a running threat in Bill Shepherd. Al Nichelini of St. Mary's and Miller Munjas, the Pittsburgh quarter-back, were superb on defense. But there was no man to throw to Hutson or the Stars might have won.

No one knew this better than Frank Thomas, head coach of the All-Stars, who had directed Hutson at Alabama. Riley Smith, who had passed to Hutson for the Tide, was not eligible for All-Star competition. Riley was elected the starting quarter back on the 1936 team.

The All-Stars made one first down and a total gain of thirteen yards by passing. That was the ball game, for they couldn't dent the Bear line consistently and while their own forwards, a group that included Tony Blazine of Illinois Wesleyan and Jim Barber of San Francisco at tackle and Minnesota's Bill Bevan at guard, stopped the Bears short of the goal, the professionals' place kick and safety spelled victory.

LOOKING FOR WORK IN A NEW FIELD?

If you have just completed a course of training which qualifies you for a new type of work, or if you have decided to try your luck in another kind of job, the best place to find an opening is in the Help Wanted and Employment Agency columns of the Tribune. Your chances of getting a job you can handle are far greater when you consult the Tribune because the Tribune prints more than twice as much Help Wanted advertising as all other Chicago newspapers combined.

an outsider may charge out of the pack to take the prize.

Amber Light, Dixiana farm's hope, has shown the speed which might carry him home on top—or some other youngster which heretofore has done little might come charging in. There is plenty of speed in the big field and it's the kind of a race in which anything may happen between the start and the finish.

Long Shots Come Home.

Three long shots swept the win, place, and show positions in the Old Rosebud purse, main event on yesterday's program. Sis Baker came in at 20 to 1, The Gob was second at 30 to 1, and Bayridge was third at 37 to 1. Meanwhile the 6 to 5 favorite First Prize, and the other well backed choices, Shut Eye and Early 'n' Smart, were unable to threaten seriously.

The winner paid off at $43.40, $16.40 and $10.40. Prices were high all the way down. The Gob returning $22.40 and $13, and Bayridge $15.20 for show.

OPEN TRIALS OF 100 YARD SWIM IN 2 POOLS TODAY

Begin Races at Cermak, Sherman Centers.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Preliminary events in the 13th Chicagoland 100 yard races will be held this afternoon in Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden avenue, Lyons, Ill., and in the Sherman park pool, 52d street and Racine avenue. All contestants will report at 1 o'clock for assignment to trials and the first race will start at 2 o'clock.

Tomorrow afternoon the remainder of the qualifying 100 yard races will be held in Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, and in the California park pool, 3901 North California avenue. Starting times are the same as for today's races.

From these four sectional meets will come the field of more than 100 for the championships in California park pool a week from tomorrow. The number of boys and girls to qualify today and tomorrow in each of the age classes will be determined by the number of contestants reporting.

Bring That Post Card.

Each swimmer must bring his post card, which furnishes his class and racing number for the clerks. This card will admit to the sectional meets without charge. The facilities of the four centers have been made available by the Chicago park district and the Cook county forest preserve district.

Each swimmer who passes his 100 yard test today will receive a bronze souvenir button. Those who win and qualify for the championships a week from tomorrow will be given gold medals.

Sherman Gets More Swimmers.

Sherman park will have a much larger number of swimmers this afternoon than Cermak pool. The latter section is retained in the set-up for the accommodation of out of town swimmers. The majority come from Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin cities and the western suburbs. Beaver Dam, Wis., Champaign, La Grange, Oak Park, Rochelle, Kankakee, Joliet, Naperville, Hinsdale, Bloomington, Western Springs, and Peoria are in the list. Several from Long Beach, Ind., also are entered. Jackson natatorium is the largest of the Chicago groups entered at Cermak pool.

The Elkhart, Ind., YMCA will compete in Sherman park. Hammond, Ind., Whiting, East Chicago, and Gary will be represented. The Kenosha, Wis., Youth Foundation is sending several of its swimmers to Sherman park. The others will compete tomorrow at Whealan pool and California park.

Many Teams Entered.

Among the Chicago teams are the South Side Boys' club, Meyering playground, Auburn park, Washington park, and Harding playground. Harvey, Ill., and Rockford, Ill., teams also are entered.

Members of The Tribune Athletic association who have chosen Cermak pool and Sherman park as centers at which they will assist in conducting the 100 yard races are:

The Garden City Maids softball team defeated the Parichy Bloomer Girls, 6 to 0, last night in Shewbridge field, ending the latters' winning streak of eight games. Two home runs accounted for all Garden City's scoring, Schneider hitting one in the first with the bases loaded and Babe Parchem getting the other with one on in the sixth.

The Rockolas beat the Royal Girls of Moose Jaw, Can., 9 to 1, in Rockola stadium and the Louisville Dairy Maids outslugged the Match Corporation Girls, 9 to 6, in Match stadium.

Tonight's schedule:

Koch Furniture Girls of Cleveland, O., vs. Rockolas, Rockolas stadium, 4200 N. Central avenue; Match Corporation Girls vs. Rheingold Girls, Rand stadium, 75th street and Euclid avenue and the Army and Navy Bomber Girls of Regina, Can., vs. Parichy Bloomer Girls, Parichy stadium, Harlem avenue and Harrison street.

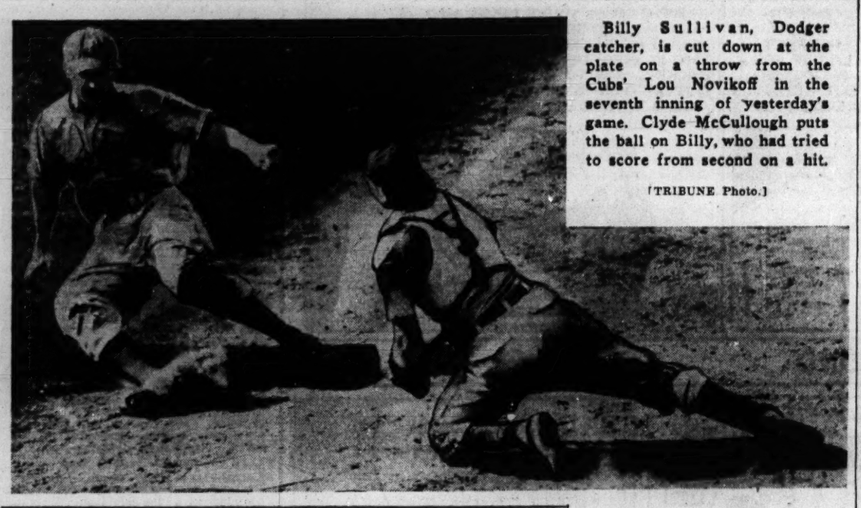
Phils to Move in on Cubs Today; They're Welcome

The Phils will be extended a hearty welcome on their arrival in Wrigley field this morning, with the expectation, of course, that the tail enders will lose their single game to the Cubs this afternoon and the double header tomorrow. The opposing pitchers this afternoon will be Bill Lee, in quest of his 10th victory of the year, and Rube Melton, who has won six while losing eight.

The Wrigley field pitching menu for tomorrow will have Lon Warneke and Hi Bithorn working for the Cubs and Johnny Podgajny and Frank Hoerst for the Phils.

Commissioner K. M. Landis ruled yesterday that the Dodgers must pay the full purchase price to the St. Louis Cardinals for Outfielder Don Padgett, altho Don now is a sailor at the Great Lakes Training station. Brooklyn had asked that Padgett be transferred to the Cards' defense service list and that the Dodgers' obligation be canceled. Padgett, who was sold to Brooklyn last Dec. 10, went thru spring training with the club and played in four regular games.

A Dodger Learns That Novikoff Can Throw



Billy Sullivan, Dodger catcher, is cut down at the plate on a throw from the Cubs' Lou Novikoff in the seventh inning of yesterday's game. Clyde McCullough puts the ball on Billy, who had tried to score from second on a hit.

Yachts Leave on 333 Mile Race Today

Twice this year—today and the last week in August—the Chicago lake front will be the center of the yachting world. The Chicago Yacht club's 35th annual race to Mackinac Island, Mich., starts between 1 and 3 o'clock this afternoon off Chicago harbor. And in August the downtown harbor will be the scene of the international Star class championship series.

The Mackinac race, 333 statute miles, is the longest yacht race in the world this year. It will probably remain so for the war's duration. The services already have taken about 15 per cent of Lake Michigan's yachtsmen. As a result, 32 yachts will start off the Van Buren street gap, instead of 51 as last year, or the record fleet of 54 in 1940.

Last year's winners, Lively Lady and Breeze, will not defend. Newest contenders in the Universal or racing division are Istalena, 87 foot M class sloop from the Milwaukee Yacht club, and Falcon II., 52 foot Q class sloop flying the Chicago Yacht club burgee.

Warrior Has New Master.

Warrior, the 8 meter class racing sloop which former Commodore Victor Milliken brought here from the Atlantic coast in 1938, will be sailed today by its new owner, Fred Temple. Temple's 8-meter Rangoon was wrecked on Lake Huron last week-end in the Port Huron-Mackinac race, and he immediately purchased Warrior from Commodore Milliken.

Hostess II., Charles W. Beck Jr.'s Port Huron-Mackinac race winner, arrived at Belmont harbor yesterday to compete again in the Chicago race. Skipper Beck sailed his yacht here two years ago.

Marlyn to Accompany Fleet.

Commodore L. T. Rountree's 92 foot cruiser Marlyn will accompany the fleet as it did last year, in order to release coast guard vessels for wartime duties. The Marlyn will fly the Chicago, Columbia, Jackson Park, and Michigan City yacht club burgees.

Fifteen of the 24 local yachts competing today are among the craft whose owners recently volunteered to train Abbott hall naval reserve midshipmen with practice cruises on the lake front. These are Baccarat, Barquita, Betty Bro, Copperhead, Nisswa, Southern Cross, Trident, Onaway, Red Arrow, Stormy Petrel, Keewaydin, Norwester, Wench, Wind Song, and Joyant. Commodore Rountree's Marlyn is also one of the Abbott hall training fleet.

ers who completed their eligibility last fall. Bruce Smith topped the returns in Minneapolis yesterday. Close behind were Ringer, Odson, Butch Levy, Gene Flick, Fitch, and Helge Pukema. The most popular non-Minnesota players in the Star Journal's returns are Bauman of Northwestern, Holt Rast of Alabama, Albert of Stanford, and Bernie Crimmins of Notre Dame.

Bruce Smith Regains Lead.

Bruce Smith, incidentally, has regained first place at half back. The Minnesota vote yesterday boosted him over Bruce Dudley of Virginia, the nation's leading scorer in 1941. Steve Juzwik of Notre Dame is third.

Notre Dame's headliners owe their positions in the standings to their national fame. They have enjoyed none of the hometown backing extended to players from Minnesota, Missouri, Marquette, and Ohio State.

The demand for tickets continues apace. The last of the $3.30 sea's is expected to be sold by the middle of next week. The $4.40 section was sold out four days after announcement that mail orders would be accepted.

Evert Wins in Fox River Tennis; Meets Smidl Today

Neenah, Wis., July 17 [Special].—Jim Evert, Chicago, defeated Bill Baumann, also of Chicago, today in a hard fought match, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, to enter the semi-finals of the annual Fox Valley tennis tournament. The semi-finals will be played tomorrow with Seymour Greenberg, Chicago, facing Olin Parks, Notre Dame, and Robert Smidl, River Forest, meeting Evert. In quarter-finals doubles competition today Greenberg and Ben Migdow of Chicago beat Hub Anger of Oshkosh and Bill Dowling of Neenah, 6-1, 6-0.

FIRST WARD DEMOCRATS WIN.

The First Ward Democrats defeated the Parkway Billiards in a Rand league game in Rand stadium last night. In another league contest the Dave Eichners beat Harry's Owl club, 12 to 10.

looking for such trickery, so it went for a hit. Dom DiMaggio also bunted, and the ball didn't skip more than a step in front of the plate. Turner grabbed it and threw to Appling for what should have been the simplest sort of double play. However, the throw bounced in and nobody was retired. Then Williams finished it off hurriedly. He spanked the first pitch for a single against the left field fence and Pesky scored.

They Should Have Done Better.

The Chicagoans picked up their lone run in the fifth, but it wasn't much considering the factors involved. Wally Moses led off with a pass, Bob Kennedy fanned, and Humphries singled to drive in Moses, but Don Kolloway grounded into a double play. Taft Wright, who didn't get the ball beyond the infield at any time, did the same to break up a promising sixth. Myril Hoag singled and Joe Kuhel survived when a fielder's choice play failed. Wright tapped to Pesky for a double play, and Appling flied to Lou Finney.

KOWAL DEFEATS DAVID, 1 UP, IN INDIANA FINAL

Lafayette, Ind., July 17 (AP).—Henry Kowal of Indianapolis, who expects to join the navy soon, came from far behind to whip John David, also of Indianapolis, 1 up, today and take his second Indiana amateur golf championship in four years.

One down at the end of the morning 18 holes, Kowal drew even with David, an ensign in the navy, early in the afternoon play, but faded again to be 3 down at the end of 27 holes. He found the range coming home, however, and shot par golf winning on the 36th hole.

Kowal won the championship in 1939, his first effort in the Indiana tournament.

Fort Knox Eleven to Meet Iowa Cadets on Nov. 7

Fort Knox, Ky., July 17 (AP).—The Fort Knox football team will meet the University of Iowa Naval Air Cadet eleven in Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 7, Capt. P. M. Heverly, post athletic director, announced today. Capt. Heverly said he hoped to announce the acquisition of a nationally known coach by Aug. 1. This is the 13th game arranged for the Iowa Cadets.

Marjorie Row Captures Michigan Crown, 5 and 4

Dodgers Rout Passeau; Roll Over Cubs, 10-5

one. Every one in the starting lineup except Charley Gilbert and Passeau bashed at least one hit. Tot Pressnell, long listed as the National league's leading hitter, who replaced Passeau on the mound, hit safely his one time at bat. Tot now is leading the circuit with an average of .667. He has made two hits in three times at bat this season.

The Dodgers went out in order in the first two innings and in the same sessions the Cubs wasted a first inning triple by Novikoff and a second inning lead-off single by Foxx and a sacrifice by Lou Stringer. Then both sides got off the zero stuff. Billy Sullivan opened the Brooklyn third with a single to right and Peewee Reese was credited with a single when Passeau failed to hold on to his bouncer. Rowe forced Sullivan at third, Passeau to Stan Hack, but Dixie Walker singled to left, Reese scoring.

Lew Riggs singled to right, Rowe scoring and Walker reaching third. Then Pete Reiser fouled to Hack and Joe Medwick forced Riggs.

Away Goes Passeau.

The Cubs tied the score in their half of the inning. Hack opened the round with a double and, after Gilbert and Novikoff had supplied infield outs, scored on Nicholson's homer over the right field screen. It was Bill's ninth of the year.

The champs wasted a couple of singles in the fourth, apparently as a tuning-up for the rioting in the fifth. In that disastrous inning Riggs smacked his second single with one down and stopped at third on Reiser's line double to right center. Medwick was given an intentional pass, loading the bases, whereupon Dolph Camilli rolled a possible double play ball to Foxx. Jimmy juggled the ball after retrieving it but still could have speared Riggs at the plate with even a fair-to-middlin' throw. Jimmy's toss pulled Clyde McCullough far off the plate, so Riggs scored and the bases remained loaded.

Bill Herman doubled to right for the ninth hit off Passeau in a span of 2⅓ innings, scoring Reiser and Medwick. This was enough for Passeau and Pressnell took his place. Sullivan singled to right, scoring Camilli and Herman. Sullivan was out trying to steal second and Reese flied to Gilbert.

Lou Lends a Hand.

A couple of walks and Novikoff's second hit, a single, gave the Cubs a run in their half of the fifth.

The Dodgers' cluster of three runs in the seventh grew from an error by Lenny Merullo, singles by Medwick and Camilli, and Sullivan's third hit, a double. Reese singled in the inning, but Novikoff threw out Sullivan at the plate on the hit.

Novikoff's third hit, a single, hits by Foxx and Stringer and an error by Sullivan gave the Cubs a pair of runs in the seventh.

Pesek and Sullivan Win CYO Team Bike Race

Frek Pesek and Bill Sullivan of the Catholic Youth organization won the one hour team bicycle race in Humboldt park last night by one lap and 33 points. Don Griffe of Barrett A. C., and Heinz Richter, CYO, teamed together to take second place with 35 points. Joe Gaspari of the Mazzini club and Bill Johann of the CYO, and Gunther Leuschen and Bob Jackson, both of Edison Park, tied for third place with 18 points.

BROWNS TAKE TWO AS LAABS STARS AT BAT

Hits Two Home Runs as A's Fall, 4-2, 11-1.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 17 (AP).—Stocky Chet Laabs continued his batting spree for the St. Louis Browns today—pounding out two more home runs and driving in six runs—as the Browns beat the Athletics in a double header, 4 to 2 and 11 to 1, to oust Detroit from fourth place.

The Browns now have won eight games in a row—one from the Yankees, three from the Red Sox, and four from the A's—and Laabs' mighty bat has provided the power to win nearly all of them.

In the last seven days he has walloped six home runs and driven in 22 runs. He now has clouted 17 home runs and batted in 64 runs, compared to his 15 round trippers and 59 RBI for the entire 1941 campaign. Score:

New York, July 17 (AP).—The New York Yankees, crushed the Cleveland Indians today, 8 to 1, with Spud Chandler pitching six hit ball and Phil Rizzuto and Red Rolfe each contributing a home run and a triple to the Yanks' sixth straight triumph. The game was decided in the first inning when Rizzuto smashed his home run off Lefty Al Smith with the bases loaded.

The Yankees supported Chandler with four double plays, bringing their total to 119 for 86 games. Joe DiMaggio extended his hitting streak to 14 games with a single off Joe Heving in the seventh. And there were a couple of red hot arguments between players and umpires.

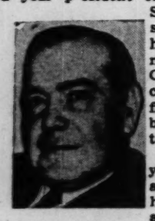
JOE GEARY TAKES ALL TRICKS, GETS CITY PENSION, TOO

Taxpayers Owe Annuity to Trial Board Head.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Joseph P. [Joe] Geary, the $7,500 a year president of the city Civil Service commission whose ouster has been demanded by the Chicago Crime commission, is fixed for life as a beneficiary of the taxpayers.



Joseph P. Geary.

It was learned yesterday that altho Geary, who has always been an agile expert at placing members of the sizable Geary family on the public pay roll, never passed an examination for a civil service job he still is eligible to receive a pension for life.

If Geary should retire, he would receive approximately $64 a month for the rest of his life, and the monthly rate increases the longer he stays in office.

John Dillon, president of the Municipal Employés Annuity and Benefit fund, explained yesterday at a meeting of trustees of the fund why Geary, an appointed official, is eligible for a pension.

Pension Right Explained.

In 1939, after Geary had been a member of the commission, under several different mayors, for 16 years, the pension fund trustees learned an amendment to the civil service law affecting pensions was in the hands of the legislature.

The amendment provided that if a civil service commissioner paid back annuity payments by September of that year, he would be eligible for a pension and have the right to continue monthly pay check deductions for participation in the fund. The amendment was introduced by Senator William J. Connors [D., 29th district]. It was passed.

Senator Connors said yesterday he had introduced the amendment at the request of Commissioner Geary's son, Senator John B. Geary, [D.] 5th district. Connors said:

"Young Geary said he wanted some help to get it passed. It seemed alright to me. I think all city employés should receive pensions."

Holds Law Binding.

According to Dillon, the trustees asked their attorney, Assistant Corporation Counsel George F. Mulligan, for an opinion on the subject. Mulligan ruled that under the original civil service act the commissioners had a right to participate in the pension fund. He said municipal employés appointed under the terms of the act were eligible, and that the commission was created by the act itself. Until that time only regular civil service employés of the city and the board of education had been permitted to participate.

On Aug. 31, 1939, Geary paid $1,613.77 into the fund, which, Dillon said, represented his back payments plus 4 per cent interest the money would have earned had the benefit fund received the money in regular monthly salary deductions over the period of years of Geary's incumbency. At the same time the city contributed $2,800, as its share toward Geary's pension. Since that time Geary's and the city's shares have been paid into the fund each month.

Other Members Participate.

Since the passage of the amendment, other civil service commissioners have joined Geary. Commissioners William Ronan and Wendell Green are both contributing to the fund each month and the city is matching their contributions.

The crime commission demand that the commissioners be ousted because they recently acquitted four members of the police morals squad who were on trial for failure to suppress gambling is now in the hands of Mayor Kelly. The mayor has said he will consider the demand and that he intends to study carefully the complete record of the case.

SET $20,000 BAIL FOR SAILOR IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Bail of $20,000 was fixed yesterday for Chief Petty Officer Franklin D. Cathcart, III. charged with murder and manslaughter in the death of Miss Thoried Arna Larson, after which he was released back into the custody of officers at the Great Lakes naval training station.

His father, Cathcart, II. of Palo Alto Cal., was with the 24 year old petty officer when he was arraigned before Judge Ralph J. Dady in Circuit court in Waukegan. His attorney, Sidney H. Block, made a motion to quash the indictment. State's Attorney Harry A. Hall of Lake county, opposed the motion, and the court denied it. The lawyer then entered a plea of not guilty for his client.

Young Cathcart has admitted he drank with Miss Larson, 24, of 825 Ash street, Waukegan, some hours before she was found dying in a wood near the town. He said she tumbled down 17 basement steps after dashing from the room of his cottage on a Lake Forest estate at 3:30 o'clock in the morning, but that he didn't investigate whether she was hurt until 6:30 a. m. He then took her to his car and left her in the wood, he said.

State's Attorney Hall indicated he may be willing to allow the navy to try Cathcart. He said he will confer with officers on the question.

STEEL WORKERS' UNION ACCEPTS WLB PAY AWARD

Calls on Companies to Act for Unity.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 17 (AP).—The 125 man policy committee of the CIO, United Steel Workers of America, representing approximately 157,000 workers of four "little steel" companies, tonight accepted the War Labor board's recommendation for increasing pay of hourly workers 44 cents a day to a minimum of 78 cents an hour.

The acceptance came after a three hour closed session in which CIO President Philip Murray told of his visit yesterday to the White House and read a telegram from the President requesting "coöperation" in the government's fight to control the threatening rise in the cost of living.

Had Asked $1 Increase.

The men had demanded $1 a day and many of their leaders privately had been predicting the board's award would be rejected.

The resolution, unanimously adopted, stated the workers embraced "the opportunity of being in the forefront in carrying out the national policy which will aid our nation in its war for total survival."

"In the spirit of President Roosevelt's message, we call upon the corporations involved in this proceeding to accept the award of the national War Labor board in the interests of national unity."

Action Binding on Officers.

Murray, who also is president of the USA, said the policy committee's action was binding on the union's officers and that tonight they would begin notifying the WLB of the action and also request the "little steel" group, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and Inland, to continue negotiations for a contract.

The negotiations were broken off last January when the parties reached an impasse on issues now decided by the WLB.

Murray also moved quickly to reopen negotiations with all other steel companies to incorporate into their contracts the awards granted by the WLB. These included a maintenance of union membership clause, under which all members of the union must remain in good standing during the life of the contract, and a check-off of union dues by the companies.

Call Meeting of Locals.

A meeting of representatives from all local unions having jurisdiction over subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation, Jones & Laughlin, Crucible, and others, was called for Tuesday, July 21.

Murray said it was "safe to assume" the union would request from these companies, in addition to the WLB awards, improved mechanism for adjusting disputes and elimination of "discriminatory wage rate inequalities."

The USA now claims to have approximately 1,000 contracts with steel making and steel fabricating concerns employing 625,000 workers, in addition to the 157,000 in "little steel."

ELECTRIC UTILITY UNIONS DECLARE WAR ON AFL-CIO

Cincinnati, O., July 17 (AP).—Representatives of 30 independent utilities unions met here today to form a national organization. George L. Mueller, director of the two-day meeting, declared "Our purpose is to form an organization to knock the CIO and AFL out of the electric utilities employés' group."

Mueller, president of the independent association of employés of the Duquesne Light Company of Pittsburgh, said the unions represented 100,000 or more utilities workers.

Texas to Get 15 Million Dollar Iron Ore Furnace

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Negotiations for construction of a $15,000,000 iron ore furnace at Daingerfield, Tex., were said by Rep. Wright Patman [D., Tex.] to have been completed today. Months of transactions were formally concluded, Patman said, as Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones and John Carpenter of Dallas, president of the Lone Star Steel company, signed a contract that made federal funds available for construction of the plant.

AFL Walkout Threat to War Plant Building

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 17 (AP).—A walkout of members of AFL building trades unions threatened today to halt construction on more than 100 million dollars' worth of war construction jobs in this steel and industrial center.

Business Agent W. D. Cashdollar of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners said the walkout began yesterday, the workers protesting that the War Production board refused to authorize a 25 cents an hour pay increase.

He said the walkout was unauthorized. Late this evening international officers of the unions ordered their members to return to work after Donald Nelson, WPB chairman, warned he would take "drastic action" unless work was resumed.

Plane Strike Halted.

Beaver, Pa., July 17 (AP).—Workmen at the Pennsylvania plant of Curtiss-Wright corporation resumed work late today after a brief work stoppage over a dispute between the management and the CIO United Steelworkers of America.

A union official said there had been no walkout, but that "about 1,000 of our members slowed down." He said the union has been attempting to negotiate a contract for one which expired June 20, and that he "understood" the entire dispute now will go before the War Labor board.

Chemical Tieup Continues.

Boston, Mass., July 17 (AP).—Labor and management representatives resumed efforts today to settle an AFL Chemical Workers union strike that a company official said would "cripple production in 250 eastern plants and affect more than 250,000 employés."

The strike was called three days ago in two plants—the Monsanto Chemical company and its subsidiary, the New England Alcohol company—both in Everett and working on war orders. Approximately 250 workers were idle today in the strike, which followed several weeks of negotiations on a new contract to replace the one which expired July 1.

Magnesium Plant Struck.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 17 (AP).—Striking employés of the American Magnesium corporation's aircraft material plant voted today to continue their walkout and meet again tomorrow to consider government and union appeals that the stoppage end pending a hearing before the War Labor board in Washington on their wage dispute with the company. Approximately 1,000 employés, members of the CIO United Mine Workers, struck yesterday and furnaces were shut down.

Jurisdictional Dispute.

Dayton, O., July 17 [Special].—Retarding of the production of war materials was threatened here when AFL employés staged a walkout at two plants of the Frigidaire division, General Motors corporation, today in a jurisdictional dispute with the CIO. The AFL workers were employed on a building, near completion, which is to be used to produce war materials.

Ford Sitdown Ended.

Iron Mountain, Mich., July 17 (AP)—The 300 CIO-UAW members of the day shift at the Ford Motor plant here who stopped work yesterday because of a labor dispute, returned to their jobs at 11:30 a. m. today.

FEWER BUYERS TAKE MORE, SAYS FURNITURE MART

Buyer registration totaled 8,000 at the midsummer furniture and home furnishings market at the American Furniture Mart which concludes its two-week run today. This was a decline of 20 per cent from the January total. However, the number of retail outlets represented was only slightly less.

Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the mart, said that because of the transportation situation larger establishments sent fewer buyers and these did the purchasing for one or two departments in addition to their own. Many smaller stores pooled their buying thru purchasing syndicates.

"Retailers have replenished stocks and bought further ahead than usual because of the cancellation of the November market," Whiting said. "Furniture dealers are anticipating consumer demand and their purchases are not to be regarded as hoarding."

Federal Credit Bank Offers 35 Million of Debentures

Pullman Head Denies Plan to Drop Sleepers

Every research facility of the Pullman companies will be utilized in meeting postwar competition from aircraft, automobiles, and other media of travel, David A. Crawford said yesterday.

David A. Crawford.

Crawford, who is president of Pullman, Inc., the controling company of the Pullman group, made this comment in answer to reports circulated in New York that Pullman is considering discontinuing its sleeping car business.

"During the first six months of 1942, notwithstanding the difficulties of material supply and of production limitations placed by the War Production board, Pullman has invested about $12,500,000 of new money in adding 157 new lightweight sleeping car units to its fleet," Crawford said.

Puts Millions Into Business.

"I believe this is a larger number of new lightweight units than have been installed by all the railroads of the country. During the last 10 years of admittedly thin earning results in the sleeping and parlor car business, Pullman has nevertheless invested close to 80 million dollars of new money in that business.

"These facts certainly do not offer support for the existence of any definite policy of liquidation of that business."

Crawford said he had noted with interest that on the very day the rumor appeared that Pullman might liquidate its sleeping car business because of the railroad fare differential in favor of coach travel, southern railroads moved to adjust this differential by asking higher coach fares.

Supports Pullman Position.

"That move is in the direction Pullman has for years, in its arguments with the Interstate Commerce commission and the railroads, maintained would be in the interest of both the railroads and Pullman in making more attractive from a price standpoint railroad sleeper services," he said.

Altho the company has about 3,000 fewer Pullman cars available, it is producing more passenger miles in its travel service to the railroads, the general public, and the government than it did in the previous peak period of 1925-'29, Crawford declared.

"The net earnings from the Pullman sleeping and parlor car businesses are running at a better rate than at any time since the onset of the depression decade," he said.

CHEESE INDUSTRY TO SPEND $200,000 FOR ADVERTISING

The nation's cheese industry will spend $200,000 in a nationwide campaign to be launched immediately to promote consumption of its products, a dairy industry committee announced yesterday in Chicago. A statement by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard that "there is enough cheese for everybody" was the signal for the start of the program.

The advertising will start early in August with newspaper, radio, and store display outlets. The United States now has the greatest stocks of cheese in its history, the committee said, as a result of expansion since the spring of 1941. At that time a shortage made it seem doubtful that lend-lease and domestic requirements could be met.

GEORGIA PEACH SELLS HIGHEST IN FIVE YEARS AS OTHER FRUITS RISE

Georgia peaches sold in Chicago yesterday at the highest prices in five years, the agricultural marketing service reported. Choice grades brought $3.25 to $3.50 a bushel on the wholesale market.

Prices of nearly all fruits advanced. Lemon prices climbed almost $2 a box on the auction market, ranging from $3.40 to $6.55. Oranges gained 20 to 35 cents a box, selling from $2.60 to $5.35.

Western cherries brought $3 to $4 for a 15 pound box; California plums $1.90 to $3.70 per 20 to 25 pound box, and Arizona cantaloupes $4.50 to $5 per crate of 36 to 45 melons. The marketing news service said all these prices were substantially above a year ago with the larger consumer demand accounting for much of the advance.

OPA Excludes 'Bargain Sale' Prices as Top

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—The Office of Price Administration, in an amendment to the general maximum price regulation, relieved sellers of perpetuating bargain sales that were held thru March, the base period for ceilings under the general regulation. Under either of two circumstances, the seller, effective Tuesday, may raise his ceiling to levels prevailing before March special sales.

Based on Special Deals.

These circumstances are as follows:

1. Any seller, other than a retailer, whose maximum price for a commodity is based on a special deal or other price reduction limited to four months, may raise his maximum to the highest price at which he delivered the commodity during the 30 days immediately preceding the temporary reduction.

2. A retailer whose maximum price for a commodity is reduced as a result of a special deal which his supplier made available to him may raise his maximum to the highest price at which he delivered the commodity during the 30 days immediately preceding the temporary reduction.

A retailer whose temporary reduction was not based on a special deal provided by his supplier may apply to the OPA for adjustment of his maximum price if his ceiling price is abnormally low in relation to his competitors and causes him substantial hardship.

Includes 1 Cent Sales.

"Special deal" as used in the amendment, includes any temporary reduction—that is, one limited to four months, in the price charged to purchasers of the same class. Most commonly such reductions took the form of "free" merchandise offered with the sale of the same or other merchandise, combination sales at reduced prices, 1 cent sales, and special discounts designed to stimulate business during slack seasons.

People and Events

Three changes in the executive staff of Northwest Air Lines operations department were announced yesterday by Croil Hunter, president. George Gardner, vice president in charge of operations and director of the line, has been granted a leave of absence to become a lieutenant colonel in the office of the military director of civil aviation in Washington, D. C. W. Fiske Marshall, operations manager, has joined the marine corps as a major. Capt. R. L. Smith, a pilot, will take over the duties of Gardner and Marshall.

Appointment of Russell E. Ebersole, assistant manager of the northeastern district for the lamp division of Westinghouse, as manager of the middle western district with headquarters at Chicago was announced.

All 378 employés of Roberts & Oake, meat packers at 45th street and Racine avenue, are buying war savings bonds on the pay roll deduction plan.

Act to 'Rescue' Small Plants for War Use

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—Chairman Lou E. Holland of the newly organized Smaller War Plants corporation today told of preliminary plans to rescue and utilize a large portion of the thousands of small factories that have been forced to close because of wartime restrictions on production of civilian goods. His statement followed the first meeting of the directorate of the corporation, which congress implemented with a 150 million dollar revolving fund.

"We are to fit small business into the stringent war economy wherever we can," said Holland, "if it will aid in the general war effort. It is quite clear that we are not a relief agency.

Plan to Spread Work.

"But this is not to say that we are not wholly sympathetic to the problems and the plight of small business. We are; and we believe we shall find ways to spread war work more extensively into the field of small business. I know, from my own experience, that there are a lot of small firms around the country which are thoroly capable of doing many jobs that need to be done.

"For a long time other units of the War Production board, as well as the procurement agencies of the army, navy and maritime commission, have been working along these lines and I think we have to find out what has been done to date before we can begin to build a program that will be genuinely helpful.

"That is our immediate task, and until that is accomplished, no spectacular announcements can be expected from the Smaller War Plants corporation.

Would "Redistribute" Contracts.

"As we well know, material shortages in many fields are now the chief concern of the War Production board. In these fields and as long as these conditions prevail, we shall probably find our usefulness chiefly in providing facilities which will permit a redistribution of existing contracts.

"A good many prime contractors are overloaded, and much of the simpler kinds of work they are doing can be done by smaller concerns. If contracts can be broken down and examined and the simpler jobs placed elsewhere, utilizing existing buildings and machinery, this will aid war production without making any demand whatever on the supply of materials. Also it will aid small business."

U. S. NEWSPRINT CONSUMPTION IN JUNE DECLINES

MONTREAL, Que., July 17 (AP).—The Newsprint Association of Canada reported today total apparent newsprint consumption of all United States publishers in June was 296,393 tons, 26,886 tons less than a year ago. The cumulative decrease for the first six months of 1942 was 4.4 per cent.

The association estimated newsprint stocks of United States publishers had increased 19,428 tons in June to 633,608 tons. At the end of June, 1941, the total was 400,714 tons and a year earlier, 391,658 tons.

Shipments from Canada during the first half of 1942 provided 71 per cent of the United States supply, the report said, compared with 68 per cent in the first half of 1941. United States mills shipped 24 per cent compared with 27 per cent a year ago, and Newfoundland's share was unchanged at 5 per cent.

REAL SHORTAGE OF LABOR SEEN FOR WAR PLANTS

Must Use Women, Says Hepler.

New sources of employment must be tapped if the Chicago area office of the United States employment service is to meet its minimum demands for 90,000 additional war plant workers at the peak next spring, Chester W. Hepler, Illinois director of the service, said yesterday.

Of the 177,000 currently available for employment in the metropolitan area, about 100,000 men will be drawn into the armed forces, and the district as a result will rely increasingly on women to fill the ranks in essential industries, he said.

The federal job service, Hepler said, plans to meet the problem by recruiting men below and above the age of military service and by appealing to women on patriotic grounds to join war factory staffs.

Study Forced Employment.

He observed that mandatory employment of women in war plants is being considered on a national scale by government officials in Washington, D. C., in line with England's action.

"The displacement of workers in Chicago area plants as a result of priorities and related problems has about reached its peak," Hepler said. "The peak came later than in other parts of the country because this area was behind others in the receipt of large scale war orders. From now on there will be a tremendous shortage of workers in this district."

Offices of the federal service throughout the state are devoting as much attention as possible to filling demands for workers in nonessential trades, Hepler said, but the problem has been made difficult by new duties given the service within the last two months. These are the handling of occupational questionnaires in connection with the draft, and the farm placement program. Some of the offices are devoting all of their attention to farm and war plant personnel.

Doubts Idle Payment Rise.

Hepler denied comments expressed in some quarters that the emphasis on war work will contribute toward increased demands for unemployment compensation by those displaced from jobs in nonessential trades.

"With proper training at one of many schools and training centers maintained by this service, we will put the displaced ribbon clerk—or almost any other type of employé—at work in a war plant," Hepler said. "We're doing it every day, because experience has shown that nearly every type of employé fits into the war effort in some useful capacity. There should be no increase in demands for unemployment compensation."

CHARGE UNFAIR TRADE PRACTICE TO CUNEO PRESS

The Federal Trade commission announced yesterday that it had issued a complaint charging Cuneo Press, Inc., Chicago, its New York subsidiary, Neo Gravure Printing Co., Inc., two export commission firms and an individual with "unfair and deceptive acts and practices" in violation of the federal trade commission act. The complaint asserts that the defendants were allegedly associated in a coöperative arrangement "to deceive American manufacturers" in the sale of advertising matter for use in export catalogs.

According to the commission, the defendants made false representations to induce manufacturers to purchase displays for use in the catalogs. The complaint charges that no foreign market existed at that time for the products of these purchasers.

A Cuneo official said that his company was involved only to the extent that its subsidiary printed the displays.

ICC to Place Controls on Grain July 22

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—In a move designed to prevent damage or loss of the 1942 grain crops because of lack of sufficient storage facilities, the Interstate Commerce commission today directed that permits must be obtained to move bulk and sacked grain to terminal storage facilities.

The commission order becomes effective July 22. The permits will be issued by ICC representatives and agents thruout the nation upon application by shippers, receivers, or buyers. A voluntary committee which will be set up immediately will determine the amount of storage facilties available. The amount of grain permitted to move to storage will be based upon the usable storage space.

All to Be Represented.

The order provides for setting up the grain permit committee to be composed of one representative of the agriculture department and such representatives of producers, grain trade, processors, transportation, and other interests as local needs may require, the spokesman said.

"We will try to prevent damage or loss of grain by this method," a commission spokesman said.

Soybeans, flaxseed, grain screenings and dry edible beans were included under the order as well as "bulk and sacked grains," the spokesman said.

Recommend Embargo.

He said the commission took action after the agriculture department advised the Office of Defense Transportation and the commission that there was great danger of loss or damage to the grain crop because of inadequate storage facilities. The agriculture department suggested that an embargo or permit system was both desirable and necessary, ICC said.

Storage for all grain that will be produced was declared inadequate and unavailable by the order. It added that additional facilities required to handle the grain could not be built because of the lack of materials.

Tax Suit Ruling Called Boon to State Finances

Illinois taxing authorities forecast a substantial boost in state revenues yesterday as the result of a court decision upholding Illinois' right to collect sales taxes on goods shipped into the state from manufacturing and shipping points in other parts of the country.

Laddie T. Pelnar, Chicago area supervisor of the retailers' occupational tax division, said that collections on types of sales involved in a test case decided in the state's favor on Thursday amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars a year.

Many Cases Pending.

Altho the Standard Oil company [Indiana], which brought the test case, announced it would appeal the decision, Pelnar asserted the ruling of Circuit Judge L. E. Stone at Springfield strengthened the state's taxing ability to such an extent that an intensified collection drive had begun.

Involved in the litigation, he said, are manufactured goods of almost every type sold in Illinois. Hundreds of court cases pending in Chicago and other cities thruout the state hinge on Judge Stone's ruling.

The state maintains its right to collect the 2 per cent occupational tax on all sales arranged thru agents in Illinois of goods shipped to the buyer from manufacturing plants or shipping points in other states.

No attempt is made to collect on sales arranged by mail or in any other instance when no Illinois "paper work" is involved.

Exemption Claim Denied.

In the case of Standard Oil alone, the tax bill which the company demands refunded, amounts to about $100,000 paid under protest since April, 1940. This fund was paid principally on petroleum products sold large Illinois commercial customers who accepted delivery at the company's Whiting, Ind., bulk plant.

The company contended sales of this type were exempt from taxation but the state, supported by Judge Stone's decision, has held them taxable on the theory the actual sale was arranged in Illinois.

ELIMINATE FLAT CUT ON GASOLINE DELIVERY IN EAST

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Elimination of the 50 per cent curtailment in deliveries of gasoline to dealers on the eastern seaboard was ordered by the WPB today, effective with the start of the new coupon rationing system on July 22.

After that date deliveries will be based wholly on coupons received by filling stations from motorists and turned in by them to gasoline distributors.

WPB said the limitation had been found to work "undue hardship" in boom areas where the influx of war workers had increased requirements for gasoline.

FACTORY SCRAPS $500,000 OF IDLE METAL FOR U.S.

Half a million dollars worth of idle machinery and tools and unused supplies will be sold to war salvage depots Monday by the Mills Novelty company at scrap metal prices.

The lot represents approximately a thousand tons of metal collected in a factory cleanup drive in response to appeals to industry to scrap idle equipment and supplies, Fred L. Mills, president, said.

KNUTSON PLANS FIGHT TO SOFTEN BUSINESS TAXES

Fears Bankruptcy of Small Concerns.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—An attempt to force revision of the drastic new taxes on American business proposed in the pending 6 billion 144 million dollar revenue bill will be made in the house Monday, it was learned today.

Harold Knutson.

Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.], a ranking minority member of the ways and means committee, said he will offer a motion to recommit the bill to committee, with directions for a reduction in corporation levies designed to save many smaller enterprises from bankruptcy.

Under the stringent gag rule which the chamber adopted for consideration of the record breaking measure, a motion to recommit is the only method by which it can be amended by the 435 members. The rule provides that otherwise they must accept or reject the bill in its entirety, as drawn by the 25 members of the committee.

Debate Ends Tonight.

General debate, which began yesterday, ends automatically when the house adjourns tomorrow evening, leaving only a vote on passage set for Monday—unless in the meantime it becomes the committee's pleasure to offer amendments. Members have assailed this procedure as depriving the house of its constitutional prerogative to draft revenue legislation.

The new corporation taxes, placing an increased burden of 2 billion 479 million dollars on the nation's business, are among the most controversial in the bill. They would raise the total yield from this source to 10 billion 127 million dollars.

Included is a boost from 31 per cent to 45 per cent in the rates on normal profits and a flat rate of 87½ per cent on excess war profits, replacing the current graduated scale ranging from 35 to 60 per cent.

Reversal of Policy Denounced.

Originally the committee voted for a 40 per cent tax on normal profits and a 94 per cent excess profits rate, which was to include 14 per cent in postwar credits. But in a surprising reversal of its stand, the committee last week adopted the high rate on normal taxes while lowering the levy against war profits. This move has been denounced in the two days of debate as unsound and unreasonable in the face of mounting profits for war contractors while many small concerns are staggering under the impact of priorities, shutdowns, and restricted wartime markets.

New Dealers on the committee, led by Rep. Raymond S. [Small Potatoes] McKeough [D., Ill.], and a group of insurgent Republicans are held responsible for the maneuver.

Boehne Looks Into Future.

"Yes, it is mighty easy for any man, particularly in an election year, to stand in the well of this house and attack all corporations, to declare them the giant octopus which should be led to the slaughter," remonstrated Rep. John W. Boehne [D., Ind.]. "However, it is another thing for industries after the war to reëmploy the hundreds of thousands and millions of good substantial American citizens in order that our economy may continue as it did for 150 years."

Knutson said his motion will provide for reducing the new rate on normal taxes to 40 per cent and raising the excess profits tax to a flat 90 per cent. Tax experts said this would increase the yield from war profits by 160 million dollars while reducing the normal tax yield approximately 550 millions, or a probable net loss in new revenue of 390 millions.

Foundation of Our Economy.

"The sum is insignificant compared with the benefits to little business," Knutson asserted. "The survival of our way of life will depend upon those enterprises, and if we tax them out of existence we will wreck the country. If need be, we can raise the difference in revenue from other sources better able to bear the load."

Besides increasing the tax burden on business, the new bill would siphon an additional 2 billion 906 million dollars from the purses of American working people thru major increases in individual income taxes.

Large Salaries Disclosed

Philadelphia, Pa., July 17 (AP).—The Universal-Cyclops Steel Corporation of Bridgeville, Pa., paid its president, five vice presidents and a sales representative a total of $435,500 in 1941, an increase of $75,890 over 1940, a report by the Securities and Exchange commission showed today.

No Auto Insurance Rate Cut

Automobile owners need not expect an early reduction in insurance rates on their cars because of restricted travel under wartime gasoline and tire regulations, casualty insurance company officials said yesterday.

Casualty rates generally are determined by definite motoring trends over a period of a year or more. Company officials said that due to the many conflicting statements coming out of Washington concerning gasoline rationing and use of private automobiles, it has been impossible to tell to what extent mileage will be curtailed.

Accident Rate Still High.

In addition, reduced mileage under present wartime conditions must mean fewer accidents before rates can be lowered, it was said. This would mean an extended check on the number of auto accidents and fatalities from the time definite government regulations are made.

Neville Pilling, United States manager of the Zurich General Accident and Liability Insurance Company, Ltd., and president of the American Guarantee and Liability Insurance company, said the number of accidents per 100 cars insured by Zurich General so far this year is about equal to the total for the same 1941 period.

Take Issue with Public.

To the motorists' assertion that fewer cars on the road mean fewer accidents, and consequently insurance rates should be lowered, insurance company officials have given the following factors for consideration:

1. Fewer automobiles would mean more passengers per car, resulting in injuries to more people per accident.

2. Driving in dim-outs increases accident hazards.

3. Since tires cannot be replaced on ordinary cars, the more they are used, the more hazardous they become.

4. Bicycle and pedestrian traffic is increasing.

5. Government threats to take over private cars have induced some motorists to drive their autos to the limit within as short a period as possible.

STOCKS WEAKEN AFTER EXTENDED 'INFLATION' RISE

Selling of Steels Acts to Depress Market.

New York, July 17 (AP).—The stock market lost its rising stamina today and declines of fractions to more than a point predominated at the close.

In addition to the usual trimming of accounts for week-end protection, some selling was based on indications the administration would ask for stiffer corporation tax rates and possibly urge wage-price legislation to prevent the threat of soaring living costs. Many potential buyers also were restrained by persistent gloomy war news from Russia.

The list displayed considerable hesitancy at the start. Steels developed softness after midday and an assortment of "blue chips" declined appreciably.

Scattered Favorites Rise.

There were scattered favorites among rails, farm implements, utilities, and specialties but these were too few to turn the trend.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .4 of a point at 36.9, largest drop since June 22. Transfers totalled 282,770 compared with 265,390 Thursday.

Steels seemingly were depressed by belated implications of the pay boost granted "little steel" workers. Youngstown Sheet showed independent heaviness, falling 1¾ points in the wake of a 50 cent dividend declaration against 75 cents paid in the two preceding quarters. .

Among better actors were White Rock and Oliver Farm which edged into new high ground for the year.

CHICAGO PRICES SOFT.

Forty issues declined on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday while 23 advanced and 18 closed unchanged. Volume was 13,000 shares, a thousand under Thursday. Radio corporation, the volume leader, closed at 3½, up ⅛. Other active stocks were Butler Brothers and Swift & Co., both unchanged; Aviation, up ⅛, and Dodge Manufacturing, up ¼. Cudahy Packing declined ⅛ after the New York close.

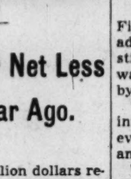
MILLION DOLLAR TAX CUTS ACME STEEL EARNINGS

Second Quarter Net Less than Half Year Ago.

With more than a million dollars reserved for taxes at rates recommended by the house ways and means committee, the Acme Steel company of Chicago, strip steel and specialties manufacturer, yesterday announced its net income in the quarter ended June 30 was $380,285, or $1.16 a capital share. Profit in the same period in 1941 was $900,302.



C. M. MacChesney.

C. M. MacChesney, first vice president and secretary, said Acme on the basis of the Washington estimate, will pay excess profits taxes of $836,367 and normal income and surtax of $213,385 of its gross profit of $1,430,038. The 1941 second quarter gross was $2,432,831.

First Quarter Net Revised.

After income taxes for the first quarter of 1942 had been recomputed on the basis of the new rates, MacChesney said net earnings were $502,907 or $1.53 per share instead of $1.95 per share as reported April 16.

Net profit in the 12 month period ended June 30 was $2,407,183 or $7.34 per share, compared with $2,695,436 or $8.22 per share in the year ended June 30, 1941.

Walter E. Heller & Co., instalment banker and factor of Chicago and New York, reported a net income of $270,391, equivalent to 85 cents per share, in the first six months of 1942 ended June 30. The company earned $288,997 in the same period in 1941.

Profits of the Caterpillar Tractor company, Peoria, Ill., declined approximately a half million dollars in the quarter ended June 30, compared with the same period a year ago. Net income was $1,341,650 against $1,886,267 in 1941.

HOGS REACH $15 AGAIN, EQUAL TO BEST SINCE 1920

A sharp upward swing of the hog market at the stock yards yesterday brought back the $15 quotation which has been the cause of insistent demands from packers that the government place a ceiling on prices of live animals.

Numerous consignments of late fall and winter pigs weighing from 180 to 230 pounds brought $15, which equaled the highest hog sale in the Chicago stock yards since October, 1920. Prior to 1920 there were only three years on record with July prices as high. The top for July last was $12.

The scant supply of sheep and lambs on the market sold at steady prices. Most classes of cattle sold steady.

ONION MAY BE TRADED ON FUTURES MARKET, EXCHANGE DISCLOSES

Onions may soon join the ranks of the speculative commodities," it was learned yesterday. Trading in onion futures may be started on the Chicago Mercantile exchange as a result of the growing interest in the exchange among onion growers and dealers, marketing authorities reported.

Oscar W. Olson, educational director and assistant business manager of the exchange, has been invited to attend a meeting of the United Statistical Onion association at Kenton, O., Aug. 1, to explain the functions of the futures market. This association is said to be one of the largest onion growers' organizations.

Wartime demands for onions and their inclusion as one of the lend-lease products, according to exchange spokesmen, have created the new interest in a hedging market.

WPB APPROVES AD CAMPAIGN TO ROUND UP METAL

$2,000,000 to Be Spent to Gather Scrap.

Washington, D. C., July 17 (AP).—Final details of a $2,000,000 national advertising campaign, designed to stimulate the flow of scrap metal into war production, were approved today by the War Production board.

The campaign will begin July 20, involving newspaper advertisments in every state, trade papers, magazines, and radio stations.

The fund for the drive was contributed chiefly by the iron and steel industry and the campaign will be sponsored by the American Industries' Salvage committee, organized from the industries affected at the request of WPB's conservation division. This committee will select the advertising and the publicity mediums used.

Cut Copper-Alloy Ceilings.

The Office of Price administration announced reductions, effective Aug. 17, in the ceiling prices on 13 grades of copper-alloy scrap.

The reductions, ranging from ¼ to ½ cent a pound in most instances, were intended to bring scrap prices into closer relationship with those of electrolytic copper, and with a proposed new price schedule for brass ingot, OPA said. The reductions, however, are less than the contemplated cuts for brass ingot.

The price adjustment will eliminate almost completely, OPA said, the present subsidy paid by the government-owned Metals Reserve company, for production of electrolytic copper from refinery brass scrap.

Speed Machine Tooling.

Manufacturers of new machine tools were authorized to enter into contracts and make deliveries at above-ceiling prices while awaiting rulings from the OPA on petitions filed for price increases.

The amendment to the machine tool price order was intended, OPA said, to "eliminate possible delays in entering into the production of critically needed machine tools."

Restrictions on the size of inventories which may be built up by wholesalers and distributors in United States territories and possessions were removed by the WPB in an amendment to the suppliers' inventory order.

Unrestricted accumulation of supplies will be permitted, WPB said, because of the "current uncertainties of shipping and the fact that transportation facilities themselves act to limit the stocks of dealers reached only by sea routes.

SHIPS WITHDRAWN.

To what extent have operation of Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Steamship Lines been altered under war conditions?—V. S.

Answer: E. S. Bloom, president, said recently all company ships have been withdrawn from regular service and had been chartered by the United States government. Coastwise and Mexican services have been suspended entirely, probably for the duration of the war. Schedules to Cuba, Puerto Rico, and Dominican Republic were being maintained out of gulf ports by vessels assigned to the company by the War Shipping administration.
